Seizures are the most common neurological disorder of childhood. But not all seizures are convulsions and symptoms can be difficult to recognize. Many of the "hidden" signs mimic normal behavior. Recognition of these signs is important in the early diagnosis and treatment to avoid learning disabilities, social problems, and safety risks associated with epilepsy in young children. Early diagnosis offers the child with epilepsy a better chance of treatment success and a future free of seizures. "Epilepsy can be particularly difficult to diagnose in young children because they are unable to clearly communicate what they are feeling," says Paul M. Levisohn, M.D., pediatric neurologist at Denver Children's Hospital. "The symptoms they display are often misinterpreted, which can lead to weeks and even months before a diagnosis is made." Although these signs don't necessarily mean a child has epilepsy, they should be brought to the attention of the doctor.

The "hidden signs" of seizures of children include:

- Short attention blackouts that look like daydreaming.
- Sudden falls for no reason.
- Lack of response for brief periods.
- Dazed behavior.
- Unusual sleepiness and irritability when wakened from sleep.
- Head nodding.
- Rapid blinking.
- Frequent complaints from the child that things look, sound, taste, smell, or feel "funny."
- Clusters of "jackknife" movements by babies who are sitting down.

- Clusters of grabbing movements with both arms in babies lying on their backs.
- Sudden stomach pain followed by confusion and sleepiness.
- Repeated movements that look out of place or unnatural.
- Frequent stumbling or unusual clumsiness.
- Sudden repeated episodes of fear for no apparent reason.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

"What is digital?"

Try and compare counting on your fingers to using a calculator. Or how about a horse and buggy to a modern automobile. With Digital hearing aids you are using computer power to help sort, sift and process sounds at a speed of over 40 million calculations per second! Each aid is programmed to your hearing needs, while you are wearing it. Volume is adjusted automatically, according to your environment. Soft sounds are louder, loud sounds don't bother you and hearing conversation in the presence of noise is better than ever before! Sound is more natural and has a CD sound quality. When you hear soft sounds better, you can understand speech better because you can hear the very quiet sounds like "p, b, t, k, sh, th and more. There is nothing better than Mother Nature's normal, natural hearing. The next best thing is a digital hearing aid. Sure, they are more expensive; quality always is. Analog hearing aids are still available, but they have always fallen short and many have ended up in the drawer. Find out if you're a candidate with a free hearing test! Quincy 'Building Better Program'

By CHRIS POISSON

At Veterans Memorial Stadium last Friday night, Quincy High School's fight song echoed loudly throughout the locker room, down the entrance tunnel and onto the field, where only minutes ago the Presidents had pulled out an improbable 22-21 victory in overtime against Silver Lake.

From the players to the coaches to even some kids from the junior varsity team, the lyrics to "March Down The Field" were sung triumphantly. After two-plus years of frustration and disappointment, it appears the football program has turned a page.

"Our program is building; it's getting better," said head coach Bob Noble. "It's a testament to the kids. They never quit. They never stop playing. They believe in themselves and they believe in the coaches. It's their bearing fruit, finally."

In the past, close games always went to the other team. But for the second straight week, Quincy made the big plays when it counted the most — none more bigger than in OT.

Silver Lake had possession first and, after two run plays resulting in negative 15 yards, sophomore quarterback Denis Hill tossed a 25-yard scoring strike to a wide open Ryan Gadles for a 21-14 lead after the extra point.

Quincy answered immediately. On the first play of its series, junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano rolled right and fired a 10-yard TD pass to senior Peter Turowski and then rushed for the game-winning two-point conversion as Quincy had no thoughts of settling for a tie.

"I knew we were going to go for two," Lorenzano said. "That was the game right there. And it was wide open. It was there and I ran it in. I can't even describe it, really."

Lorenzano turned in his finest performance of the season. The first-year signal caller completed 11-of-20 passes for 150 yards and a touchdown and also rushed for 55 yards and two scores. As Lorenzano improves each week, so does the Presidents' offense. In the last four games Quincy has averaged nearly 16 points per game compared to 5 PPG through the first four.

"He's had a tremendous second half of the year," Noble said. "He's really developed. We've gone to an offense we feel a lot more comfortable with. It gives us the ability to both run and throw which keeps the defense off-balance. Offensively, we've really come alive."

Quincy (2-6, 2-3) will try to extend its winning streak to three games tomorrow (Friday) night when it hosts Barnstable (3-5, 3-2) at 7 p.m. in its final game before the annual Thanksgiving Day showdown against North Quincy. A win Barnstable would put the two schools in a tie in the OCL standings.

"All things considered that would be a pretty good accomplishment," Noble said. "Barnstable is a good football team. They're the defending Division I champs. Although they're not having the year they expected, they're still a good football team."

As it seems like the case every week, the Presidents will try to contain another marquee running back. There was Stoughton's Ryan LaCasse, Taunton's Latroy Gordon, Plymouth South's Eric Shanley, Silver Lake's Brandon McPhail and now it's Clinton Brown, who leads Division I with 17 touchdowns.

"It seems every time we play, particularly the last four games, the other team has an outstanding back," Noble said. "Clinton Brown, the last time I checked, was leading Division I in touchdowns. He's a major reason for their success. He's one of the premier runners in the OCL and in Eastern Mass. The task is clear: you stop him, you stop them."

And that's the approach Quincy took against Silver Lake. The defense held McPhail to 87 yards rushing and no scores and did a reasonable job of stopping the option play.

"For the most part we were fairly successful," Noble said. "I thought we did an excellent job against the McPhail kid."

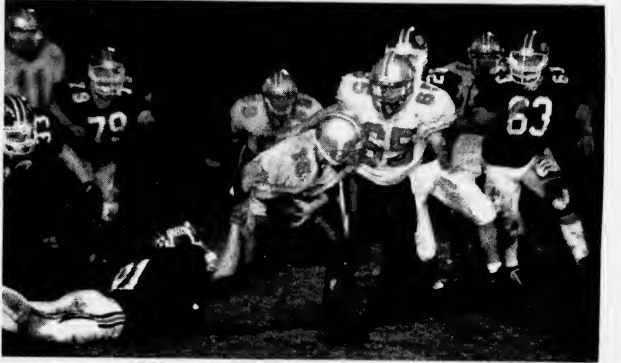

Silver Lake struck first when senior Andrew McKenna hauled in a 37-yard TD pass from Hill for a 7-0 lead with 47 seconds left in the first quarter. The scored remained that way at the break as Quincy fumbled twice in the first half to stall drives.

In the third, the Presidents evened the scored on their first series when Lorenzano rumbled into the end zone from 4 yards out with 1:46 left in the quarter. On the drive, Lorenzano connected with Turowski for 35 yards on a play-action pass.

After Silver Lake punted on its next possession,

SENIOR GREGG WALSH (81) drags down Silver Lake's Ryan Gadles (15) for a 12-yard loss late in the first half.

Quincy came right back with a 5-play 55-yard scoring drive in 2:32. On first down from the Laker 16, senior back Paul Desmond (75 yards on 15 carries) ran 15 yards up the middle to set up Lorenzano's 1-yard QB sneak for a 14-7 lead with 8:12 left in the game.

With 3:29 remaining, the Lakers got the ball back and reached Quincy's 3-yard line thanks to a pass interference call and a 35-yard pass from Hill to Gadles. On second-and-goal, Gadles dropped the ball in the backfield on an option play, but he recovered and reversed direction to turn the broken play into a 3-yard backbreaking score.

"That kid [Gadles] is a heck of a player," Noble said. "He turned a bad play into a great play for a touchdown. We got exactly what we wanted and he turned it into a touchdown."

Quincy almost pulled out a win at the end of regulation when it marched 41 yards in 1:10, but a desperate 45-yard field-goal attempt came up short at the end of regulation.

"Talk about clutch performances by our kids," Noble said. "We almost had a shot to win at the end of regulation. If we got 10 more yards we could've kicked the field goal to win in regulation. In hind sight, this [overtime] is definitely an exciting way to win."

Season Over, North Quincy Seniors Leave Legacy

By CHRIS POISSON

As the sun faded above Varsity Field late Monday afternoon, the North Quincy girls' soccer team went with it.

After pulling out a dramatic 2-1 overtime victory in the first round last Friday, No. 8 North Quincy (11-5-4) was unable to overcome a pesky 16th seed as Needham bounced them out of the Division I South state tournament with 5-2 win.

Needham (9-7-4) had upset top-seed Falmouth, which had just one loss all season, in the opening round.

"That is not a No. 16 seed," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "We knew coming in they're tough. They have some very skilled players and they're always well coached. They beat us two years ago and they beat us again. I think they knew that once they got by the No. 1 seed they had an opportunity to do something. And they took advantage of it."

For seven seniors, the loss signals the end of their remarkable careers. Kellee Conley, Jen Conley, Stacy Szesuil, Colleen Lahar, Julia Matos, Jen Djerf and Casey Ridge, who joined the team her junior year after transferring from Frontbonne, made the postseason four straight years and finished with a 45-22-15 record.

"They've certainly left a legacy for the rest of the kids to measure up to," Bregoli said. "I'm proud the way they stepped up, and put up with me for four years. It's not easy some times playing for me. But I'll tell you, they gave it everything, every time on the field."

"This is a great group of kids and I'm going to miss them dearly. You live and die with them. You look forward to seeing them every day after school."

Fifteen minutes into the first half, North Quincy struck first. Quad-captain Kellee Conley took a feed from sophomore Katy Mercurio, put a nice move past a defender in the box, took a few dribbles and blasted her 11th goal of the season and 24th of her career.

"When we got that first goal I thought it was our day," Bregoli said. "It just didn't turn out that way. I guess it wasn't meant to be."

After Conley's goal, the relentless Rockets went on the attack for the rest of the half. They evened the score 23 minutes into the half when sophomore forward Elyse Pultz beat junior keeper Kathryn MacRitchie, and took a 2-1 lead a couple minutes later when junior forward Nancy Gillis scored on a direct kick just outside the box.

In the second half, Needham went up 3-1 when a North Quincy defender couldn't control the ball in front of her net and senior captain Meg Hopkin stepped in and deposited the ball into the left corner.

The Red Raiders pulled within 3-2 when junior forward Allie Lacey knocked home a rebound off sophomore Christina Conley's shot. MacRitchie kept it a one-goal game when she robbed Gillis, who had managed to get past a defender to get a good look inside the box.

Minutes later, however, Needham tallied the back-breaker. Gillis led Pultz down the left side of the box and she floated a shot off MacRitchie's fingertips and into the net for her second goal of the game and a 4-2 advantage.

"That was a tough one," Bregoli said. "We gave up a couple of goals that we normally don't give up. We didn't defend as well as I thought we could. They had a little more quickness. They beat us to a lot of balls."

Gillis netted her second goal later in the game to account for the final score.

In last Friday's 2-1 overtime win against No. 9 Durfee at Teal Field, North Quincy trailed 1-0 at the half. Durfee junior Alexandra Rego beat a defender and chipped a shot over MacRitchie who came out of goal to try to make the save.

"We made a mistake," Bregoli said after Friday's game. "Someone came too quickly past our last defender and No. 10 [Rego] is a great player. We were talking on the sideline when it was 0-0 and said that the only way they're going to score is if No. 10 gets involved in front of the net."

Early in the second half, Durfee's starting goalie came out of the game after hurting her knee and the Red Raiders capitalized when Lacey scored the equalizer on the back-up keeper. North Quincy had plenty of chances to end the game in regulation but couldn't come up with the decisive blow.

"It's a good thing I have no fingernails because I would have chewed them all off," Bregoli said. "I thought we outplayed them the whole game. We hit posts, we hit crossbars. We were all over them, especially in the second half. I just thought it was a matter of time."

North Quincy's time came with a couple minutes left in overtime. Lacey hit a corner kick to the center of the box and somehow Jen Conley scored the game-winner.

"We were counting down the minutes," Bregoli said. "Jen Conley has been big on those all year. I don't know how it went it. I'm going to have to watch the tape."

Although North Quincy's magic didn't carry over into Monday's second-round match, Bregoli is pleased with the 2000 season.

"I'm very proud with the year we had," he said. "Unfortunately, we had a little bit of a stinker [Monday]. We still gave a good showing. This year was a great run for us. I think we did a lot better than some people expected."

Lynda Wilson of Quincy helped the Roger Williams University women's cross country team capture its first Commonwealth Coast Conference title at Colt State Park recently. Wilson, a freshman, finished fifth as the Hawks edged defending CCC champs Gordon College, 30-42.

Red Cross Course Dec. 12 On Defibrillation Training

The American Red Cross Quincy office, 1495 Hancock St., Quincy, is offering an Automated External Defibrillation Training Course on Tuesday, Dec. 12 at 6 p.m.

Participants will learn the device first hand and become accustomed to the technology and how it works. They will also be taught what special situations may arise and precautions to take when using an AED.

A basic CPR certification is a prerequisite, cost for the four-hour course is $40.

Registration is necessary. To register, call 617-770-2600 Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Raiders Looking To Regroup

The North Quincy High School football team dropped its fifth straight game last Saturday afternoon with a 21-8 loss at Bridgewater-Raynham.

North Quincy, which has given up the most points in Division I (279), can take a moral victory from this one as they held Bridgewater-Raynham to three touchdowns. With the win, the Trojans (6-3, 5-0) remained in a first-place tie with Taunton.

"I thought defensively we played well," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "It was a step in the right direction. I was pleased with the effort on the field. B-R is playing for the league title and I thought we did a good job."

The Red Raiders (1-7, 1-5) will try to regroup tomorrow (Friday) night when they travel to Canton in the final game before the 68th annual Thanksgiving Day game against Quincy.

Canton (0-8, 0-7) is having an awful season in the Hockomock league, having scored just 45 points while giving up 287. A North Quincy loss would mark the lowest point of what has been a lost season.

"It's a big game for us," Chrisom said. "We have to be on for this one. Hopefully we can build off the things we did this last game and carry into Canton. They run a diversified offense. They're quick and they have good skill people."

The Red Raiders never got rolling against the Trojans as they fell behind 21-0. They scored their only points near the end of the third quarter when senior quarterback Max Repoff connected with senior wideout Joe Holleran for a 15-yard touchdown pass.

Junior tailback Pat Bregoli added the two-point conversion.

"They blitzed us a lot so we tried to mix it up a lot," Chrisom said. "We had a couple of bad snaps, a fumble and penalties down inside their territory that hurt us."

Thanksgiving Day Football Game Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the 68th annual Thanksgiving Day football game between Quincy and North Quincy are on sale at all Quincy public schools as well as private schools in the city.

Pre-sale tickets will cost $4 for students, adults and senior citizens and will be sold until Tuesday, Nov. 21. Tickets purchased at the gate on the morning of the game will be $6.

Hennessy thanked Quincy High School cross country coach Scott King and his team for their assistance during the season. The Quincy team was unable to attend because it was on the road participating in a meet.

Central Sweeps Girls', Boys' Cross Country Titles

Central earned both the girls' and boys' team titles at the recent annual Middle School Cross Country city meet held at Pageant Field.

The swirling winds may have kept the times slower, but the competition among the 120 participants was fierce. The top 20 finishers in each division received ribbons.

In the girls' race, Central, save for Atlantic's Jacquie Mullen (8th), took spots 6-15 to cruise to a 28-58 win over Broad Meadows. Atlantic finished with 61 points and Sterling with 89.

Broad Meadows' Mary

Bloomer (7:50) capped off an undefeated season with a 19-second victory over Central's Jessica Johnson. Laura Bloomer (8:10) finished in third place, one second behind Johnson. Central's Caitlin Dow (8:14) and Atlantic's Kayla Martin took the fourth and fifth spots, respectively.

In the boys' race, Central put 11 runners in the top 16 to earn a 25-56 win over Atlantic. Broad Meadows totaled 75 points and Sterling had 86.

Broad Meadows' Frankie McKenna (6:59) avenged an earlier loss with a 2-second win and course record over John Murray. The tall, powerful McKenna turned it up the last 100 yards to pick up the win.

Atlantic's Rob Gardner (7:14), Central's Robbie (7:15) and Peter Dolbec (7:38) closed out the top five.

North Quincy High School cross country coach Geoff Hennessy was the director, assisted by members of his team. Athletic directors Ed Miller (Quincy) and Brian Buckley (North Quincy) were on hand to congratulate the runners.

Brendan Mulcahy Drives Westminster

Brendan Mulcahy lit the lamp four times and added an assist to pace Westminster Dodge to an 11-6 win over Mike Morrissey in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division play.

Steve Graham had two goals and an assist and Glenn Gibbons also added two goals. Joe Carita chipped in with a goal and an assist. Ray Marchard and Chris Garvey each tallied three assists and Joe Connolly and Amanda Maggio had one apiece.

For Mike Morrissey, Kevin Nee pocketed two goals and David Regan (assist), Robert Sullivan, Tim Keefe and Matt Tobin also found the back of the net. Frank Sorrento registered three assists, Joe Fontana two and Meg Shea and Carla Nickerson one apiece.

Mike MacPherson blasted four goals and had an assist to anchor Bernie's General Store to an 8-5 win over Wood Commercial Painting.

Meg Shea added two goals and an assist and Nick Masone and Jim Dunn also scored. Justin Auriemma, Mat Lawlor and Sam Shaw notched assists.

For Wood Commercial Painting, Jeremiah Foley netted a hat trick and Matt Tobin scored a pair. Paul Fasoli, Michael Moran and Andrew Connelly picked up assists.

Coffee Break Cafe defeated Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 8-6, as Mike MacPherson and Zach Sloan each scored two goals. Ian McRae (assist), Steve McDonagh (assist), Matt McHugh and David Guerriero added the other goals. Dom McDougall and Joe Morris each collected two assists and Luce Ledonne had one.

For Colonial Federal Savings Bank, Chris Rooney scored two goals and had an assist, while Joe Fitzpatrick (assist), Evan Harrington (assist), Andrew Gormley and Patrick Dunn each had one goal. Michael Lohnes and Tom Henry gathered assists.

Derek Murphy Nets Hat Trick For Mite A's

The Quincy Mite A travel hockey team recently fell to Framingham, 6-5, despite a hat trick from Derek Murphy. Framingham outskated Quincy from the start and took a 4-1 lead heading into the final period. Murphy tallied Quincy's first goal unassisted in the second frame.

In the third, Murphy scored with an assist from Brian Bowe and Kevin Magoon netted Quincy's third goal. Quincy put on the pressure with Bowe finding the back of the net with an assist from Magoon. Murphy pocketed his third goal with Magoon assisting again.

Richard Shea scored a pair of goals in Quincy Car Wash's 6-4 win over Burgin Platter Ins. Michael

For Local #103 IBEW, Justin Mazenka netted a pair of goals and Matt Clifford had one. Rick Pugsley tallied an assist.

Casey Conley tallied four points (2 goals, 2 assists) as the Quincy Sun battled to a 5-5 tie with Pat Foley Painting. Kyle Tobin (assist) and Mark Gilbody added the goals. John Storella-Mullin registered two assists and Mike Forbes and Brendan Foley each had one.

For Pat Foley Painting, Billy Kiley scored two goals and had an assist. Zack McCaul, Erik Anglehart and James Cedrone also scored. Ryan White, Matt Shaw, Scott Valatini and Tom Conley notched assists.

Quincy made a last-minute effort with many shots hitting the goal post, but it could not come up with the game-tying score. Matt Brundige made 14 saves in net.

Youth Hockey

Matt Bridgeman's 7 Points Power Jay Cashman

Matt Bridgeman cashed in five goals and two assists to power Jay Cashman to a 7-4 win over Kiley Real Estate in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division play.

Steve Cahalan netted a pair of goals and had an assist. Julian MacKenzie and Tom Young picked up assists.

For Kiley Real Estate, Shawn Dowling scored twice and Kevin Therrien and Kevin Jago each had one. Paul Gould tallied two assists and Tim Ridge one.

Max Kelley shined between the pipes as Doherty & White Ins. shut out Doran & Horigan Ins., 2-0. Michael Gates scored both goals and Brendan Santos notched an assist.

Lydon's edged Paul Harold, 8-7, as David O'Connell and Victoria Virtue each deposited a pair of goals. Nicholas Radcliff (2 assists), Matthew Troy (assist), Patrick Adducci and James Finn added the other goals.

For Paul Harold, Seamus McKenna blasted four goals,

Colin Ryan netted two and Michael Whitmore one. Nicole Haskins picked up three assists and John Morton and Ryan Gorman had one apiece.

Hayes' Dream knocked off Barry's Deli, 5-4, led by Kevin Magoon's goal and assist. Adam Nazzaro, Tom O'Brien, Paul Mulvey and Matt Forbes also found the back of the net. Jim Vialpando, Kevin Dwyer and Mike Gallotto gathered assists.

For Barry's Deli, Derek Murphy scored two goals and had an assist. James Phelan (assist) and Kevin McDonagh added the other goals. Eion Casserly had an assist.

Derek Matthies punched home two goals to lift Quincy Sheet Metal to a 3-2 win over Bruce Ayers. Nick Furey added a goal and an assist. Andrew Beaton and Matthew DeCilio notched assists.

For Bruce Ayers, Ryan O'Connell and Kevin Keith lit the lamp. Matt Brundige had a pair of assists and Brian Kilcullen one.

Ron Bereszniwicz Inducted Into Fitchburg State Hall Of Fame

Ron Bereszniwicz, a former standout goalie for the Fitchburg State College hockey team, was recently inducted into the college's Hall of Fame.

A 1977 graduate of North Quincy High School, Bereszniwicz co-captained the Red Raiders his senior year and earned Suburban League All-Star honors. At Fitchburg State, he was a four-year All-MASCAC and two-time All-ECAC goalie.

In his rookie season, he posted a 4.02 goals-against average (1.58, Division 3 play) and .883 save percentage (.935, Division 3) as the Falcons went 18-7. He was named ECAC

Goalie of the Week, ECAC Rookie of the Week, and MASCAC Player of the Week one time apiece.

As a sophomore, Bereszniwicz, an eight-time Dean's List student, played in 22 games and set school records for save percentage (.908) and saves made (679). He also finished with the school's second best goals-against average at 3.08.

Although Fitchburg State went 10-13-1 in his junior year, Bereszniwicz posted a 4.19 GAA and .871 save percentage in 21 games to earn both the All-MASCAC and All-ECAC honors.

Bereszniwicz played his best hockey in his final season, earning All-MASCAC and All-ECAC honors for the second straight year. Named ECAC Goalie of the Week twice, he finished with an eye-catching .923 save percentage and 4.25 GAA (3.17, Division 3) to lead the Falcons to a 16-8 record. To cap off his distinguished career, he received the ECAC Medal of Merit Award for outstanding athletic and academic achievement.

The vice president of sales for all of the United States and Canada at Pioneer Standard Corporation in Cleveland, Ohio, Bereszniwicz resides in Sudbury with his wife, Mary-Jo, and two sons, William and Casey.

'Delivery Day' Nov. 18

The Quincy Crisis Center is preparing for its "Help for the Holidays" Thanksgiving deliveries and is looking for help.

The "Food for Families" pantry will make deliveries throughout the South Shore to those in need. The following are some of the food donations that are needed for the Thanksgiving deliveries: turkeys, canned vegetables (corn, green beans, peas, etc.) stuffing mix, dessert mix, pie filling, spaghetti sauce, tomato products, cereal, tuna, peanut butter, macaroni and cheese, etc.

All donations are welcome and can be dropped off at 282 Billings Rd., Quincy, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Volunteers are needed to help prepare the bags and to make the deliveries. Individuals, church or civic groups, Boy Scout or Girl Scout troops, etc., are welcome to come and help in the preparations for delivery any time during Nov. 13-17. Volunteers are also needed to make deliveries on 'Delivery Day' which is Saturday, Nov. 18, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Call (617) 847-6967 to either schedule a time to come and help prepare the Thanksgiving bags or to volunteer for the Saturday deliveries.

The Quincy Crisis Center's mission is "advancing a culture of compassion," which is accomplished by helping others, neighbor to neighbor.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Veteran's Day is set aside each year to honor those who served their country in the armed services. We honor them all; those who wear a uniform in days past and those who wear it today. We honor them with recognition of a debt that can never be repaid. It is beyond price.

On this Veteran's Day let us pause and remember that for more than two centuries, the men and women of our armed services have fought in wars all over the world to preserve our American way of life. And in the intervening periods when America was not at war, our military men and women stood ready (and still do) to defend Democracy and oppose totalitarian rule.

Whether they fought in the front lines or served their country at peacetime, all veterans have contributed to a strong and well-prepared America. Their sacrifices must not be forgotten.

Refund Hoax Targeting Elderly Americans

By LAURIE ZASTROW

Social Security's Office of the Inspector General Hotline has received numerous fraud allegations regarding advertisements targeting elderly Americans. One ad aimed at elderly African American states: "the Government is refunding monies to anyone alive that was born up until the year of 1927 due to the Slave Reparations Act."

This advertisement states that in order to qualify for this money individuals must become part of a "National Victim's Register" by supplying their name, date of birth and Social Security number. There is no such law as the "Slave Reparations Act" -- the ad is a hoax.

A second ad involves the "Notch Babies" and targets individuals born between 1911 and 1926 whose benefits were lower because Congress corrected the benefit formula to fix an inflationary glitch. This ad also requires individuals to become part of a "National Victim's Register" by supplying their name, date of birth and Social Security number. While the "notch" is a legislative issue, the requirement to become part of a National Victim's Register is a hoax.

Such ads are typical of scams aimed at the elderly in recent years, and Social Security officials caution people to report them when they are approached, particularly when the ads ask for identifying information.

It is important that all Americans recognize the danger in giving out personal identifying information to unknown individuals or companies. Unscrupulous individuals can take the personal identifying information of another person and assume that person's identity. They can then open charge accounts, obtain car loans and commit crimes, all of which will be traced back to the person whose identity has been stolen. The burden will be placed on the victim to prove that someone else engaged in these activities.

E. Muriel Gagnon, 71

Retired Nurse

A memorial Mass for E. Muriel Gagnon, 71, of Quincy, a retired nurse, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Ann's Church.

She worked in area hospitals including New England Baptist, Quincy Hospital, Lahey Clinic, Mass Sanatorium, Deaconess Hospital, Brookline Hospital and Boston City Hospital, retiring in 1991. She was a surgical nurse.

She was an active member of AORN (Association of Operation Room Nurses). Born in Boston, she had lived in Quincy for the past 50 years.

She is survived by a grandson, James Boyle of Braintree; and three cousins, Norman and Madgalene (Mitzi) DeLorier of White Plains, N.Y., and Yvonne Gagnon Twomey of Scituate.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Arrangements were by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to a charity.

Lida J. Killory, 95

Retired Secretary

A funeral Mass for Lida J. (Levangie) Killory, 95, formerly of Quincy, a retired secretary at United Fruit in Boston, was celebrated Nov. 4 at St. Ann's Church.

She died Oct. 28 at the Ivy on Rose Nursing Home in Venice, Calif.

Mrs. Killory was a charter member of St. Ann's Church Women's Club, St. Ann's Senior Citizens Club and Sacred Heart Senior Citizens Club.

Born in Braintree, she had lived in Quincy for 73 years before moving to Venice, Calif., a year ago.

Lynn Ann Jermyn, 49

Computer Programmer

A funeral service for Lynn Ann Jermyn, 49, of Quincy, a computer programmer for Arbella Insurance Co., was held Nov. 3 at the Downing Cottage Funeral Chapel in Hingham.

She died Oct. 30 at Quincy Medical Center after a long illness.

Born in Weymouth, she was a graduate of Quincy High School and Cambridge Community College. She lived in Quincy most of her life.

She is survived by her parents, Clarence A. Jermyn of Port Charlotte, Fla., and Shirley J. (Martin) Jermyn of Plymouth; her twin brother, Lee A. Jermyn of Boston; two sisters, Claire J. Testa of Quincy and Joy A. Flowers of Carver; a niece and a nephew.

Burial was in Liberty Plain Cemetery, Hingham.

Donations may be made to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, 350 S. Huntington Ave., Boston 02130.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
Temper your direct approach with a little more diplomacy. Not everyone appreciates the Aries' penchant for telling it like it is. A gentler method earns trust.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A former associate wants to reward your creative skills with a tempting job offer. But are you sure you want to accept the conditions that come with it?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A relationship you'd like to cultivate presents some challenges that you're not sure you can handle. Don't make any decisions until you feel more confident about the situation.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your need for attention can create on-the-job tensions with co-workers who feel you don't like to share the credit. Show them that you can be a generous colleague.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Going to the mall is like rolling in camp for you fine Felines. But temper your urge to splurge until you've resolved those lingering financial problems.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Even a human dynamo like yourself needs time out to restore those depleted energy reserves. Do something spontaneous and wonderful.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Some fraying friendships might be beyond repair. Accept it, and go on to build other relationships. Expect good news about a new project.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Accept the fact that you really need more training if you plan to compete for new opportunities in your workplace—and then go out and get it!

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new work situation could conflict with your penchant for doing things your way. A sensible compromise resolves matters.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The Capricorn Goat is both cautious and capricious. So set your conservative self aside for a while and indulge in some new adventures.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your ability to keep an open mind about people helps you to deal with an unexpected situation that suddenly erupts in your personal life.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It's a good time to patch up neglected friendships. Make those overdue calls and start planning reunions with some wonderful people.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You're the model for what a friend should be: You're loyal and devoted, and can be depended on to be fair and open-minded.

South Coastal Bank Opens Offices In Quincy Center, Braintree

South Coastal Bank is expanding its banking network with the opening of two new banking offices located at 1259 Hancock St. in Quincy Center and at 405 Washington St. in Braintree Square.

Both offices opened for business on Monday.

John J. O'Connor, chairman, president, and chief executive officer of South Coastal Bank, said the new branches will embrace the bank's community banking philosophy by providing veteran bankers and support staff who can fulfill the retail and business needs of Quincy and Braintree residents and business owners. South Coastal Bank, O'Connor said, is committed to delivering exemplary customer service and a wide range of high-quality personal and commercial banking products.

In an era of mega-banks, O'Connor said there is still a clear need for dedicated community banks. "We have built a community bank that has retained its small-bank way of providing personal service while being able to offer our customers the products and services more frequently associated with larger banks," said O'Connor. "We are delighted to be operating a business in two communities that have so much to offer to both consumers and business owners and we look forward to establishing long-term banking relationships with the residents and local business owners in Quincy and Braintree."

The Quincy banking office will be managed by Elaine duJardin, a longtime Quincy resident and veteran banker. Active in the community, duJardin serves as a committee member for the Quincy Medical Association Educational Fundraiser, a member of the Quincy Business Council, and organizer of the Lion's Club annual road race. She is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

The Braintree banking office will be managed by Maureen Courtney, an experienced banker who brings a highly developed customer service orientation to her position as branch manager. A resident of Brockton, Courtney is a graduate of the New England Banking Institute.

South Coastal Bank remains an independent mutual bank, chartered by the state and owned by its depositors. In September the bank changed its name from Rockland Saving Bank to South Coastal Bank to better reflect its South Shore roots and its full-service banking philosophy. The bank and its employees have a long and successful history of commitment to the community. Founded in 1868, South Coastal Bank has branches in Braintree, Carver, Quincy, Rockland, and Scituate.

Kevin Ryan Graduates Army Reserve Training

Kevin P. Ryan of Quincy has graduated from the Army Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) Advanced Camp at Fort Lewis, Tacoma, Wash.

After successfully completing advanced camp and graduating from college, he will be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army National Guard or Reserve.

Ryan, a 1997 graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, is currently attending The Citadel in Charleston, S.C.

He is the son of Kevin P. and Pat L. Ryan of Manet Ave., Houghs Neck.

DR. JAMES CAMERON (center), professor of history at Eastern Nazarene College, and Dr. Kent Hill, president of ENC, present Mayor James Sheets with The Spirit Makes the Difference; The History of Eastern Nazarene College, Part II, 1950-2000. Dr. Cameron's fifty-year history of the school and a companion to an earlier history published in 1968. Dr. Cameron will be on hand for a book signing Friday at The College Store in ENC's Mann Student Center from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. Sheets himself is a graduate of ENC and former instructor at the college.

Author Cameron ENC Book Signing Friday

As part of its centennial celebration Eastern Nazarene College announces the publication of The Spirit Makes the Difference; The History of Eastern Nazarene College, Part II, 1950-2000 by Dr. James R. Cameron, professor of history at the college.

The College Store, located in the Mann Student Center on the East Elm Ave. campus, will hold a book signing Friday, Nov. 10 from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

During that time, the book will be offered for sale at the discount price of $30 rather than the regular price of $35. Interested members of the South Shore community are encouraged to take advantage of this discount offer as well as secure the autograph of the author.

In 1968 the college published Eastern Nazarene College: The First Fifty Years, also by Professor Cameron. The first volume ended at the beginning of the administration of Dr. Edward S. Mann and the second volume begins with his administration.

Cameron has been teaching on the Wollaston campus for half a century and experienced the whole period covered in the current volume. The material which he collected for the first volume was used to begin the college's archives. Each year since 1968, Cameron has collected documents and publications related to the college in the hopes of being able to write a centennial volume. He has been able to fulfill two long-term dreams: writing a centennial volume and serving for 50 years on the faculty.

Cameron has been active in the Quincy Historical Society for four decades and currently serves as its historian. Although his first book was on English law, most of his publications have dealt with subjects of local history. He has published biographies of Josiah Quincy IV, General Joseph Palmer, and James R. McIntyre. He has written on the history of Quincy, Randolph, and Norfolk County. He also wrote histories of the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene in celebration of its fiftieth and seventy-fifth anniversaries.

"The Spirit Makes the Difference" was a slogan introduced during the 1970's to characterize the student body's participation in the King's College Tournament held in New York each spring. This is a book about people and not merely an institutional history. Many alumni will find their name in this book, which deals with student life in general and athletics and dramatics in particular.

Written by a faculty member, it covers faculty, programs, and departments in some detail. There has been a dramatic change in the college during the decade of the 1990's with the election of presidents Cecil R. Paul and Kent R. Hill. The addition of the degree completion program for adult learners (LEAD) and the acquisition of property on Hancock St. and Old Colony Ave. have expanded the college in the community. Over 18 million dollars was spent during the decade for the upgrade of the campus.

Throws Support To Harold

Hanley Withdraws From Council Presidency Race

Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley has taken himself out of the City Council presidency race.

Hanley said Tuesday he is withdrawing his name from consideration and will support present Council President Paul Harold for a second term.

Hanley's move virtually assures Harold of being re-elected president for another one-year term in January.

GREG HANLEY

Hanley said he had the "necessary votes" lined up to win the presidency.

"But," he said, "I don't want to divide the council or paralyze the office of the presidency."

Hanley, who is in his freshman term as councillor, said he is definitely interested in the presidency for some time in the future.

Five votes are needed to win the Sheets To Submit 169 Percentage Council Tax Classification Hearing Dec. 4

By CRAIG SALTERS

A public hearing on the reclassification of taxes will be item number one on the City Council agenda Monday, Dec. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in City Council Chambers.

The council voted 8-0 to set the date at the request of John Keenan, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, after Keenan informed councillors the mayor would be ready to submit classification percentages with appropriate figures at that time.

"This is the date the mayor has decided he can be ready," Keenan told the councillors, reaffirming his position that it was the mayor's prerogative, not that of the council, as to when to submit the tax rates.

"There really isn't a lot of magic in the date," Sheets told The Quincy Sun Tuesday. "When all of the information is available to the chairwoman of the Board of Assessors (Marion Fantucchio), we set the date for the hearing."

Sheets reaffirmed his commitment to submit a 169 percent tax

Nominations Open For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are now open for The Quincy Sun's 16th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Quincy school teacher Ronald G. Adams was honored for giving freely of his time to guide and inspire his Broad Meadows Middle School students in highly acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs and oversights, both local and worldwide.

Adams was selected from among 35 nominees submitted by Sun readers. A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final selection.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page ?? of this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

After nominations close Saturday

Former Attorney General Veterans Day Keynote Speaker 'Veterans Rights Diminishing' Says Bellotti

By TOM HENSHAW
Former Attorney General Frank Bellotti, a Navy veteran of World War II, warned the crowd at Quincy's Veterans Day ceremonies that "veterans rights are gradually deteriorating as our numbers diminish."

"Little by little," he said, "veterans benefits, the cost of living increase, health care institutions, they are all diminishing as we get farther and farther away from the wars and more and more of us die off.

"There is less and less urgency to fight for veterans benefits

"So when we have memorial services . . . it is important not only to remember . . . what veterans did but it is more important to look to the future . . . to gain become a force that the government must recognize, practically and symbolically."

Due to inclement weather, the ceremonies were moved indoors from the lawn of the Adams Academy building to Center for Technical Education gym on Coddington Street.

Bellotti recalled that his father was gassed in World War I and spend 16 years in the Veterans Hospital in Rutland.

"Today," he said, "Rutland is closed. That's where people who were gassed and had TB (tuberculosis) and the totally disabled were taken care of. There's nothing like that anymore. And they don't close with a roar; they close with a whimper. No one even knows it's happening and no one cares."

He said the most attention was paid to World War II veterans "because we had the lost veterans and everyone was affected. Everyone knew someone who was related to someone who was in that war

"And now there are fewer veterans. Every day that passes we lose 1,500 more veterans that die. Those of us from World War II are an aging group. So we need a much, much harder effort."

Bellotti branded the attempt to place the Veteran's Administration under the supervision of the Welfare Department "totally wrong."

"The benefits we ask for are not welfare," he said. "The benefits to which veterans are entitled were earned. If the Veterans Administration is merged into another agency, it part of somebody else's budget and it loses its significance and effectiveness."

"The simple daily message should be to remember, to reach out for members, to organize and be-

ALL PUMPED OUT

If you turn the ignition key to your vehicle and the engine cranks without firing up the engine, it may be that the fuel pump is no longer capable of forcing fuel forward with sufficient pressure. Aside from this no-start condition, a bad fuel pump may also be responsible for such drivability problems as momentary cutting out, hesitation, low power, and stalling. These fuel pump-related problems may occur as early as 60,000 miles on the odometer, or, more commonly, over 100,000. In many cases, the culprit behind fuel pump failure is a fuel filter in need of more frequent replacement. Simply put, a plugged fuel filter makes the fuel pump work harder than necessary, thereby shortening its life expectancy.

D'Amico Tables Issue For Clarification Council Discussion Blocked On Ladder Truck Replacement

By CRAIG SALTERS

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico exercised councillor privilege Monday night by tabling discussion of a $295,000 appropriation for departmental equipment, $100,000 of which would go towards a replacement ladder truck for the Central Fire Station.

Per council rules, the matter will be automatically discussed at the next City Council meeting, where it is expected to be referred to the Finance Committee.

D'Amico made the move after taking issue with representations that the replacement truck would be for Central Fire Station and Central Fire Station alone, saying that the mayor had told him assignment would be based on the Fire Needs Study recently undertaken by the city.

"That was not the mayor's representation to me 15 minutes ago (by cell phone)," D'Amico said of Councillor Frank McCauley's explanation that the ladder truck would replace an aging unit at Central Fire Station and not be sent to either West Quincy or Houghs Neck, both of which have been lobbying for a new ladder truck to be placed in their respective neighborhoods.

In an interview Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets explained that the $100,000 appropriation, coupled with $500,000 from a previous bond issue, would indeed purchase a replacement truck for Central Fire Station, based on the recommendation of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

"Chief Gorman controls where equipment goes and he has said that the ladder truck at Central Fire Station is not in good shape," Sheets said.

As a result of Chief Gorman's recommendation, Sheets said that he wrote to Councillor McCauley asking him to move the bonds forward but stating that it was not his intention "to hire 16 new firefighters for $1 million dollars because we just don't have the $1 million."

The miscommunication likely occurred, Sheets said, because he did tell D'Amico that long-term allocation of resources would be based on the Fire Needs Study, a study which could very well show West Quincy, with recent growth that will soon include a nine story Marriott Hotel, to possess the greatest need for a ladder truck.

"I spoke to Councillor D'Amico and told him that a ladder truck would be assigned when the final study was done," Sheets said, adding that, until then, it was Chief Gorman's decision.

The mayor called the Fire Needs Study a far-ranging assessment of the department's needs and said he expected completion of the study by late February or early March of 2001.

The Quincy Firefighters Union Local 792 recently labeled the Fire Needs Study "a stalling tactic" and called for a citywide moratorium on all current and future construction of buildings above two and one-half stories until the city's ladder truck needs are addressed.

The city currently has three ladder trucks.

THE POSTAL SERVICE'S North Quincy Carrier Annex on Hancock St., opened earlier this year, was dedicated to the memory of the late John "J.J." Burke, long-time manager of the North Quincy Branch Post Office, in a recent ceremony. Born in 1943, Burke, a long-time resident of Wollaston, was a career postal employee, serving as manager of the North Quincy unit from 1985 until his death in November of 1998. Attending the ceremony were, from the left: North Quincy Branch Post Office Manager Katherine Lydon; Dorothy Greene, long-time friend and companion of J.J. Burke; Mayor James Sheets; State Rep. Bruce Ayers; Boston Postmaster John W. Powers III; and Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton.

Oversight Committee To Finish New QHS Meeting Dec. 5

The Oversight Committee of The City Council will meet Tuesday, Dec. 5 at 7 p.m. to complete a comprehensive review of the new Quincy High School project.

Chairman Joseph Newton emphasized that the public hearing portion of the meeting, which was held Oct. 30 and saw many residents speak both for and against the multi-million dollar project, was closed.

The Dec. 5 meeting,

Newton said, will finish off agenda items not previously attended to such as presentations by Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon and Thomas Koch, executive director of the Quincy Park Department.

The project overview will address such topics as suitability of the site, traffic and parking concerns, and the proposed building of new playing fields.

Councillor Frank McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee, has indicated that he will call a meeting of the Finance Committee immediately following the conclusion of the meeting of the Oversight Committee to take action on $65 million in bond appropriations for both the new Quincy High School and renovated Central and Sterling Middle School projects.

Meetings will be held in the council chambers of City Hall.

Help Wanted For Red Cross Holiday Stocking Program

The American Red Cross has kicked off its annual Holiday Stocking Program to benefit disadvantaged children in Quincy and the South Shore.

The Red Cross provides stockings stuffed with small toys and gift items for children who range in ages one to 12 years. Lists for suggested items are available.

Donations are being accepted to fill the plastic mesh stockings supplied by the Red Cross or, for those who enjoy knitting or crocheting, personalized stockings or stockings for boys and girls of a particular age are appreciated. Patterns are also available.

Calls are also being accepted from residents who know of a boy or girl who might benefit from the program.

The stockings will be distributed to children in early December.

For more information, contact the 1495 Hancock St. office of the Red Cross at (617) 770-2600.

Joseph Shea, Staff Receive Praise For Election Work

The City Council Monday night praised the work of City Clerk Joseph Shea and his crew for the smooth handling of the city's election process.

"We take it for granted because there's never a problem," said Council President Paul Harold, "but many of the issues that are being addressed now in Florida were addressed in Quincy years ago."

Some of those issues, Harold said, included ballots, absentee ballots, training, supervision, and voter outreach.

How Big A Stepping Stone?

Greg Hanley's decision to withdraw as a contender for the city council presidency and throw his support to Paul Harold apparently leaves the gavel in the latter's hands for next year.

Unless, for some unexpected reason, Harold, who was elected Norfolk County Register of Deeds last week, decides to step down as council president.

HANLEY

HAROLD

That's highly unlikely.

Harold has no desire to be remembered as a council president who served only one term.

Hanley says he had the votes to wrap up the presidency but is stepping aside because: "I don't want to divide the city council and paralyze the office of the president."

If he had become president, Hanley, serving his first term as Ward 1 councillor, probably would have been the first freshman councillor in the city's history to win the office. He indicates he will make a bid in the future.

But, just how important is being council president?

And, is it the springboard to the mayor's office, as believed?

Well, next to the mayor, the council president is the most powerful elected official under the city's Plan A charter.

He not only presides over the council meetings, but appoints the council committees, chairmen and vice chairmen. And serves as acting mayor in the absence or illness of the mayor.

He has plenty of political exposure and -- political clout.

But is the presidency the big stepping stone to the mayor's office? Apparently not as big as long thought.

Quincy has had 28 mayors since becoming a city in 1888. If our arithmetic is correct (based on Frank McCauley's book), only 12 of them were council presidents and 16 were not.

And, if it is still correct, there have been 49 council presidents -- 12 who became mayor and 37 who did not.

But council presidents with mayor aspirations have fared much better in recent times.

Since returning to the Plan A form of government in 1957 after a stormy marriage with Plan E, Quincy has elected seven mayors.

Five of them served as council presidents: Amelio Della Chiesa, James McIntyre, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin and James Sheets. Two, Walter Hannon and Frank McCauley, did not.

But, of the seven, only Tobin went directly to the mayor's office from the council presidency.

Della Chiesa, council president in 1948, was elected mayor in 1957 on the city's return to Plan A. McIntyre and LaRaia lost bids for the mayor's office running as council presidents.

McIntyre was defeated by incumbent Della Chiesa in 1959 but won in 1965 when Della Chiesa retired. And, the man he defeated was LaRaia who was council president at the time.

LaRaia came back to win the mayor's office in 1975, defeating incumbent Hannon by 483 votes in that famous recount. Two years later he was defeated by Tobin running as the council president.

So, the council presidency can be a springboard to the mayor's office, but sometimes with a delayed spring.

In Harold's case it doesn't seem to matter. By winning a six-year term to the Norfolk County Register of Deeds post he has virtually taken himself out of the mayoral picture.

But the next council president may want to try to take that bounce to the mayor's office.

GEORGE BURKE doesn't see any reason why Paul Harold can't carry out his dual duties as city council president and Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

He's speaking from personal experience.

Burke was elected council president in 1966 and later that year was elected Norfolk County district attorney. In 1967 he was elected to his second one-year term as council president and sworn in as district attorney.

"I had no trouble handling both jobs that year," he says. "And the district attorney's office is a very busy one with high visibility."

Both the D.A.'s office and the Registry of Deeds were in Dedham.

Burke finished out his city council term in 1967 and did not seek re-election. He continued to serve as district attorney until 1975.

CITY WIDE, Quincy had a healthy voter turnout of 73.6 percent in last week's Presidential-state election.

But according to Herb Fontaine, former WJDA news editor, Precinct 1 in Ward 1 which votes at the Merrymount School did even better.

Fontaine, an election supervisor at that precinct, reports that 1,469 of the precinct's 1,848 registered voters -- or 79-plus percent -- cast ballots.

"That's darn good," he says. "It was a busy, busy day."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN 1896 view of the estate of John R. Graham on the corner of Washington and Stewart Streets in the Edison Park section of Quincy Point. Graham, a prominent businessman, was president of the Quincy & Boston Electric Railway Company and one of the founders of what is now the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Electric trolleys ran past his home here between Quincy Square and points south on what was known as the East Weymouth line of the railway company. The main house shown here has been converted to apartments but the exterior has been only slightly altered. The large stable in the rear has also been converted into apartments on what is now Graham Terrace. A house has been built to the left and the lot on the right is now home to Bob's Auto Top on the corner of Stewart Street.

READERS FORUM

A Crush On Quincy But More Affordable Housing Needed

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Someone once said, "We see things not as they are but as we are." This observation came to mind while reading Kevin Coughlin's letter in The Quincy Sun Oct. 19. Like him I read that Boston newspaper story telling readers how young people are having a crush over Quincy life.

It is always good news when a Boston paper actually says something nice about Quincy. Also, as Kevin observed, the strength of our city which is apparently attractive to outsiders looking to relocate comes from our connectedness to one another. Things like standing up and fighting a supermarket chain over a gas station proposal.

While I agree with Kevin on recognizing neighborhoods standing up together and getting things done, I'm not nearly as optimistic as he and others that we are attracting long-term folks across the Neponset Bridge to settle here. Yes, younger folks, singles, young couples, and young families are coming to our neighborhoods. However, there seems to be just as many others leaving us for greener pastures.

If younger people have a crush on Quincy, often they, like us, eventually get crushed by a housing crisis which has seen soaring rents and home prices skyrocketing. Many of these younger people now find themselves sharing apartments and condos with two, three, or four others in the same plight. All paying their share of rents which are four digits long and growing taller by the month.

Where are they or we to go? What happens to Quincy renters? What happens to low-income and middle class working families? Moving vans come and, sadly, moving vans go. Quincy needs to create more housing in all price ranges.

Leaders from business, religious, and political communities agree: more affordable housing is needed. It is both an economic and moral imperative.

The other day while I was driving through Wollaston Center and looked up on the Wollaston Theatre marquee, it was announcing The Watcher now playing. As I waited for the light to turn green, I watched folks walking by me. A young couple arm in arm, a few elderly women, and a family with kids. I hoped they were surviving their crush with Quincy's soaring economic prosperity and were not being crushed by higher rents and thoughts of moving vans.

A neighborhood is all of us together. Working together and surviving together. However, without affordable housing, our neighborhoods will have bleak futures as many pack up and leave for other places.

I have a crush on Quincy that is now 17 years old. This is my home and I hope to be about to call it my home for years to come but those soaring rents and higher home prices scare me and many others like me.

Annual Teddy Bear Drive Underway

Editor, The Quincy Sun: The Fourth Annual Teddy Bear Drive is underway and we need Quincy's help!

Last year, the Quincy Fire Department collected nearly 180 teddy bears. Please help us double that number by dropping off a new teddy bear at the Quincy Fire Department between Thanksgiving and Christmas. This year's goal is to collect $5,000 new teddy bears to distribute to less privileged children during the holidays.

The Teddy Bear Drive Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to improving the lives of underprivileged children and their parents who rely on community outreach services for survival.

In the weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas, the TBDF collects teddy bears from 25 different drop-off sites and distributes them to 25 shelters and soup kitchens within a 50-mile radius of Boston. The Teddy Bear Drive is an all-volunteer effort and is funded solely by charitable contributions from private donors.

My daughter Caitlin, now 12, and I founded the TBDF when we saw a news report five years ago about children spending Christmas Day in homeless shelters. We thought that providing children with new teddy bears would bring them comfort and security during an insecure time in their lives. I anticipated the TBDF would teach my children, and all children, the true meaning of Christmas. In the past three years, my dreams have come true. The TBDF has brought joy to more than 3,500 children in and around Boston.

Thank you for considering our request for your support.

New Telephone Numbers For South Shore

By PAUL HAROLD

The telephone company announced that new telephone numbers for Quincy and the South Shore would begin soon and that new directories would be delivered to add customers in dealing with the change.

Basically, a letter in the exchange would be dropped and the corresponding number added in its place. For example, HaNcock 9981 would become HaNcock 6-9981 (the letter N corresponding with the number on the dial). Operators would still connect customers, but the new number would have to be used.

Telephone officials said the change would allow for more customers to access the central exchange.

DOG POUND CALLED A 'DISGRACE'

City dog officer Francis Sweeney called the dog pound a "disgrace" and requested funds for its replacement. He said that something had to be done to replace the rat-infested shack.

The shack was 35 years old and had originally been used as the city's "pest house" where small pox cases were isolated, years ago.

City Clerk Hattiemay Thomas said she would include $2,000 in the annual budget to build a new facility.

NORTH QUINCY HERO RETURNED HOME

The body of North Quincy war hero Charles Cavanagh was among four war dead repatriated this week. They were transported to New York aboard the U.S. Army transport "Robert Burns," from the military cemetery in Eupen, Belgium.

Cavanagh was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theresa Cavanagh of Young St. He was killed in a mortar attack near Cologne, Germany, in 1945.

A graduate of North Quincy High School and an outstanding athlete for the Atlantic A.A., the North Quincy stadium was named in his honor.

QUINCY-ISMS

As part of its Silver Anniversary celebration, the Rotary club honored three of its founding members, all 25-year members: Sen. John Mackay, Forrest Neal and Dr. Bernard Farren. Farren had perfect attendance for 25 years. Club officers were Richard Welch, president; Robert Foy, Jr., vice president and John Herbert, secretary-treasurer. There were 57 members in the club. . . A recount was ordered in the Ward Two council race where William Papile defeated Irving Coughlin 1,747 to 1,625. . . Quincy Motors celebrated this first anniversary of its Quincy Ave. headquarters. George Daley was president. . . Officers nominated to head Local 5 were Arthur Boyson, president; John Anderson, vice president; and George Mortimer, recording secretary. Their election had to be ratified by a vote of the membership. . . A memorial Mass was held at the Star of the Sea Church for Lt. Robert Nickerson, son of Mrs. Lillian Carney of Pratt Rd. It was sponsored by the Squantum Legion Post that was named for Nickerson following his death in an air crash over Scotland in 1944. . . Councillors Carl Anderson and Russell Bates blamed poor street lighting on Quincy Ave. as a factor in a recent pedestrian fatality. In a remonstrance before the council the councillors asked for a special committee to study the situation. . . Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mayo of Penn St. celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. . . Pourers at the Mass. Field School reception as part of National Education week included former teachers Cassandra Thayer and Ann Bennett. . . The John Quincy Adams Club celebrated its 15th anniversary at Diana's Restaurant on the Southern Artery. Daniel Fabrizio was club president. . . At the celebration of the Wollaston Congregational Church's 71st anniversary, Rev. Stuart Haskins said that the mortgage had been reduced to $20,262. He predicted it would be paid off in time for the church's 75th anniversary. . . Most Blessed Sacrament's Holy Name Society held their first indoor festival, at the roller skating rink. Committee members included Frank Finlay, Frank Morrell, James Squatrito and George Kilduff. . . Quincy Housing Authority director Frank Hendry said that three acres on West St. were selected for the site of the city's first veterans' housing. Once state approval was received, construction on 14 four-family homes would begin.

Stuffed Cabbage

Some left-over rice and a cabbage in the refrigerator and 'voila' stuffed cabbage. It's not as difficult to make as one would think. Try to purchase Savoy cabbage with a curly leaf, but the other can be used as well.

Stuffed Cabbage

1 head of cabbage
1 cup rice
1 medium onion (chopped)
2 cloves garlic (minced)
1 red pepper (cut)
1 cup spinach
1 cup corn
2-3 tablespoons olive oil
grated parmesan cheese

First boil the rice. In the hot oil, sauté the onion, garlic, red pepper. Add the cooked rice and the grated cheese. Add the raw spinach and the corn. Cook for just a couple of minutes. Set aside.

Remove outer leaves on the cabbage. In a large pan of boiling water, add the whole head of cabbage and cook for about 15 minutes.

When cool, peel the leaves of gently. Take each leaf and place a bit of the mixture at the end of the leaf. Roll, turning in on each side like a package.

Place on a greased baking pan. Place small amounts of butter or margarine over the top. Pour some chicken stock (or some broth) over everything topping it with more grated cheese.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 45 minutes uncovered. It has such a nice crust from the butter and grated cheese. You'll really enjoy the flavors of your work.

P.S. You can also use zucchini or a favorite vegetable or a ground beef mixture for the stuffing.

Moswetuset Hummock Nature Walk Sunday

The Environmental Treasures of Quincy program will celebrate the Thanksgiving season by hosting a nature walk at the Moswetuset Hummock on East Squantum St. Sunday at 1 p.m.

The event is open to the public and there is no charge.

Leading the walk will be Diana DeBruyn, an environmental educator and student of Native American philosophies. DeBruyn will teach Native American skills to track wildlife and "fox-walking" and "still-hunting," techniques that can be used to get closer to wildlife for natural observation. DeBruyn will also discuss medicinal plants used by Native Americans.

Moswetuset Hummock was the Seat of Chickatawbut, leader of the Massachusetts Indians. It served as the summer camp for the Massachusetts Indians in the early 1600's. Moswetuset translates to "site of the great chief's house." Massachusetts derives its name from Moswetuset.

'Squantum Causeway Project' Video At Community Center

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum will hold a public viewing of "The Squantum Causeway Project" Wednesday, Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Squantum Community Center, 136 Standish Rd., Squantum.

The program's producer, Mark Crosby, will be in attendance.

The documentary about the beautification of the Squantum Causeway captures the essence of citizen involvement in neighborhood projects. After the causeway was raised and the sea wall extended, there was much construction debris and plant materials left behind that needed attention. What started as a Seaside Gardeners' club project, introduced by Sally Erickson, eventually involved State Rep. Bruce Ayers, who was then ward councillor; Arthur Casey of Marina Bay Co.; Mary Smith, landscape architect; and over 200 volunteers.

According to Crosby, the intention in producing this video was twofold. First, a project of this magnitude should be documented and, second, the video serves as a project model and may excite other community organizations to begin projects of their own.

Clinton Signs Delahunt Child Citizenship Bill Into Law

After a two-year effort, legislation authored by Congressman Bill Delahunt to confer automatic U.S. citizenship on children adopted from abroad, and on other foreign-born children of American parents, has been signed into law by President Clinton.

This is the second major victory this fall for initiatives to reform the international adoption process.

The Delahunt bill will eliminate the need for children to undergo the bureaucratic naturalization process. This is especially important for families that have already completed the exhaustive documentation required to adopt a child from overseas.

The measure will grant automatic citizenship to all foreign-born children who are under 18 years of age, admitted to the United States as lawful permanent residents, and in the legal and physical custody of at least one parent who is a U.S. citizen. Once the legislation goes into effect on Feb. 27, parents will no longer be required to submit an application to have their children naturalized.

Delahunt will work closely with the Immigration and Naturalization Service over the next several months to iron out the procedural details. He will post regular updates on his office website at www.house.gov/delahunt.

"After what these parents have been through in bringing their children to the United States, the naturalization process is an extra burden they shouldn't have to bear," Delahunt said. "Once the adoption is finalized and a child arrives in the U.S., that child is an American and should be treated as an American."

The President recently signed into law a related measure, also championed by Delahunt, to implement a 50-nation treaty, the Hague Convention on Intercountry Adoption, to safeguard and streamline the overall adoption process.

In addition to cutting through red tape and years of delay, the new bill signed will help prevent the tragic consequences experienced by some adoptive families. Under immigration "reforms" enacted in 1996, children who have lived in the U.S. since infancy but were never naturalized are subject to mandatory deportation — and permanent separation from their families — if they commit certain crimes.

"No one condones criminal acts," Delahunt said. "But the price these young people and their families have paid is out of all proportion to their misdeeds. They should be treated like any other American kids."

By granting automatic naturalization to minor children of U.S. citizens, the Delahunt bill will prevent such cases from occurring in the future. His original legislation would also have permitted children over 18 to avoid deportation by applying for naturalization under existing law.

But while Delahunt was unable to win agreement to include this provision in the final bill, the legislation does provide relief from deportation for one particular group of noncitizens who are deportable under the 1996 act: those who unlawfully voted in U.S. elections in the reasonable (though mistaken) belief that they were citizens at the time.

Delahunt praised Reps. Lamar Smith (R-Texas) and Sam Gejdenson (D-Conn.), who helped win House approval of the bill — and Senators Don Nickles (R-Okla.) and Mary Landrieu (D-La.), who sponsored identical legislation in the Senate.

REYKJAVIK, ICELAND

Reykjavik, Iceland, the northernmost city in the world, has been named a European City of Culture for 2000. The honor is well deserved, as Reykjavik offers an exquisite combination of breathtaking beauty and an abundance of cultural attractions. With its glaciers, hot springs, volcanoes, and lava deserts, Reykjavik sits along Faxe Bay and is surrounded by snow-capped mountains. This environment creates the perfect opportunity for fishing, skiing, or hunting. You can choose an adventure tour and see the area on horseback, a river raft, or glacier snowmobile. Reykjavik has more than 50 museums and galleries, two theater companies, and a symphony orchestra. Its art festival, cultural nightlife, and movie and jazz festivals are sure to delight.

For the best of both worlds -- unbelievable natural beauty and exciting cultural events -- Reykjavik is the place to visit. First, however, come to PRIME TRAVEL so we can help you plan an itinerary that will take you to all the places you've only heard about or dreamed of before. We're adapting to the changes happening constantly in the travel industry to ensure our clients get the best of both worlds -- sophisticated technology combined with the caring experience of our travel consultants. We're located at 500 Victory Road, Marina Bay, PH: 617-472-3697.

P.S. The Blue Lagoon, Reykjavik's most famous attraction, is a wonderful spot to enjoy some geothermal bathing any time of year.

Salvage Firm Complaints Placed On File, For Review In 30 Days

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After more than an hour of discussion over complaints against Ernie's Salvage on Isabella St., the License Board placed the matter on file to review in 30 days.

During that time, Bertuchy will have to operate within the confines of court ordered decisions made in 1996.

Those confines include no deliveries made at the yard and no salvage separation done outside the building.

City Solicitor James Timmons told the board that according to abutters Catherine and Jean Hall, Bertuchy has a "pattern of violations within the last five months."

Hall cited deliveries on the site a direct violation stating that Bertuchy is supposed to pick up the salvage and not have it delivered.

She presented pictures of the violations to the board as well as the license plate numbers of the many cars parked there. Other photos showed the presence of some BFI trucks picking up rubbish at another address on Albertina St.

She indicated that some city employees have been known to bring salvage to Bertuchy's which she said is a violation.

She cited a parked car at the side of Bertuchy's building as being there for "five years."

Timmons asked the board to either revoke Bertuchy's license or he abide with the rules

Bruce Knapp, assistant building inspector, told the board that he also observed deliveries being made to Bertuchy's.

In acknowledging some of the complaints, Atty.

David Ribak of Dedham, representing Bertuchy said that some of the violations took place because Ernie Bertuchy had surgery and was not at the place of business. His son, Richard Bertuchy, who had lost his job in June, and who was not experienced in the field, did not understand and violated some of the rules.

He explained that BFI trucks have a hard time turning around the narrow street and sometimes have to pull up on the side of Bertuchy's building to just turn around.

Chairman Joseph Shea at this point asked Ribak if Richard was going to be in the business.

Ribak replied and said that "Ernie is back" and that Richard will no longer be affiliated with the business when he finds another job.

Ribak displayed a petition signed by 53 persons, all who live near the salvage operation who did not complain. He questioned why someone didn't come forward before this. He said there was "not a single complain" against Bertuchy.

He described Ernie as a vigorous, productive person with social contacts and said the bottom line is "everybody has problems."

He added that "although deeply sorry over the illness of Jean Hall," Catherine's mother in law, who also appeared as an abutter, he nonetheless said maybe they "have too much time on their hands" and "not enough activity."

He added that the Halls have "increased sensitivity because they are basically home most of the time, that they "hear and are sensitive to anything" was a contributory factor.

On debunking of some salvage left outside the yard, Ribak said many persons come up to the yard, when the place is closed and just "dump stuff on the outside of the fence."

Ribak proposed to the board that Bertuchy would construct a sign warning people not to come up unsolicited, and that a tree be planted to block the view somehow from the residents.

The subject will be reviewed at the Dec. 12 meeting.

day, Dec. 30, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn. Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.

Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 30.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Saturday, Dec. 30.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch, Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired

Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Robert Derbes for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community during a "life-long love affair" with his native Quincy, 1997.

Robert Curry for his long-time volunteer work in worthy civic and charitable causes as a member of many local organizations, including the Quincy Partnership, Quincy Commission on the Family and the Marie A. Curry Foundation which provides free mammograms for individuals not covered by health insurance.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Saturday, Dec. 30.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Second Millennium Tile Decorating Session Dec. 2

A second ceramic tile decorating session for young people as part of Quincy's Millennium celebration will be held Saturday, Dec. 2.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Millennium Committee, will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Center, One Merrymount Parkway.

Youngsters, from pre-school to grade 12 are invited to participate.

Tiles selected by the committee will become part of Quincy's history. They will be permanently displayed in the new Children's Room in the addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library.

At the first session held in a tent on the Library Lawn, Oct. 28, 299 tiles were painted. Youngsters were asked to paint what they felt was significant in this millennium or what they thought would be significant in the new millennium. Each tile was diverse in projecting the feelings of the youngsters who painted them.

For more information call Committee coordinator Rhonda Merrill at 376-1296 or committee member Linda Colon at 984-2072.

Other committee members are:

Michael Berry, Henry Bosworth, Jane D'Amico, Owen Eaton, Brad Howard, Leonie Howard, Nancy MacDonald, William Morrill, Gloria Noble and Suzanne Webber.

Brendan Bowes Winner Of Prestigious BC High Award

Brendan T. Bowes of Wollaston, a recent graduate of Boston College High School, has won the school's prestigious John Farry Award for displaying "a sustained effort in the pursuit of excellence."

The award is given by the B. C. High Teachers' Association and a private donor to honor the late John Farry, a former member of the Math Department and a 1926 graduate, who initiated the award himself in 1983.

Bowes won four academic awards as the best student in his class in Advanced Placement English Literature, Faith and Justice, Latin IV and 20th Century History.

He also took five athletic prizes including the Coaches' Award as the only two-way starter in football, the Dempsey Award in Athletics, the Scholar Athlete Award, the Conference All Star Award and a football scholarship to Trinity College.

South Shore Savings Bank To Assume Deposits Of Cambridgeport's Quincy Branch

Cambridgeport Bank and South Shore Savings Bank announce they have signed an agreement whereby South Shore Savings Bank will assume the deposits of Cambridgeport Bank's Quincy office at 101 Falls Blvd. in the Roche Bros. Supermarket.

Cambridgeport Bank's license to operate a branch at the Roche Bros. Quincy supermarket location expires in 2001, at which time Cambridgeport Bank will be closing the branch office.

"Our concern is to provide customers with the best transition possible," said Jane Lundquist, Executive Vice President of Cambridgeport Bank. "We think South Shore Savings Bank is the right choice. They are a local bank with a strong community emphasis. Plus, they offer drive-up convenience and have seven other offices in the South Shore area, which should maintain customer convenience," she added.

South Shore Savings Bank plans to move the deposits to its nearby Granite Crossing office at 370 Quincy Ave. in Quincy. The transaction, which is subject to regulatory approval, is expected to be completed by early 2001.

"This is a great opportunity to expand our community banking presence in the Quincy area," said Arthur R. Connelly, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of South Shore Savings Bank.

"Our Granite Crossing office is literally just down the street from Roche Bros. Supermarket. And, of course these new customers will also be able to access their accounts at any of our other branches throughout the South Shore, including the new Quincy office we will be opening at 138 Franklin St. early next year," he added.

Officials of both banks say there will be no interruption in service to customers as a result of this transaction. Accounts will be automatically transferred. Those customers affected by this transaction should be receiving notification shortly. Cambridgeport Bank has indicated there will be no loss of jobs due to the branch being closed.

South Shore Savings Bank is a community bank with eight full service offices in the South Shore area. Cambridgeport Bank is a community bank and has eleven offices located in the Greater Boston area. Both banks are members of the FDIC and members of the DIF.

Christian Oster Earns Eagle Scout Badge

Wollaston's Christian William Oster received his Eagle Scout badge at ceremonies held recently at Wollaston Congregational Church.

Oster, a graduate of North Quincy High School currently enrolled in Quincy College, received scouting's highest honor for his repair efforts at Wollaston Congregational Church, which included work on the church's ceiling, kitchen area, parish hall, and stage and prop areas.

"He just saw that it desperately needed doing," Oster's father Gus said of the church project. "He had over 40 volunteers help him that day. That, to me, speaks more than anything a parent could say."

A scout since the age of six, Oster is the son of Gus and Laurel Oster and is a member of Troop 11, which

Formerly, Mullaney served as treasurer of Quincy 2000.

"I look forward to the year ahead with Jim Mullaney as chairman," said Executive Director Joseph Mannarino. "I expect Quincy 2000's continued growth under his leadership."

Mannarino praised the service of outgoing chairman Uvanitte by highlighting the corporation's accomplishments. "Don served as chairman of the board for three terms during an exciting period of growth for Quincy 2000 and the city of Quincy," Mannarino said. "During Don's tenure the corporation achieved a number of accomplishments, including the expansion of the Loan Pool which lent $2 million to 30 businesses."

Overall, Quincy 2000 has loaned $2.5 million and has created or retained 175 jobs for Quincy companies.

Mannarino added that the implementation of the Commercial Building Renovation and Signage Programs were two other major achievements during Uvanitte's term. The programs, Mannarino said, provided grants totaling $650,000 which generated over $3.5 million in private investment to renovate both the exteriors and interiors of 47 storefronts and 150 signage projects in Quincy.

"I am pleased that Don will continue to serve as a member of the Executive Committee and chairman of the Membership Committee," Mannarino said.

Also re-elected to the corporation's board of directors for three-year terms were: Christine Schuster, president of Quincy Medical Center; Mark Pimeau, senior vice-president of Eastern Bank; Robert Curry, president of Curry Hardware; Ronald Zooleck, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; Edward Keohane, president of Keohane Funeral Home; and Christine Dunn, president of New England Fertilizer Company.

In addition to Mullaney, the following directors were appointed to the corporation's Executive Committee: Donald Briffett, president, Syndicated Technologies, first vice-chairman; Thomas Cataldo, senior vice-president, SSB Realty Trust, treasurer; Donald Uvanitte, vice-president, Allied American Insurance, membership chairman; and Thomas Galvin, past chairman.

The Quincy 2000 Corporation is Quincy's public/private partnership for economic development.

Dec. 4 Council Tax Classification Hearing

classification, as he did last year, and said he and Fantucchio agreed that Dec. 4 was a "very safe date" in terms of having the necessary material available.

At Monday's meeting Council President Paul Harold asked Keenan when that necessary material would be distributed to councillors for review, adding that the sooner councillors could review the figures, the smoother the process would go. Keenan responded that he was not certain of a date but that most of the information was ready and that the mayor would provide it as soon as possible.

Councillors agreed that the Dec. 4 public hearing would give sufficient time for public input, both residential and business, while still ensuring that city tax bills go out by the end of the month.

Classification, whereby commercial property is multiplied by a percentage to shift the tax burden from homeowners to business, became a heated issue when on Dec. 6 of last year councillors voted to amend the mayor's traditional classification percentage of 169 percent to the state maximum of 175 percent.

Last year's state budget crisis and the need to send the tax bills out on time left little time to debate the classification increase, but what particularly infuriated Quincy business leaders was a subsequent special meeting to reconsider the vote which was ended after five minutes, leaving business owners no chance to speak.

"We got bushwacked and we didn't even have a chance to tell you our side of the story," South Shore Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Ronald Zooleck told city councillors who attended a recent meeting of the Quincy Business Council. "This (the increase) was a total surprise. There was no planned process."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who in October had called for a public hearing Dec. 4 on the matter, wanted to know why his request was not supported and was even considered illegal in the opinion of City Solicitor Stephen McGrath. "What has changed from October to November?" Raymondi asked the council in general and Keenan in particular.

There was no change, Keenan said, but the Dec. 4 public hearing date was a date proposed by the mayor, who is charge of submitting the tax rates and classification percentage, and not "at the motion of the council."

Former Mayor and present councillor Frank McCauley concurred with Keenan. "The mayor is the individual who, with his department heads, provides the information we need to set the classification rates," McCauley said.

McCauley called the classification percentage the only debatable issue, adding that he had suggested to Fantucchio that she provide booklets to the council showing what the city's residential and commercial tax rates would be under all percentages from the traditional 169 to the current 175.

Auditor Michael McFarland confirmed for councillors that all state money for the city had been determined and that only state certification of re-evaluated property values was still outstanding.

The 175 percent classification passed last December resulted in a residential property rate of $15.71 per $1,000 valuation and a commercial property rate of $35.25 per $1,000 valuation. Those numbers represent a 47 cent residential increase and $2.97 commercial increase from the rates of the previous year.

'Veterans Rights Diminishing' Says Bellotti

come a loud voice so it will be not so easy to forget what veterans did and what they are owed. If we do not, as time goes on, there'll be little voice left."

Lee Thornton, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, which sponsored the ceremonies, urged parents to see that "the little ones in the audience teach them the meaning of Veterans Day and how important it is to all of us."

"Today we hear questions asked or some of the young about World War II or Korea and they have no idea what we are talking about," he said.

"It is very important that these young people be taught this, these lessons in history that are too easily forgotten. If they are not getting it in school then... the parents have to do the teaching."

City Council President Paul Harold, filling in for Mayor James Sheets in welcoming the crowd, noted that Veterans Day "is more than just a day off from work or school or a day for sales, it's a day to remember the sacrifices that have been made.

"It's important that each generation be reminded that the price of our democracy is eternal vigilance," he said.

"It's something we cannot take for granted and, as the only superpower left in the world, it falls even greater proportion on the United States to protect both our rights and the rights of our allies around the world."

presidency.

In a statement Tuesday, Hanley said:

"There has been much speculation regarding my intention of seeking the City Council presidency. Several city councillors approached me offering their support and requested I seek the presidency.

"Councillors had anticipated that Paul Harold would be successful in his bid for County Register of Deeds. Councillors expressed concern about the lack of leadership and how they would like to take this opportunity to change the direction of the council."

Hanley said he had the votes to win the presidency in January but decided not to seek the post after considering the pressing issues of his ward.

"Given the issues I have to deal with in the upcoming months such as the new Quincy High School, numerous public works projects slated for spring time construction and the day-to-day issues that a ward councillor deals with, I do not think it would be fair to the people who elected me to seek the council presidency at this time."

He added:

"I will not let the personal ambitions of becoming the city council president compromise or interfere with my elected duties of being the Ward 1 councillor.

"My priority is to spend full time representing my people in Ward 1. Therefore, I have thanked my fellow city councillors for having the confidence in me and demonstrating their support but I must withdraw my name from consideration."

RE-DEDICATION CEREMONIES were recently held for the stone commemorating Quincy's Evergreen Program, which for 10 years has allowed Quincy residents to recycle old Christmas trees while receiving new trees to plant across the city. The stone, which was misplaced after being removed from McIntyre Mall to make room for the Memorial Walkway, is now located at the corner of Granite St. and Parkingway. From left are: Councillor Patrick McDermott, who presented a proclamation declaring it "Jay Cashman Day" in Quincy on behalf of Mayor James Sheets; Jay Cashman, businessman and 10-year sponsor of the Quincy Evergreen Program; and Chairman Leo Kelly, who also presented Cashman with a citation for his longtime generosity to the program. (Quincy Sun photo)

Hearing Continued On Used Car License Request

The License Board continued a hearing regarding a request from Anthony DeAngelo doing business as Wholesale Experts of Quincy who applied for a Motor II used car license at 350 Sea St.

The board also read a letter of opposition from Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley.

Chairman Joseph Shea said with the prospect of Dunkin Donuts coming next door, and the Getty Station nearby, Hanley was "getting nervous" and for good reason while struggling with all of the businesses in the area.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Walter White, director of inspection services cited the increase in traffic. Gorman said the area has become "overloaded with traffic and not a nice appearance."

Gorman made a motion to continue until the board has a closer understanding of what the piece of parcel will actually be used for.

Shea said it "wasn't reasonable today" to issue a license until a full board hearing is held with all of the participants.

Considering Storage Space?

Q: I am preparing to sell my home, and I would like to rent storage space so the house will look neat and uncluttered. What types of things should I take into consideration, and how can I maximize the use of this space?

A: Self-storage units are a great way to show off your home, not your "stuff!" You can limit the amount of possessions in your home to make it appear more spacious and attractive. A simple furniture grouping and a few tasteful pieces of art will appeal to buyers. And, your extra storage space may come in handy during a transitional phase from one home to the next. If you plan well, you can fit a lot into a little space.

Shop around and ask about prices, safety measures, access hours and policies. Read any contracts carefully before signing. Before you move anything, visit the facility and check out the space. Ask a company representative for assistance and printed information, as well as advice about the best size for your needs. Then, sketch out a diagram, so you'll know just what goes where. This will save time and energy.

Before storing anything, set down pallets or 2 x 4 wood beams to keep things off the floor. Consider tall shelving to save space.

Eastern Bank Donation To QCAP To Aid First Time Homebuyers

Eastern Bank recently donated $7,500 to Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., (QCAP) to support services for first-time homebuyers in Quincy and surrounding communities.

"This is one of the largest, one-time donations QCAP's First Time Homebuyer Program has received from a community bank," said Beth Ann Strollo, executive director of QCAP. "We are truly grateful for Eastern Bank's generous support of an essential educational resource for families seeking to make their first home purchase."

Since 1990 QCAP's Housing Program has offered workshops and individual counseling designed to educate families of all income levels about the homebuying process. After successfully completing QCAP's homebuyer workshop, participants may be eligible for down payment assistance and a variety of mortgage options offered through the Massachusetts Housing Financing Agency, other financial institutions, local cities and towns, and non-profit organizations.

"Our workshops are designed to take prospective homebuyers through each step of the homebuying process," said Trish Appert, QCAP housing director. "We go right to the professionals in the real estate and financial fields to assist us in delivering a comprehensive homebuyer education program that prepares participants to make independent, educated decisions about their purchase."

Eastern Bank is one of many local financial institutions that provide speakers for QCAP's homebuyer workshops. This year, QCAP will offer more than 10 first time homebuyer workshops, including special sessions geared towards non-English speakers and residents of local public housing complexes. Participants receive a certificate of completion from QCAP that will help them to access a host of low interest and low cost first time homebuyer products and loan packages.

Break Away From The Pack: Tips To Stop Smoking

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts' (BCBSMA) Prevention and Wellness Program suggests these healthy tips to help you quit smoking, so you'll have a longer, more enjoyable, healthier life.

Prepare Yourself

Successful quitters spend time preparing before they actually give up smoking.

- List all the reasons you want to quit. Post this list in a common area or repeat one of those reasons 10 times every night before going to bed.

- Begin to condition yourself physically: start a modest exercise program, drink more fluids, get plenty of rest, and avoid fatigue.

- Set a quit date, perhaps a special day like your birthday, your child's birthday, an anniversary or during the Great American Smokeout this month. However, select a date when you will not be under pressure, but remember--there's no time like the present.

- Choose a method. There are more than a dozen methods designed to help you quit smoking, so talk to your doctor to find out which one best suits you. Whichever method you use, remember, take one day at a time.

Know What To Expect

- Have realistic expectations. Quitting isn't easy, but it's not impossible. If more than 3 million Americans can quit every year, so can you.

- The withdrawal symptoms you experience are good news, and only temporary. This means your body is flushing out the harmful tobacco chemicals. Just remember the Three R's:

- Remind yourself why you quit smoking.

- Rehearse what to do to handle the urge to smoke when challenging situations occur.

- Reward yourself each time you beat the urge to smoke.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias" Why do my hearing aids whistle?

This is probably the most frequently asked question about hearing aids.

The most common reason is that the aid is a bit loose in your ear, allowing the sound to leak out of your ear and re-enter into its own microphone, hence the term "feedback".

Solution: If the aid is under warranty have it recased; if not have it coated with Ultra Violet plastics (preferred material) or something comparable in order to tighten the fit.

The other reasons for "feedback" are a malfunction in the aid itself or the ear may be impacted with wax. Remember this, your hearing aid should not whistle at your comfortable listening level unless you cover it, make exaggerated jaw motions or have a profound loss. Have a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist take care of it, because when it whistles you are losing out on what you want to hear!

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

American Cancer Society Seeks Local Volunteer Drivers

The American Cancer Society's Road to Recovery program is currently seeking Quincy volunteers to drive patients to and from their treatment appointments.

Drivers willing to travel to Boston are urgently needed.

If you have a car and are able to donate any amount of time between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays, you can really make a difference in the life of a cancer patient by becoming a volunteer driver. Driver's availability is matched with the needs of patients who call.

A patient receiving radiation therapy may need to travel to the clinic everyday for up to six weeks. Someone receiving chemotherapy may need weekly treatments for as long as a year.

Through the services of volunteer drivers, who devote hours of their lives to cancer patients, the American Cancer Society's Road to Recovery program is committed to providing cancer patients with rides to and from cancer treatments. Limited reimbursement for parking, tolls and mileage is provided.

For more information or to volunteer as a Road to Recovery driver, contact your local American Cancer Society at (508) 584-9600. Information is also available through the Internet at www.cancer.org or through the American Cancer Society's 24-hour information line at 1-800-ACS-2345.

My Patients Speak For Themselves...

"How do I spell relief? Acupuncture. For years I have suffered with arthritis in the feet, neck and back, not to mention the work-related injuries of carpal tunnel and tendonitis in both arms and hands. North Quincy 'Rebuilds' To 22-4, Division Finalist

By CHRIS POISSON

Following his team's difficult straight-set win over Framingham last Thursday night, North Quincy head coach Jim Rendle took the time to size up the team's next opponent in the Division I Central volleyball final.

"Our future is Saturday night," Rendle said. "Newton North is loaded. We scrimmaged them twice earlier in the season. Very strong team. One of the real favorites expected to go a long way."

"It's going to be a battle. It won't be three games. It's going to go four or five."

Rendle called it — exactly. Last Saturday night at Medway High School played out the way Prophet Rendle envisioned it two days before. His young Red Raiders, the defending Division I state champs, waged a seesaw fight but, unfortunately, finished on the down side of a 3-2 score.

Girls' Volleyball

"It was a match of streaks," Rendle said. "I'd like to quote what the Newton North coach [Richard Barton] said after the game: If it had gone another five minutes, we would have won."

In the decisive fifth game, No. 2 seed North Quincy stormed out to a 5-0 lead only to see it evaporate as top seed Newton North rallied for an 8-6 advantage. The Red Raiders bounced back to even it at 8, but Newton North made the last run of the evening, taking 7 of the next 9 points for a 15-10 win.

"They had an offense that we had a hard time stopping. They just got hot in the end," said Rendle, whose team dropped the first (15-9) and third (16-14) games but took the second (15-11) and fourth (15-10) to set up the show-down.

Senior captain Amy Jellison (6 kills, 28 digs) and sophomores Julia McGunigle (43 digs) and Kathleen McCarthy (14 kills, 17 assists) highlighted a strong team effort.

With only four seniors, it was the contributions from the underclassmen, like McGunigle and McCarthy, that enabled the Red Raiders to make a legitimate run for the title this season. In what was labeled a "rebuilding year," North Quincy finished with a 22-4 record and two wins shy of repeating as state champs.

"Pretty darn good rebuilding year," Rendle said.

Not too many expected North Quincy, with its eight sophomores, two juniors and three freshmen, to still be around at this time of the year. Especially with the loss of seven of its top eight se-

"We had a lot of growth," Rendle said. "We were very competitive. We had a lot of close, hard fought games. They certainly reached my expectations. But I always expect my teams to have good seasons."

To see how this team progressed, look back at the semifinal win over Framingham. After knocking off Brookline and Lincoln-Sudbury with ease in the first two rounds, Framingham, even though it was swept, tested North Quincy in all three games.

"We did bend a few times," Rendle said after that game, "but every time they came close somebody made a big play."

Like sophomore Kristen DiMattio (14 digs, 10 kills) delivering clutch points in Game 1, including a powerful spike that snapped a 14-14 tie on the way to a 16-14 win. Like sophomore Makini Thompson (7 kills) injecting life off the bench in Game 2 with key blocks and spikes down the stretch. Like sophomore Shannon Desmond keeping volleys alive with 25 digs.

"They're young, but they're experienced veterans now," Rendle said. "They've played a very difficult schedule and they have a full season under their belts, playing some of the best teams in the state. We have some sophomores and juniors playing, but they already have as much experience in their careers as a lot of seniors do."

Although they'll lose Lauren Campbell, Kelley Linnane, Heather Lynch and Jellison to graduation, the Red Raiders will have an experienced core coming back next season that will shoot for the school's fifth state championship.

"We're going to miss a few seniors, but we have a real strong base coming back that should benefit us," Rendle said. "Hopefully, they'll remember this [Newton North game] for next year."

Raiders Turn It Over To Canton, Bow 28-19

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School football has been rock bottomed — and we're not talking about the wrestling move.

Tangled in a five-game losing skid, North Quincy headed to Canton last Saturday with thoughts of getting back into the win column before clashing with Quincy on Thanksgiving Day. The winless Bulldogs, which had scored a pathetic 45 points all season while giving up an absurd 287, were the perfect opponents for the Red Raiders.

At least it seemed that way.

In what has become a re-occurring theme in 2000, North Quincy committed two turnovers that led to 14 points and the defense continued to serve up plenty of big plays. And in the end that spelled out a 28-19 loss, marking the lowest point of a very long season.

"Hopefully, we can rebound from this," said head coach Peter Chrisom, whose team fell to 1-8 overall (1-5 league).

North Quincy struck first thanks to Pat Bregoli. The junior intercepted a Canton pass in North Quincy's end and on the first play from scrimmage he took a pass from senior quarterback Max Repoff in the flat and jetted 69 yards for a 7-0 lead.

Canton then scored on its next three possessions. Senior back Mike Garone evened the score with a 36-yard touchdown scamper. The Red Raiders fumbled the ensuing kickoff and one play later Garon raced in from 34 yards out to hand Canton a 14-7 advantage.

North Quincy fumbled the ball on the first play of its next series, leaving Canton 41 yards away from the end zone. Justin Mulligan capped off a 5-play drive with a 1-yard plunge to put his team up 21-7 after the first quarter.

"We have to stop making mistakes," Chrisom said. "We watched film [Monday]. The kids saw their mistakes. They're correctable. They know what they have to do fix them."

In the second frame, Garon fumbled inside his team's 10-yard line. The Red Raiders capitalized when Bregoli scored his second touchdown of the game from 1 yard out on fourth down, cutting the deficit to 21-13.

Garon scored his third touchdown of the game when he broke free for a 73-yard run, extending Canton's lead to 28-13. North Quincy answered before the end of the half when Repoff hooked up with senior Joe Holleran for a 24-yard score.

That was all the scoring as both teams' defenses tightened up in the second half. "In the second half, we came back to play," Chrisom said. "Offensively, we were moving the ball but we just couldn't put it in the end zone."

Presidents Recount Special Teams, Bow To Barnstable

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School football team dug up something it thought it had buried a long time ago.

Remember the special teams? The same special teams that gave up two kickoff returns for touchdowns in the season-opening loss. The same special teams that gave up a punt return for a touchdown in another loss the following week.

Well, that same special teams unit resurrected itself in the third quarter last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Barnstable returned the opening kickoff of the second half for a touchdown and blocked a punt for another score late in the frame to grab a 14-0 lead and an eventual 20-7 win.

"Special teams came back to haunt us tonight," said head coach Bob Noble.

Indeed, it did. Quincy (2-7, 2-4) strutted into the game with consecutive wins and looked like it was finally moving the program forward. For the moment, though, the special teams lapses have returned and they ended up costing Quincy its third game of the season.

"I told them if you take five special teams plays away from us, we're 5-4, not 2-7," Noblesaid. "We've given up five touchdowns on special teams this year. After the first two games of the season we had done a real good job as far as the special teams coverages are concerned. Tonight we didn't do it."

Quincy had walked out of the locker room in the second half in pretty good shape. Although the offense turned the ball over twice — once in the red zone and once in its own end — the defense had stifled Barnstable's offense and held the leading scorer in Division 1, junior back Clinton Brown, to 53 yards on 12 carries and no touchdowns.

QHS Football Alumni Celebration Nov. 22

Quincy High School football alumni are invited to attend this year's Thanksgiving Eve team celebration Wednesday, Nov. 22 at St. Joe's Church, Washington St., Quincy.

There will be a Mass at 6 p.m. immediately followed by a pasta dinner at the Parish Hall.

"Our job was to stop Brown," Noble said. "We stopped him. We stuffed him as far as I'm concerned. He may have gotten a respectable amount of yards, but he didn't hurt us. We faced the No. 1 kid in Division 1 and he didn't do anything."

The kickoff return just broke Quincy's back. Senior Eljay Blount had trouble fielding the squib kick, but he recovered and ran across the field and up the left sideline 80 yards untouched for a 7-0 lead.

"Talk about what takes the wind out of your sails," Noble said. "We kicked it away from Brown. We did exactly what we wanted to do. We squib kicked at him, he fumbled it around and yet he still picks it up and runs across the field and up the field untouched. That's unacceptable."

On the ensuing series, Quincy snapped the ball over Brad DiMartino's head on a punt attempt to give Barnstable prime field position at the Quincy 25. The defense, however, bailed the team out when senior defensive back Dan Dorsey picked off Brown's halfback pass in the end zone on fourth down.

On the following possession Quincy botched another punt when Barnstable's Brian Masotta broke through the line, smothered the ball and Bob Doherty scooped it up and went 3 yards into the end zone to extend the lead to 14-0.

"You can't have a kickoff return for a touchdown," Noble said. "You can't have a blocked punt for a touchdown. There's your game right there."

Somehow, Quincy still had enough fight in them when junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano scored on a 5-yard scamper with 10:53 left in the game. On the drive that began at its 37-yard line, senior back Paul Desmond converted on fourth down with a 32-yard run on the option play.

On the ensuing possession, Barnstable turned to its running game and drove 42 yards to the Quincy 29 where it faced a fourth-and-12 situation. The Presidents had the play defended well, but quarterback Greg Hill managed to slip a pass through defensive back Mark Robertson's hands to Travis Glatki, who scooted along the sideline for the touchdown to seal it.

"Defensively, we played great," Noble said. "But then again you give up fourth-and-12. [Glatki] didn't catch the ball for a first down. If we tackle the kid, we get the ball back and it's still a 14-7 game."

Quincy Girls' Volleyball Honors

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL senior co-captains Christina Keenan (right) and Jacqui Niosi (left) were recently named to the Old Colony League All-Star Volleyball team. Keenan, a starting middle hitter for the past two seasons, led the team in kills and blocks. Niosi, a two-time league all-star and four-year varsity starter, has led Quincy in assists the past four seasons. They are shown here with head coach Christine Barrett.

SENIOR KATHRYN NOBLE recently received the Old Colony League Sportsmanship Award. She was a first-year varsity outside hitter at Quincy.

Quincy-North Football Hall Of Fame To Induct 8 New Members Nov. 21

Eight former Quincy and North Quincy high school football players will be inducted into the Hall of Fame Tuesday, Nov. 21 at 6:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, Quarry St.

The 2000 inductees are: Walter Pecce ('42), Ron Dearden ('55), Claude Chase ('61) and Bob Mudge ('82) of Quincy, and Dr. Edward Cooke ('39), Jack Kelly ('55), Jack Brown ('80) and Matt McNamara ('87) of North Quincy.

Special inductees include former athletic director

Marty Finnigan, who also served as an assistant football coach and basketball coach for Quincy, and Joe Ruscio of North Quincy.

In addition, Dr. Linda Brown Wilson (QHS, '65) and Kendra Donovan Fuller (NQHS, '77) will be inducted into the Hall of Fame as the first two former cheerleaders ever chosen.

Dr. Wilson, former interim president of Quincy College, is a counselor at Quincy High School who also teaches evening classes at Quincy College and Northeastern University. Fuller works at Putnam Investments in Boston as the site manager for Boston, London and Tokyo.

Tickets for the 17th annual Quincy High School/North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame Seniors Dinner cost $25 per person. Cocktails will begin at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m.

To purchase tickets call Ron Ivil at (781) 340-9880. Make checks payable to the Quincy/North Quincy Football Hall of Fame.

All-City Middle School Wrestling Tourney Saturday

The All-City Wrestling Tournament for middle school students will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Center for Technical Education gym.

Wrestlers from Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Point and Sterling will be competing in a double-elimination format for ribbons in their respective weight classes. Wrestlers have been practicing three days a week for three weeks in preparation for the tourney.

Several volunteer wrestlers from Quincy High School — including juniors Joe Hern and Mike Murphy — have helped the coaches. The coaches are John Sullivan at Point, Mario Venturilli at Atlantic, Ally Sleiman and Lou Venturilli at Sterling and Mike Gendron at Broad Meadows.

Derek Murphy's Hat Trick Lifts Barry's Deli To 6-4 Win

Derek Murphy netted a hat trick to lead Barry's Deli to a 6-4 win over Paul Harold Club in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division play. Nick Seibillio (assist), Kevin McDonagh, Vincent Cameron and Kyle Roach also found the back of the net.

For Paul Harold Club, Colin Ryan (assist), Ryan Gorman (assist), Michael Whittmore and Nicole Haskins scored. Robert Green and Adam Moreschi tallied assists.

Quincy Sheet Metal topped Doran & Horrigan, 6-3, behind Andrew Beaton's two goals. Wayne Milford (assist), Brian Bowe (assist) and Andrew Stacy also lit the lamp. Justin Lawless, Conor Flaherty, Sean Grady and Nick Furey picked up assists. For Doran & Horrigan,

Mite House Hockey

Steven Brown registered a hat trick. Brenda Morrissey had an assist.

Kevin Keith pocketed two goals in Bruce Ayers Club's 8-3 win over Jay Cashman. Owen Kileullen (2 assists), Brian Kileullen (2 assists), Joe Alibrandi (assist), Zachary Baxter, Matt Brundige and Connor Flynn added the other goals.

For Jay Cashman, Kenny Adams, Dylan Baker and Matt Bridgemans scored. Justin Keenan, Dan O'Brien and Tim Young each had an assist.

Kieman Hannon scored a hat trick in Hayes' Dream's 4-4 stalemate with Lydon's. Kevin Magoon added the other goal. James Dunn, Ross Rodrigue, John Conroy and Ryan Doherty notched assists.

For Lydon's, Patrick Adducci scored a pair of goals and Brendan Haines and Patricia Shea each had one. Michael Adducci collected two assists and David O'Connell, James Finn and Brendan Deasy had one apiece.

Kiley Real Estate tied Doherty & White Ins., 4-4, as Shawn Dowling tallied a hat trick. Jim Scribi netted the other goal. Tom Ridge and Dan Murphy had assists.

For Doherty & White Ins., Matt Rodriguez scored two goals and TJ Higgins and Jared Sheils had one apiece. Trevor Richardson, Leroy Wallace and Chris Baker gathered assists.

Quincy Mite B's Edge Wellesley To Remain Unbeaten

The Quincy Mite B travel hockey team recently held on for a 4-3 win over Wellesley at the South Boston MDC rink.

In its first four games, Quincy (5-0) defeated South Boston, Tri-County, Parkway and Brookline by a combined score of 37-5.

Matthew Troy staked Quincy to an early 1-0 lead, but Wellesley evened the score minutes later. Goalie Tom Ridge came up with several huge saves to keep the score tied at 1 at the end of the first period as Quincy suffered a few defensive lapses.

In the second, forward Timothy Young tipped in a rebound and center Mike Gates added a goal to give Quincy a 3-1 lead after two periods.

Early in the third, Brendan Glynn increased Quincy's lead to 4-1. Quincy was in control of the game as it made the most of its chances in the offensive end and played solid defense.

Quincy, however, began to tire and Wellesley took some chances and ended up scoring two goals in a span of 5:22 to cut the deficit to 4-3 with 34 seconds remaining in the game. Wellesley pulled its goalie for the extra skater but Quincy held on for the win.

Head coach Doug Haskins said he was pleased with the effort of every player on the team.

QUINCY YOUTH FOOTBALL and two of its founders, William Meyers and Joseph Desmond, were recently presented citations and commendations from the House, Senate, City Council and Mayor in observance of the league's 50th anniversary. From the left, Rep. Bruce Ayers; Thomas Koch, executive director of Quincy Park Department; Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton; Mike Dunlea and Tom Ford, representing Meyers; Joseph Desmond; Brian Buckley, NQHS athletic director; Dan Morrell, commissioner/chairperson of QYF Board of Directors; Sean Glennon, assistant commissioner and member of QYF Board of Directors.

North Quincy's Jeff Bartoloni Qualifies For Track All-States

North Quincy's Jeff Bartoloni qualified for All-States last Saturday with an 11th-place finish in the EMass Division I cross-country championships at rain-soaked Franklin Park.

Bartoloni, who recorded the second fastest time (16:48) on the South Shore, will compete in the All-State Championships Saturday at Grafton.

The boys' team placed 17th out of 30 teams and was the third Old Colony League team to finish, behind Barnstable (10th) and Silver Lake (13th).

Brian Breslin was 35th. Other competitors were Steve Barkowski, John Fidalgo and Paul Griffith.

On the girls' side, Natalie

Caron ran her finest race of the season (21:43.8) to finish 22nd, missing the All-States by four places and less than 10 seconds.

The girls finished 22nd out of 35 teams. Other finishers were Brenna O'Brien, Sarah Wilson, Beth Goodrich, Meghan Haines, Lisa Rubino and Lauren Ready. Despite the slow footing, most of the girls ran their best race of the year.

Three Quincy Track Club Members Advance To Regionals

Three members of the Quincy Track Club advanced to the Regional Championships by placing in the top 25 in their respective age groups at the New England Junior Olympics Sunday in Nashua, N.H.

Bethany Keenan (12th) and Nicole Affannato (22nd) advanced in the Bantam girls' 3000-meter run as did David Allen (15th) in the Bantam boys' division. The Regional Championships will be held at Saratoga Springs.

Over 1,000 athletes participated in the event, which was sponsored by the Nashua Police Athletic League and the Gate City Striders Running Club.

Other competitors in Bantams for Quincy were Liz Bock, Kayla McGonagle, David Westernman and Trevor Sullivan.

Kayla Martin, Sarah Sullivan and Jessica Johnson raced in Midget girls, and Eric Wilson competed in Youth boys.

Couches Geoff Hennessy, Kirk Vaughan and Dave Allen accompanied the athletes.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Recently I came across a statement by that most inspiring of women, Helen Keller. Living in a world in which there was neither sound or light, she became one of the world's greatest figures. Her statement awakens us to the possibilities of human nature at its best... I pass her statement to you without comment... It speaks for itself...

"I, too, have my humble testimony, and I shall be most happy if through a word of mine even one individual gains a sweeter sense of God's presence or a keener zest for mastering the difficulties of outward environment. As I wander through the dark, encountering difficulties, I am aware of encouraging voices that murmur from the spirit realm. I sense a holy passion pouring down from the spring of Infinity. I thrill to music that beats with the pulses of God. Bound to suns and planets by invisible chords, I feel the flame of eternity in my soul. Here, in the midst of the everyday air, I sense the rush of eternal rains. I am conscious of the splendor that binds all things of earth to all things of heaven - immersed by silence and darkness, I possess the light which shall give me vision a thousandfold when death sets me free," wrote Miss Keller.

Pre-arranging: peace of mind for every family

ONE GUARANTEE TWO OPTIONS

As early as 1940, we began helping families pre-arrange their funeral expenses. So, the concept is not new to us. But today, there are payment options that some funeral homes don't offer.

Irrevocable Trusts—Many financially secure persons appreciate making one payment or several payments over a short time period. For these persons, we can offer an interest-free plan and payments spread over twelve months. (Endorsed by Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a way to reduce assets and meet state and federal requirements for Medicaid or nursing home care.)

Flexible, Tax-Free Insurance Plans—Budgeting your payments over additional time offers an affordable way for other families to pre-arrange. We can help structure an individualized plan with reasonable premiums, payable within three, five or ten years.

With either pre-arrangement option, protection begins immediately. Since 1917, we've provided the highest degree of understanding and personal assistance to South Shore families. Call us at 617-773-2728 for a free pre-arrangement consultation. We'll help find a plan that suits your family's individual needs.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
There's no need for that suspicious Aries mind of yours to work overtime, either at home or on the job. Remember that appearances are often deceiving.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
A new opportunity might seem riskier than you would like. Examine all sides, then rely on your good sense to guide you to make the right decision.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
You might be enjoying your new relationship, but if you're still unsure of a commitment, continue to hold off — your instincts are usually right.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
You feel under pressure these days. But be careful not to blow off steam in a way you'll later regret. Opt for a calm discussion to air grievances.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
A difficult situation will need more than your personal charm to resolve it. Put that Leonine intelligence to work, and you'll soon come up with a prudent solution.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
A friend might resent your well-intentioned attempt to offer advice. Back off and let things settle down before you try again. Be cautious about investments.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
Be careful about assuming added obligations at work and/or in your personal life without first checking to see whether you can handle the extra load.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
A rejection is no reason for you to give up. Check to see what went wrong, and make adjustments. Then try again — success is in your aspect.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Things should be looking up at work, as your ideas begin to find favor with both bosses and co-workers. Romantic aspects also improve.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
Be more loving with your spouse or partner to prove that you're not taking him or her for granted. A business deal needs careful scrutiny.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
As the holidays approach, including some who would take unfair advantage of your generous nature. An old injury flares up and needs attention.

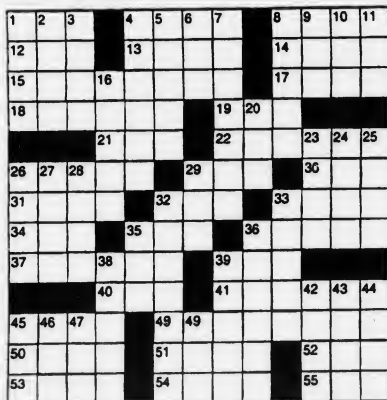

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Expect to see some old friends at upcoming holiday gatherings, including some who would take unfair advantage of your generous nature. An old injury flares up and needs attention.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK:
You have a strong sense of responsibility, and whatever you decide to do, you do it to the best of your ability.

Words Of Loss, Tribute For Judge Leo J. Lydon

When 44-year old Juvenile Court Judge Leo Joseph Lydon died Friday in a tragic automobile accident in Randolph, the enormous loss was felt instantly by family, friends, and his fellow justices and co-workers at Quincy District Court.

But a bouquet of flowers and card -- left anonymously at the court house door by the family of one of the juvenile defendants with whom Judge Lydon had dealt -- demonstrated that Judge Lydon's compassion was as great as the esteem in which he was held in the halls of Quincy District Court.

"He obviously touched this family in a special way," said Judge Mark Coven, presiding justice of Quincy District Court. "Here is a person whose life is better for what Judge Lydon was able to do and this letter, this simple tribute, is not only the measure of a man and of a judge but, hopefully, the measure of a court."

"Judge Lydon was a very caring and compassionate man who genuinely wanted to help kids in trouble. It's been a tremendous loss and everyone in the court house is still in shock at the loss of such a good man."

The letter, accompanied by a bouquet of multi-colored carnations and signed "Thank you, A Defendant's Family and Defendant," reads:

"Dear Judge Lydon ... I woke up this morning and I read that you had left. I told my son what had happened. "He had these words: 'It only happens to the good ones.' That shows you were fair and touched his heart as you touched ours. You went beyond your job and really tried to make a difference in our family. "Thanks for being there. You will be missed."

The simple demonstration of appreciation touched Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, who found the flowers and note over the weekend while on official business for the court. "The writer of that note went out of his way," Tobin said. "The words speak for themselves."

Tobin praised Judge Lydon, who had been at Quincy District Court for roughly two years, as a man well respected by justices, staff, and attorneys alike. "He was well-loved," Tobin said. "He would come out of session and just chit-chat with people, a real down-to-earth guy. When the girls in the office heard (of the accident), they just broke down. It was as if the clock had stopped."

Massachusetts State Police Sgt. Stephen Long, a friend of Judge Lydon and the Lydon family, remembered Lydon as "tough but fair" with a great sense of humor and a strong attachment to his Savin Hill roots. "He was always calm and reassured, a gentle man, but at the same time tough," Sgt. Long recalled. "I know those two don't usually go together, but that was Leo Lydon."

Sgt. Long said that, less than a month ago, Judge

Lydon had addressed the Norfolk County Police Prosecutors, recalling the people who had helped him in his own life and emphasizing that "no case is hopeless, no person is hopeless, and one person can make a difference."

"You could have heard a pin drop," said Sgt. Long.

Judge Lydon was appointed to the Massachusetts Juvenile Court by Governor Paul Cellucci in February of 1999 after serving 18 years as a general practice lawyer. A member of the St. Boniface Haiti foundation, he recently spent an April vacation in Haiti assisting the impoverished villages there.

Judge Lydon is survived by his parents, William X. and Margaret T. (McCann) Lydon of Dorchester; four brothers, William X. Lydon, Jr., of California, Kevin E. Lydon and Martin L. Lydon, both of Dorchester, and Gerard T. Lydon of Arlington; three sisters, Kathleen T. O'Toole of Maine and Marie A. Gould and Bernadette M. McDonough, both of Hanson; an aunt, Sr. Marie McCann, CSJ, of Brighton; and many nephews, nieces, other relatives, and friends.

A funeral Mass was scheduled for Wednesday at 11 a.m. at St. Margaret's Church. Burial was scheduled for Cedar Grove Cemetery, Dorchester.

Funeral arrangements were by the Murphy Funeral Home, 1020 Dorchester Ave., Dorchester.

Donations may be made to the Sisters of St. Joseph, 637 Cambridge St., Brighton 02135.

Punch Card Ballots And Hand Counts Florida Election Problems Bring Back Memories Of Delahunt-Johnston Race

By TOM HENSHAW

(Echoes of the Johnston-Delahunt primary election of 1996 are being heard in Florida where punch card ballots and hand counts are playing a role in the 2000 presidential election between Al Gore and George Bush. Here is the story:)

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

PHILIP JOHNSTON

It was a crowning moment in the life of Phil Johnston of Marshfield, the former state rep and New England director of the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services.

He was on stage in Quincy beside such political powers as First Lady Hillary Clinton and U. S. Senator Ted Kennedy, listening to them endorse and praise him as the Democratic candidate for Congress from the 10th District.

It had been a rocky road to this point.

Johnston had defeated a favored opponent, District Attorney William Delahunt of Quincy, by a mere 266 votes in the Sept. 17, 1996, primary. A recount had confirmed his triumph, this time by 175 votes.

A Johnston victory to succeed the retiring Congressman Gerry Studds in the November election was virtually assured since the opposition, State Rep. Edward Teague, was a Republican in a heavily Democratic district.

But there was one small cloud still hovering over Johnston's success.

About 900 punch card ballots in the town of Weymouth, where Delahunt was expected to be strong, were still contested. The stylus had failed to go all the way through some punch cards and the counting machines had rejected the ballots as blanks.

The Delahunt people had gone to court, claiming that a hand count of the ballots revealed indentations that indicated the voter clearly intended to cast his ballot for Delahunt but had been frustrated by a defective voting machine.

As the Democratic rally on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library reached a crescendo, a murmur started on the outskirts of the crowd and worked its way through to the stage.

Superior Court Judge Elizabeth Donovan had awarded most of the ballots to Delahunt and the six justices of the state Supreme Judicial Court confirmed her ruling that Delahunt had won by 108 votes.

Despite his disappointment, Johnston was gracious in defeat.

"Although I disagree strongly with it, I accept the court's decision," he said in a statement. "I congratulate Mr. Delahunt on his victory and I wish him well."

"The system has got to go," said Delahunt and Secretary of State William Galvin eliminated punch-card balloting statewide in the few communities that still used it in favor of vote count by the more reliable optical scanner.

Quincy had already abandoned the punch-card system at the urging of City Clerk Joseph Shea and the 1996 primary was only the second time the optical scanner system was used throughout the city.

"I had been urging it for a couple of years," said Shea. "I wasn't happy with the punch cards. We used the scanner for the first time in the presidential primary in March, 1996, but this was the first time in an important election."

Earlier this week, Galvin submitted an affidavit to Florida officials detailing the 10th District's experience with hand counts and the handling of disputed ballots.

"I think the public needs to see this," said Galvin. "This is not just a Florida issue. This Delahunt-Johnston case is in point. It's a major court, the SJC of Massachusetts, deciding that hand-counting was valid. The key to the whole thing is using the 'intent of the voter' standard."

And, oh, yes, Delahunt went on to defeat Teague by 54 per cent to 42 per cent in November to become the first Quincy resident since John Quincy Adams to serve in Congress.

Nearly 100 Units In Christmas Parade Sunday

The 48th annual Christmas Festival Parade with 23 floats, 22 bands, 23 specialty units, 17 color guards, and Santa himself will step off Sunday at 12:30 p.m.

The parade will start at Elm and School Sts. in Quincy Center and proceed down Hancock St. to East and West Squantum Sts. at North Quincy High School.

Immediately following the parade, the Band and Float Awards Ceremony will take place at the North Quincy High School Auditorium.

The theme of this year's parade is "Old Memories — New Dreams."

Roy Lind, a graduate of Quincy High School and longtime voice of Radio Station WJDA who recently retired after 39 years, will be the grand marshal. He will ride with members of his family in the parade.

Also riding in the parade will be 93-year old Gladys Moore of West Quincy, who submitted the winning theme for the parade, accompanied by her daughter, granddaughter, and great granddaughter. Winners of the public school poster contest will also take part in the parade.

Rain date for the parade

ROY LIND

is Sunday, Dec. 3.

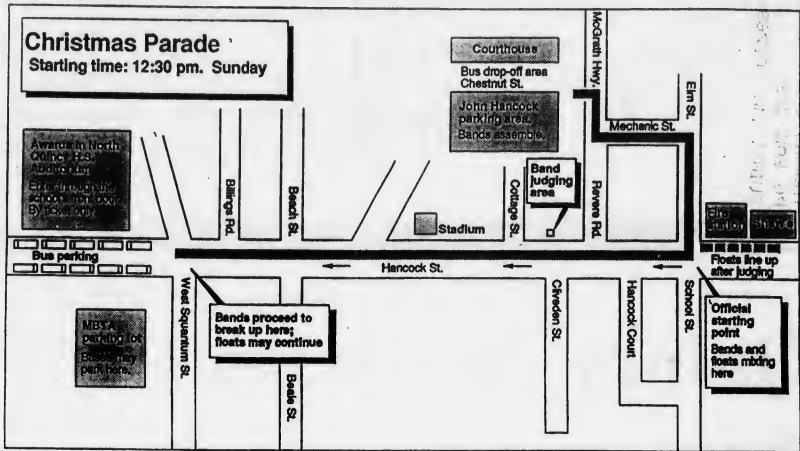

Quincy's Asian population will be represented this year with a specialty unit featuring dragon and lion dances.

George White is the chairman of the Christmas Festival Committee and William Morrill is parade coordinator.

Fourteen high school bands and eight other bands will participate.

High School Bands: Quincy, North Quincy, Douglas, New Bedford Senior, Weymouth, Immaculate Heart of Mary, Bishop Hendricken, David Prouty, Chicopee, Pittsfield, New Bedford Junior, Bourne, Peabody, and Holbrook.

Other Bands: Brockton Legion Post, The Poma, Boston City Club Band, 103rd Electrician Fife & Drum

Band, Crann Tara Pipe Band, Canton Legion Post, Boston Police Gaelic Bag Pipe Band, and Waltham American Legion Post.

School St. to Gay St. will be closed to vehicular traffic at 11 a.m. Sunday for the parade to form.

Parking Banned On Several Streets During Parade

Parking will be banned and towing strictly enforced on several streets Sunday because of the Christmas parade.

Parking will be prohibited from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on both sides of the following streets:

- Hancock St. from School St., northerly to Kendall St.
- Quincy Ave. from School St., southerly to Faxon Park Rd.
- Scammell St. from Quincy Ave., easterly to South St.

- Elm St. from Hancock St., easterly to Washington St.
- Mechanic St. from Revere Rd., southerly to Elm St.
- Revere Rd. from Mechanic St., easterly to Washington St.
- Dennis Ryan Parkway from Revere Rd., northerly to Foster St.

Quincy Municipal Credit Union, Citizens Bank and Mass Coop Bank, Firestone, Granite City Electric, and John Hancock parking lots will be restricted to floats and parade assembly only, starting at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Holmes St. Two-Way During Parade Sunday

Holmes St., North Quincy, will be a two-way street for motor vehicle traffic Sunday during the Quincy Christmas Parade.

The provision is for that day only to allow the general public access to Victory Supermarket and West Coast Video during the parade.

Asian Community Takes Part In Parade

Quincy's Asian population is well represented in the 48th annual Quincy Christmas Parade Sunday.

In the line will be a contingent of adults and students comprised of Chinese, Vietnamese, and Filipinos.

The groups will be attired in the colorful costumes of their various cultures. To the Chinese, the dragon represents an incomparable strength that can dispel bad luck and ward off evil. Dragon dances are performed during festivals.

Two lions will also be dancing in the parade and they represent the dispersal of demonic forces and disaster and the attraction of good fortune. Twelve people will man the dragon and there will be two people manning each lion.

This is the first time in several years that this part of Quincy's Asian community has participated in the parade as part of the specialty units.

Christmas Lighting Friday Night

The holiday season officially begins in Quincy Friday with the turning on of lights on Constitution Common in front of City Hall.

The lights will be switched on in front of First Parish Church, across the street, at 8 p.m.

Prior to the lighting ceremony, there will be a children's program beginning at 6:50 p.m. featuring a Christmas program for children and a "Spunkie The Clown" Puppet Show. Costumed characters will distribute candy canes to the youngsters starting at 6:30 p.m.

Officials and winners of the elementary schools' Christmas poster contest will be introduced at 7:15 p.m. The winning contest posters will be displayed in the windows of The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St. Honorable mention posters will be on exhibit at Hancock St. stores.

A Quincy public school Select Choral Group will present Christmas season music at 7:35 p.m., concluding with a sing-a-long.

Santa himself will make a brief visit between 7:55 and 8 p.m.

In the event of inclement weather, the lighting ceremony will be held at Presidents Place Galleria, Hancock St., across from First Parish Church.

Whether Soil Testing Adequate Major Issue Site Concerns For New QHS Still Under Debate

By CRAIG SALTERS

As the City Council prepares for a Dec. 5 discussion of the new Quincy High School project complete with a vote on $65 million in project appropriations, whether or not to build the school on a former industrial waste dump off Quincy Ave. remains a controversial issue.

Adding his voice to those in opposition is Duane Wanty, LSP, a senior project manager in the Corporate Environmental Affairs Department of the Gillette Company, who told School Committee members at their meeting Nov. 15 that, in his opinion, there had been inadequate testing of groundwater and VOC's (Volatile Organic Compounds) at the site and that, at the very least, more thorough and modern testing was needed before the project moved forward.

But Wanty's claims are disputed by Weston and Sampson Engineers' Kerry Tull, P.G., L.S.P., project manager for the site, who said the site has been thoroughly tested and has met both the DEP and his century old company's professional standards.

DPW Commissioner David Colton also took issue with Wanty, declaring the high school thoroughly tested and pointing out that the 80-acre Highpoint development had less than 200 samples taken whereas the 16-acre high school site will have over 500 samples. "It's just not fair to say that this site was not characterized well," Colton said.

In a recent interview with the Sun, Wanty said key issues were:

See Related Story On Page 27

- That, given the 25 years of industrial waste dumping and its intended use as a high school, inadequate testing had been done so far.

- That the Quincy Ave. parcel "is not your average contaminated site" and by all rights should be labeled a Tier 1A site by the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP).

- That "there is not only one way to investigate a contaminated site," explaining further that some of the data compiled is more than 10 years old and that, for a high school site, "only the most rigorous state-of-the-art methods should be accepted."

"It [this] were a commercial and industrial site, I wouldn't have a problem with what's going on," Wanty said. "But when you're talking about building a high school, a different kind of standard applies."

Wanty, who is not a Quincy resident but lives in the South Shore, emphasized that he was speaking as a private citizen and not as a representative of the Gillette Company. He became involved with the project only recently, he said, when co-workers asked him to review the reports and documents associated with the proposed remediation of the Quincy

Ave. site, which was used by former shipyard owner Bethlehem Steel as a dumpsite until the early 1960's and is known to contain significant amounts of

RESTORING EDEN, a newly created environmental club of Eastern Nazarene College, spent the day recently cleaning up sections of the Black's Creek Salt Marsh area near the Beechwood Knoll School and Caddy Park. Colton: Winfield House Site Also Has Contaminants

The Winfield House Site, currently owned by Eastern Nazarene College and mentioned as a possible alternative site for a new Central Middle School, is contaminated with PCB's and petroleum hydrocarbons, confirms DPW Commissioner David Colton.

"The groundwater is contaminated, fairly significantly," Colton said of the roughly six acre parcel located at the intersection of Hancock St. and Merrymount Parkway (formerly Southern Artery).

Colton said that the property, which once housed industrial buildings, underwent some level of remediation in the early 1990's shortly after Eastern Nazarene College purchased the property.

PCB's and some forms of hydrocarbons, Colton said, are carcinogenic.

The commissioner said discovery of contaminants was the result of an analysis of the site done after the Nov. 15 meeting of the School Committee, where the parcel was once again brought up as a potential site for Central Middle School, as opposed to the current plan of renovating the current Quincy High

That Night In The Kennedy Compound

It has been 40 years and it still bothers me.

And, it probably always will.

I still have the feeling that the Secret Service really wasn't doing its job protecting President-elect John F. Kennedy that night -- Nov. 10, 1960 -- at the Kennedy compound in Hyannisport.

And that makes me still wonder if they were doing their job that day three years later -- Nov. 22, 1963 -- in Dallas.

If Lee Harvey Oswald or another assassin had been in the Kennedy compound that night 40 years ago, I wonder if they would have known it.

I remember standing in the living room of former Ambassador Joseph Kennedy's house in the compound waiting for the next President of the United States to appear and wondering where all the Secret Service men were.

I had good reason to wonder. I wasn't supposed to be in the house. And, I thought one might check on me. But no one did.

I was a reporter covering the election but I could have been standing there waiting for Kennedy with a gun in my pocket.

Word was that 18 Secret Service agents had been assigned to protect him. That they reportedly had moved in swiftly after Richard Nixon finally conceded in the see-saw election. The election that was to be remembered as "that close one." Until this year's Al Gore-George W. Bush cliffhanger.

But if the Secret Service agents were around the Kennedy house -- outside or inside -- they were really secretive about it. They were invisible. No one was checking on anyone.

Let me go back to Nov. 10, 1960 and maybe you might wonder a little more about what happened -- and how -- in Dallas 37 years ago today.

Earlier that day, John Fitzgerald Kennedy as the 35th President-to-be, held his first press conference at the National Guard Armory in Hyannis which had served as press headquarters for the election.

Out of the conference came such headlines as:

"Kennedy Says Election Repudiates No One."

"Hoover, Dulles To Stay."

"Ike Asks JFK Meet Him Soon On Takeover."

Hyannis and Hyannisport had become international news headlines.

Nixon had conceded. The long election results sweatout was over.

Now the whole Kennedy clan had gathered at the armory to hear the President-elect make a short victory statement and talk with the press.

Standing proudly at his side was Jacqueline, 31, radiant and expecting their second child in a few weeks.

On the rostrum were his parents, Joseph and Rose Kennedy; his brother, Bobby with Ethel; Ted, sisters Eunice Shriver, Jean Smith, Pat Lawford and maybe, somewhere in the background, brother-in-law Peter Lawford.

Kennedy's victory statement gave a preview hint of the theme of his inaugural address as he said:

"The election may have been a close one. But I think that there is a general agreement by all of our citizens that the supreme national effort will be needed in the years ahead to move this country safely through the 1960s."

(... "the supreme national effort will be needed was the forerunner of "And so my fellow Americans, ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country.")

I was replaying that scene in my mind as I stood there in Joseph Kennedy's living room that night waiting for Kennedy to appear. Waiting with me were maybe 40 or more other newsmen.

But at least three of us were not supposed to be there. We were party crashers. The invitation had been extended to members of the press that had traveled with Kennedy throughout the campaign. Not the local press.

I was covering the election for the Boston Traveler, Dave Farrell for the Boston Herald and the late Frank Kelly of Wollaston was taking photos for both newspapers.

The three of us decided that a party in the Kennedy compound with the next President of the United States was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and we weren't going to miss it.

The bus to take the invited press to the Kennedy compound was parked outside the armory. The three of us had press credentials but only to get into the armory for the actual election coverage.

We grabbed a bite to eat, walked down the street and stepped aboard the bus. No Secret Service agent to ask to see our credentials. When the bus arrived at the compound, we walked into Joseph Kennedy's house with the others. No one checked on us there, either.

Anyone, it seems, could have gotten aboard that bus that night and rode into the compound.

None of the Kennedys were in sight when we arrived. So we started browsing around the living room. On the wall were framed letters written by President Franklin Roosevelt to Ambassador Kennedy.

On the fireplace mantle was a model of the USS Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., the destroyer named after the son whose planned political career went down in flames with his Navy plane in a dangerous World War II mission.

On a table in the connecting dining room was a punch bowl and some cups. Someone said to help ourselves. So we did.

Everyone then headed back into the living room. I didn't care too much for the punch and was returning my cup to the dining room table when a screen door leading into the room swung open and in stepped John F. Kennedy.

He walked over to me and we shook hands. "Congratulations, Mr. President," I said, even though he of-

President."

His eyes were bloodshot, the apparent sign of a sleepless night and the long agonizing hours waiting for the final results of an election that could have gone either way.

We were alone in the room for a few moments. The others then spotted him and we were quickly surrounded.

One reporter asked what he thought made the difference in the final outcome. "He (Nixon) stayed around too long in the South," he replied. (Stayed wasn't the exact word he used.)

Soon other members of the Kennedy family appeared.

Jacqueline, beautiful and pregnant with John; Rose Kennedy, looking as trim as the Kennedy sisters; Bobby and Ted and Sargent Shriver. But Joseph Kennedy was no where to be seen.

Kennedy revealed he was flying to Palm Springs, Fla., the next morning. He said he planned to relax "and maybe play a little golf."

"But don't mention the golf," he laughed. He didn't want the country to think it was getting another golfer for President.

I got to chatting with Rose Kennedy and we were soon discussing Presidents John and John Quincy Adams. She wanted to know all about them and Abigail. I told her all I knew and said I would have Quincy's city historian, William C. Edwards, send her more information. (Which he did.)

Someone then produced a variety of Christmas gift wrapped bottles of liquor from under the kitchen counter. And then a sight you could never forget: the next President of the United States pouring drinks and carrying ice cubes for the press.

It was a night to cherish and fondly remember.

The next morning, the Kennedy party flew out of Barnstable Airport in Hyannis aboard the family plane, "Caroline."

I remember seeing Joseph Kennedy there. And Caroline, not then quite three, and as cute as a little Shirley Temple.

I got one more chance to talk with Kennedy before the plane took off. Kenneth O'Donnell, his right arm, and Pierre Salinger, his press secretary, were standing behind us as we talked.

"Good luck, Mr. President," I said to him again as we shook hands. "Thank you," he said, breaking into a wide grin, enjoying being called "Mr. President" for the second time.

After the plane was airborne, I told Farrell and Kelly I planned to someday write the story of how we crashed the party at the Kennedy compound. But I would wait until he was out of office, I said, because the party that night was "off the record."

I figured it would not be for at least eight years before I got around to writing the story. I thought for sure Kennedy would be re-elected to a second term. And, of course, would be a world famed figure for years to come.

It still pains me on each anniversary of his murder in Dallas -- like this 37th -- because on each anniversary I recall also telling Farrell and Kelly:

"And, do you know what I'm going to write about? I'm going to tell how we got by the Secret Service that night. And, I'm going to tell how I could have assassinated John Fitzgerald Kennedy over the punch bowl in the dining room of his father's house."

But who could have foreseen back then as I said those words what was ahead in Dallas just three years later?

I can't stop wondering about the Secret Service that night in Hyannis. And I can't help wondering about them that day in Dallas.

It keeps bothering me.

What The American Flag Means To Me

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The Quincy Lions Club recently hosted the local level of the state-wide Lions Club Speech Competition at the Church of the Presidents in Quincy Square. This was a wonderful chance to witness the terrifically creative ex- pression of high school stu- dents from Quincy, North Quincy and The Woodward School as they expounded upon this year's theme, "The American Flag, What It Means To Me."

It is fitting that we con- sider this topic during the time that we as a nation en- gage in the exercising of one of our fundamental freedoms of expression at the ballot box and observe a bloodless transition of government. The securing and maintaining of that right however has not been without the shed- ding of blood and so it is also fitting that this speech com- petition occur around the marking of Veterans Day and the remembrance of those who were prepared to bear any burden, pay any price and fight any foe in the fur- therance of our free society.

The them has prompted me to consider my own sense of what the American Flag means. With the growing loss each day of so many World War II veterans, I offer the very personal reflection of which follows:

His eyes are that blue of the sky on a windless mid- summer afternoon and they twinkle like the stars on a clear moonlit night. His hair is the white of the first fresh fallen snow. His blood runs red and did from the shrap- nel wounds whose scars I can still see on his face and leg from a battle 56 years ago October in the flak laden skies over Germany.

In pictures I see a young man in Army Air Corps green standing at an airfield in Bedford, England beside his B-17 bomber named "Five By Five." Like so many thou- sands upon thousands of other young Americans he did what was necessary, in a land an ocean away, to safe- guard and secure our free- dom. To this day he ques- tions why he survived that hell on earth a half-century ago and so many of his bud- dies didn't. Why one friend who did come back, did so only to commit suicide jumping from a building in New York City, unable to readjust to civilian life.

As I recall the wartime stories I realize that there is nothing abstract about what our flag means to me. It is not a notion, a thought or a phi- losophy. It is a breath, and a beat, and a hand I can clasp and I thank God for all the sacrifices of my dad and all the men and women of every generation who have donned a uniform in defense of our nation.

They are the American Flag incarnate. They are what the American Flag means to me.

How To Help The Millions Of Neglected Dogs

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
ABC's recent report on the starving sled dogs in Alaska revealed a tragedy that shocked and appalled viewers. Here at PETA, we have been inundated with calls from people wanting to help these dogs.

We are thrilled at this out- pouring of compassion and hope that this tragedy will also spotlight a nationwide epidemic — the widespread abuse of "man's best friend." Millions of dogs suffer from neglect and starvation all across the country every day, sometimes even right next door.

No matter where you live, you can help by reporting to authorities dogs left out in the cold with inadequate food, water and shelter. Contact PETA for free "back- yard dog" leaflets to distrib- ute to guardians of neglected dogs. When you see a stray animal wandering the streets, please always stop and take the animal to a shelter so that he or she will be provided with food and shelter, and, hopefully, reunited with their guardian.

Donate food, bedding and toys to animal shelters and, most importantly, always have animals spayed or neu- tered to prevent adding to the numbers of dogs shackled for life in chains or abandoned at the end of country roads.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Greek Royal Family At Ship Launching

By PAUL HAROLD

Her Majesty Queen Frederika of Greece, crown Prince Constantine (age 18) and Princess Sophia (age 20) were in Quincy for the launching of the S.S. Princess Sophia.

The 70,000 deadweight ton tanker was the largest ship of its type built in the U.S. It was built for the company owned by shipping mag- nate Stavros Niarchos.

Five hundred guests joined the royal family and Bethlehem Steel officials at a reception at the Sheraton Boston where shipyard general manager Samuel Wakeman presented Prin- cess Sophia, for whom the ship was named, a diamond brace- let. Glass models of the ship were presented to the queen and prince.

PAY RAISE VOTED FOR POLICE AND FIRE

By a vote of 6-3, the city council's Ordinance Committee supported a raise for police and fire personnel at an esti- mated cost, according to City Auditor Alex Smith, of $20,700.

The vote followed a presentation by Atty. Frank Bellotti who represented the police. Under the plan the starting sal- ary of a police officer would rise from $3,700 to $4,000.

Voting in favor were Councillors Charles Shea, James McIntyre, Joseph Brett, William Ellis, Carl Anderson and John Quinn. Voting against were Councillors Edna Austin, Thomas Burgin and David McIntosh.

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard met with union officials and the president of the Eastern Mass Street Railway (EMSR) to arrange for buses to transport students during the strike by drivers and mechanics.

Gossard said he was encouraged by the progress of talks. Dr. Edward Mann represented the school committee and the meeting that included Local 1509 President John Leonard and EMSR President Edwin Crowley. The 1,200 strikers were seeking a 25 cent an hour raise. While the last strike lasted only 10 days, one union official said that this one could go to 120 days.

PRIME TRAVELER
by George P. Murphy

As heard on WJDA Radio, 1300 AM every Thursday at 11:00am!

WILL A CRUISE MAKE ME SEASICK?

Many potential cruise passengers fear that the nausea, fatigue, and dizziness of seasickness will ruin their vacations. There are things you can do, though, before and during your cruise, to help. When booking your cruise, request a cabin that is close to the ship's middle or bottom. Although your room will not be as luxurious as an upper deck cabin, you will experience less motion. Before your vacation, research some seasickness remedies. Over-the-counter medications offer relief but can cause extreme drowsiness. A behind-the-ear patch or acupressure wristband may also help; however, the patch can cause drowsiness, disorientation, dry mouth, or blurry vision. Ginger tablets, ginger tea, or crystallized ginger, found at health food stores, often calm upset stomachs. It never hurts to take a few extra precautions to ensure your well-being while on vacation. One step to take to ensure your travels go smoothly is to make PRIME TRAVEL your headquarters for travel planning. Ours is a total commitment to proper preparation for all your travel needs, whether you are cruising the seven seas or traveling across this country. For the utmost in travel services, stop by soon and talk travel with us at 500 Victory Road, Marina Bay, or call 617-472-3697.

P.S. While on board, stay up on deck if you feel seasick, focusing on a fixed point on the horizon.

Realized It Was Pivotal State Bellotti, Mariano See Action On Florida Front Lines

By CRAIG SALTERS

State Representative Ronald Mariano got his first hint that the presidential race in Florida would make history a little after 6 p.m. on election night.

"Mitch Berger (Finance Chairman for the Democratic National Committee) got off the phone with Memphis and told us, 'If we win Florida, we can win the presidency,'" Mariano recalled. "That's when I realized that, hey, this is something."

For Sherriff Michael Bellotti, who along with Mariano traveled to Broward County, FL, at the request of the DNC's National Field Coordinator Michael Whouley, the realization came a little later as he drove the Broward County roadways listening to radio reports on misplaced ballot boxes in that county.

"I thought it was a local radio station, but it was NPR (National Public Radio)," remembered Bellotti. "and it was then, when Broward County results were on national radio, that I knew we were in the eye of the storm."

Mariano and Bellotti knew that Florida would be a pivotal state for the presidency, they said, and that's why they chose it over other locations. The two traveled to Florida the Friday before the election and stayed until the Wednesday after, all the while getting out the vote for their candidate Al Gore.

They took part doorknocking, passing out leaflets, organizing phone banks, making sure volunteers were at assigned precincts, all in an effort to bring out the vote in the very Democratic Broward County. "The target was 72 percent in our two precincts, which had been underperforming, and we got 79.6 percent," said Mariano. "We were thrilled."

Bellotti agreed, noting how exciting it was to have such a big impact in the hotly contested election. "It was such a Gore County; it was really a matter of how many voters could we get to the polls," Bellotti said.

Needless to say both Mariano and Bellotti had a long, sleepless night

MICHAEL BELLOTTI

RONALD MARIANO

watching the state go back and forth from the Gore column to the Bush column to, finally, being ruled too close to call. "It was a major disappointment," Bellotti said of Florida going back in play after being declared an Al Gore state.

Although Mariano and Bellotti each said that the heavy turnout favored Gore, the Democrat, they added the margin of victory for either side was one percentage point or less, indeed "too close to call."

Mariano favored the hand-count, at least in key counties such as Broward, saying that it was best for the nation that there be absolutely no doubt as to who won the election.

He called the "butterfly ballot" question "a little bit stickier," given that both parties had signed off on the ballots. He did say, however, that the media's early declaration of Gore as the Florida winner hadn't been examined thoroughly enough. "The media makes decisions based on exit polls and people were saying, or at least thinking, that they were voting for Al Gore," Mariano said.

Sherriff Bellotti said the lesson learned in Florida was the same one he'd learned winning a primary for state representative by 94 votes. "Every vote counts," Bellotti said. "I never thought it would apply to a national election, but you soon become aware that every little effort makes a difference."

Mariano summed it up this way: "There were 96 million votes cast and we're talking about a handcount with a 300 vote margin. That means keep pushing until they put a lock on the door because every vote is important."

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Jerry's Scallop, Spinach Mix

My brother-in-law Jerry, who is quite a good cook, gave me this delicious scallop entree that is easy to prepare and one that is sure to get raves!

Super Scallop, Spinach Entree

- 12 jumbo sea scallops
- 4 tablespoons olive oil
- 1/2 pound fresh spinach leaves (remove stems)
- 8 tablespoons heavy cream
- 1 clove garlic (pressed optional)
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- 2 cups flour
- 1 egg beaten
- 2 cups seasoned bread crumbs

For the coating on the scallops, place flour and bread crumbs on separate paper plates or foil. Beat the egg and add two tablespoons of the cream leaving six tablespoons for later, and place in bowl.

Dip the scallops in flour, then egg mixture, and then the bread crumb.

In hot oil, add the garlic and cook the coated scallops for about 2 minutes on each side. Remove the scallops and set aside.

In the same pan, and even if the some crumbs are left, sauté the spinach for a couple of minutes. Season to taste. Add the cream, and mustard and stir an additional two minutes. Remove to large platter and top it with the scallops. Add a little grated cheese if preferred.

Christmas Festival Poster Contest Winners Announced

The six top winners and 20 honorable mention recipients in the Christmas Festival Poster contest for Quincy elementary school students are announced by the committee.

The six winners will share in a total of $450 in U.S. Savings bonds and the honorable mention students will receive ribbons and certificates.

The winning posters will be displayed in the window of The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., beginning Friday and the honorable mentions in the window of the former Woolworth store, Hancock and Cliveden Sts.

The top six winners will be introduced by Poster Committee Coordinator Gloria Noble at the turning on of the holiday lights ceremony Friday night at 7:15 p.m. in front of First Parish Church, Quincy Center. They will also ride in the Christmas Parade Sunday.

Youngsters in Grades 1 through 5 are invited each year to draw posters based on the Christmas parade theme, which this year is "Old Memories — New Dreams."

The theme was the winning entry in this year's contest submitted by 93-year-old Gladys Moore of West Quincy.

Mrs. Moore will ride as a special guest in the parade along with four generation members of her family.

Poster winners in Grades 1 through 3:

First prize: Wanda

Chan, Grade 3, Parker School, $100 savings bond.

Second prize: Jesela Flavia Martinez, Grade 2, Marshall School, $75 bond.

Third prize: Aaron Pleitez, Grade 3, Marshall School, $50 bond.

13th Musical Holiday Party At Quincy Dinner Theater

The Quincy Dinner Theater will present the Year 2000 edition of its Musical Holiday Party Love Changes Everything beginning Saturday, Dec. 2 at the theater's 1170 Hancock St. location.

Performances are Dec. 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15, 16, and 17.

Dinner is at 7 p.m. and the show is at 8:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The Sunday shows for Dec.

3 and 10 have a 5 p.m. dinner and 6:30 p.m. show time.

The Dec. 17 matinee show has a 2 p.m. dinner and 3:30 p.m. show time.

The show features a cast of 22 area singers, dancers, and comic actors in a light-hearted but heartwarming look at the holiday season.

Over the past 13 years, Musical Holiday Party has become a tradition for friends, families, and company groups who want to shed stress and get into the true holiday spirit.

Tickets are $35 for dinner and show with special group rates available for the Dec. 4, 6, and 7 performances. The theater, across from the Quincy Center MBTA station, has free parking and is handicapped accessible.

For more information or for reservations, call (781) 843-5862.

Crane Library Holiday House Tour Dec. 3

The Thomas Crane Public Library Holiday House Tour to benefit the Crane Public Library Building Fund will be held Sunday, Dec. 3 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

This is the fifth annual tour to benefit the library construction and refurbishment project. Tickets are now available at all library branches or by calling (617) 376-1301.

They are also available at: Abigail's Crossing, Petals & Pearls, Roseann's, and Stop & Shop.

The tour will include six homes on Wollaston Hill, each decorated for the holidays.

Refreshments provided by local businesses will be served at The First Baptist Church of Wollaston from 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The six featured homes were built between the 1880's and the 1920's. Originally known as Wollaston Heights, development began in the late 1880's. The developer offered free, three-year rail passes to buyers in this area uphill from the Old Colony Railroad. An attractive area of large homes on treed lots with views grew up over the years. The First Baptist Church of Wollaston was originally constructed as a chapel in the 1870's on a land grant from the Wollaston-Land Association. The building has had renovations and additions over the years and today stands as a shining White Gothic Revival style church on the hill.

The homes presented in the tour include:

An 1880's house with attached barn and interesting shingle and clapboard exterior.

A 1907 modified Dutch

THIS RESTORED turn-of-the-century home on Park St. is one of the six Wollaston houses on the Thomas Crane Library Holiday House Tour Dec. 3.

Colonial set amongst towering pines with a commanding view.

A 1926 home with a staggered front and view of the golf course from the back.

A 1923 Colonial Revival with a formal appearance and carefully tended perennial beds.

An early 1900's restoration rising to three stories on an oversized granite block foundation with a view of Boston.

An 1883 house, originally a shingle style, whose new owners are restoring many of the original design elements.

The homes have a mix of original features and modernizations. There are many interior features, such as built-in cabinets, beautiful woodwork, doors, moldings and wainscoting, unique fireplaces, original fixtures, graceful staircases, stained glass, interesting windows and wall coverings, use of natural light, and personal decorative touches. The landscaping, gardens, and variety of trees complement the sites.

The tour starts at the Wollaston School, 205 Beale St. where parking and trolley transportation through the neighborhood will be available. Carolers in the neighborhood and pianists performing in homes will add to the holiday spirit.

Christmas Bazaar At St. Ann's School

St. Ann's School of Wollaston will hold its annual Christmas Bazaar Saturday, Nov. 25 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The bazaar, which has become a tradition for many not only in the St. Ann's community but also for families throughout Quincy, offers interesting and entertaining activities for children of all ages as well as a wide assortment of handmade crafts and gifts.

"The Christmas Bazaar" is one of our best loved events here at St. Ann's School," said Sister Catherine Lee, principal of the school. "It is something we all look forward to every year and we are always pleased to have such tremendous support from the community."

For children there will be face painting, penny candy, ice-cream sundaes, and game tables such as "Spin and Win," "Dart," and "Bean Bag Toss." There will also be a children's raffle with many prizes.

For adults there will be craft tables that include prepared gift baskets and fresh, green wreaths as well as many handmade crafts. One popular part of the day's events will be the Silent Auction featuring gift items and special-event tickets donated by local area businesses. There will also be a White Elephant table billed as "the best yard sale you'll ever attend."

A Big 10 raffle is also part of the day's festivities.

"I have friends who tell me that every year they are able to cross off half the names on their Christmas lists after they come to the St. Ann's Christmas Bazaar," said Ilda O'Connor, president of St. Ann's School PTO.

Santa Claus has already confirmed his attendance at the event and children will have the opportunity to have their picture taken with Santa as well as tell him items from their Christmas wish list.

St. Ann's School is located on St. Ann's Rd. in Wollaston directly across from Veterans' Memorial Stadium on Hancock St.

Anne Kane Receives Edythe Donkin Award

South Shore Elder Services, Inc., (SSES) recently presented the Edythe B. Donkin Award to long-time Quincy resident Anne Kane during the agency's 23rd annual meeting.

Kane was selected on behalf of her "significant work on behalf of elders." She has been an SSES advisory council member since 1987 and served as chairwoman from 1989 to 1990.

"It is ironic that Anne is this year's Donkin Award recipient because she is the kind of person who never seeks credit for herself," says Edward J. Flynn, Jr., executive director of SSES. "She shies away from the many accolades for which she is deserving and lives by a quote she attributes to her husband John: 'You can do anything if you are willing to let someone else take the credit for it.'"

In addition to her volunteer work for SSES, Kane has served on the board of Quincy Community Action for more than 30 years and is now a member emeritus. She is a member of the boards of Manet Community Health Center and

ANNE KANE

South Shore Mental Health.

"She has always worked behind the scenes on matters of concern for all populations, from infants to elders. Low-income housing, hot lunch programs for schoolchildren, mental health services, and legal services are some of the issues for which she has been a strong advocate," says Flynn. "She has been the 'conscience' of the advisory council, offering constructive advice and recommendations relating to the needs of elders."

Kane's humility was evident when she accepted the award. "What I have gotten out of it (volunteering) is much more than I put into it," Kane emphasized. "I have met a lot of kind, caring people and have had more than my share of relationships with wonderful people as a result of the work I have done."

The award is named in memory of Edythe B. Donkin, one of the agency's founders and a past president.

Since 1977, SSES has worked to promote and maintain an optimal level of elder independence through coordination of resources, advocacy, and caregiver support.

SSES is a non-profit, Aging Services Access Point designated by the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs to coordinate services for elders in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate, and Weymouth. Services include but are not limited to: homemaking, personal care assistance, Meals on Wheels, money management, caregiver support programs, the Senior Pharmacy Program, housing programs, protective services, and the Elder-At-Risk program.

Shoreham St. Construction To Begin Next Week

KeySpan Energy Delivery announces that it will be upgrading its distribution system on Shoreham St. beginning the week of Nov. 26.

Work will be from addresses 45 through 76 and last approximately five weeks.

The crew will work Monday through Friday from approximately 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The work will be performed by KeySpan Delivery crews and/or a qualified contractor.

The road will be open to the public but parking may be limited. A construction foreman will be on site to address parking needs throughout the duration of construction.

KeySpan Energy Delivery will provide a police detail if necessary.

There may be a lag between the temporary and permanent restoration of the street and sidewalk, depending on the weather and ground conditions.

The work may require some excavation in the area of the foundation of homes and/or businesses. The construction foreman on site will notify customers of interruption of gas service and make proper arrangements.

Shoreham St. residents with questions on the project should call Construction Supervisor Kevin Mahoney at (781) 794-3508 or Community Relations Coordinator Lynne Holton at (617) 723-5512, ext. 4526.

Human Rights Commission Meets Nov. 28 At City Hall

The regular monthly meeting of the Quincy Human Rights Commission will be held Tuesday, Nov. 28 from 5:30 p.m. until 8 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

The business meeting from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. will consist of a progress report from Donna Johnson on the Martin Luther King

Breakfast to be held Jan. 15 at the VFW Bryan Post, 24 Broad St. There will be a brief discussion regarding the newly revised mission statement followed by a progress report on the "No Place for Hate" campaign to be held in Quincy early next year.

At 6:30 p.m. Susan Musinsky, executive director of the National Conference for Community and Justice, will present a program outlining the goals of the MCCJ, which is dedicated to fighting bias, bigotry, and racism in America.

Musinsky will point out some suggestions which might be workable in Quincy and will close with questions and discussion from the audience.

The public is invited.

Flu Clinic Postponed At Atherton Hough

The Quincy Health Department has been notified that the next supply of the Flu vaccine will not be arriving until December.

Because of this, the Nov. 28 Flu Clinic at the Atherton Hough School, 1084 Sea St., will be postponed until further notice.

To date, Health Department nurses have immunized approximately 2,000 high-risk Quincy residents.

The December Clinics will tentatively continue as planned pending the delivery date of the vaccine.

Residents are strongly urged to call the Quincy Health Department Flu Line at 376-1288 for the most current schedule and any changes or cancellations.

CLEAN MACHINES

Thanks to federal rules mandating tighter emissions standards for cars and trucks over the past decade, today's vehicles are running cleaner than ever. As automakers have responded to the challenge of producing cleaner vehicles, pollution levels have decreased significantly. Today's cars emit about 88% less hydrocarbons, 90% less carbon monoxide, and 87% less nitrogen oxide than cars built in the 1970s. And even though there are 15% more registered cars and trucks on the road since 1988 and the number of miles traveled has risen 26% since then, today's levels of air pollution are well below 1988 levels. Between 1988 and 1997, carbon monoxide levels have dropped 38%, nitrogen oxide had fallen 14%, and ozone had declined

Is your car polluting? Our ASE Certified service technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO will do their part in making sure your car is properly maintained for maximum performance and efficiency. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), we look forward to meeting you and to giving your car the same level of personal attention we give our own. Volunteer Bell Ringers Needed Here Why Collect Money In A Soup Kettle?

For more than a 100 years countless numbers of people have been collecting money in soup kettles from tripods. Why did The Salvation Army ever begin to use such an odd implement to gather money for needy people?

Necessity, it is said, is the mother of invention. There was no grand plan to use soup kettles to raise money. It just happened that way following a crisis in San Francisco before the turn of the 20th century.

A terrible storm caused a shipwreck which killed many people and left many survivors near death. The Salvation Army housed the survivors and fed them. Soon the food was nearly gone. On impulse, an Army worker, realizing that he had cooked the last of the soup, took the soup kettle off of the stove and ran into the street and asked people to "keep the pot boiling" for the needy survivors.

The money that was collected helped to feed and clothe the survivors. It also led to an idea that has been used around the world -- that of collecting funds in a red soup kettle, suspended by a chain hanging from a three-legged pole configuration, known as a tripod.

This year The Salvation Army in Quincy needs your help.

They don't have enough people to man their kettles because unemployment is so low and there just aren't enough people to volunteer. While service clubs, churches, and other civic groups are taking their turns on special days at the kettles, individuals are sorely needed.

Major Ed Forster, the local commanding officer, said, "We don't know how we are going to be able to cover all of our kettle locations. While we have some good, faithful workers, they are too few to represent us and the people we serve. We need help, lots of it."

The Quincy Sun sponsors celebrity kettle days each year in downtown Quincy and encourages other groups to man kettles at locations throughout the area which the Quincy Salvation Army serves.

If you can help The Salvation Army by manning a kettle for a few hours, a day, or more, or if your company, church, or group can help, contact Major Forster at 6 Baxter St., Quincy, or by telephone at (617) 472-2345 or by fax at (617) 472-8605.

You will be helping to raise funds that will be used to buy food, clothing, and toys for people in need this Christmas.

Seaside Gardeners To Light Squantum Christmas Tree Sunday

Seaside Gardeners of Squantum will host its second annual "Lighting of the Tree" to welcome the holiday season to Squantum on Sunday, Nov. 26 at 4:30 p.m. at the Gilbert Memorial Park, corner of Huckins Ave. and East Squantum St.

A children's choir led by Erin Driscoll will sing before, during, and after the ceremony and there will be refreshment tables set up on each end of the park with mulled cider, hot chocolate, and baked goods. Marshall LeGrice of Landsdowne St. will serve as "Father Christmas" and light the tree. Shortly after, Santa Claus will come downhill on a fire engine to pass out candy canes to the children.

The tree, a donation by longtime Squantum resident David Player from his own yard, will be blessed by the Rev. Frederick Barr of Star of the Sea Church and the Rev. William Hamilton of The First Church of Squantum.

Seaside Gardener Co-Presidents Marie Stamos and Laurie Kelliher will welcome the community and Louise Grabowski, civic beautification chairperson, will make remarks and present Garden Club gifts to Park-Cemetery-Forestry Executive Director Thomas Koch and Ward 6 Councilor Joseph Newton for their help in making the event possible.

Seaside Gardener Maureen Spinale serves as chairwoman for the event.

Invited guests include Mayor James Sheets, State Rep. Bruce Ayers, State Sen. Michael Morrissey, Sheriff Michael Bellotti, and the Rev. Charles McGahey.

The crowd for last year's inaugural lighting was estimated at over 450 people and organizers expect more this year due to positive community response.

In the event of inclement weather, the Squantum Lighting Ceremony will mirror the Quincy Christmas Parade and have a rain date of Sunday, Dec. 3.

Elks Host 130 Hospitalized Veterans

The Quincy Lodge of Elks recently held its third annual Veterans Day dinner, hosting over 130 hospitalized veterans.

The veterans were from V.A. Hospitals in Jamaica Plain, Brockton, West Roxbury, The Chelsea Soldiers Home, and the New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans who were welcomed by Exalted Ruler Terry Cullen.

A catered meal was served by members of the lodge, their spouses, and members of the Quincy Emblem Club.

Sgt. Daniel Clark of the State Police, for the second year in a row, entertained the veterans. His accompanist was Ray Cavichio. Ted Kirkjian and his orchestra also entertained. Rep. Bruce Ayers and City Council President Paul Harold addressed the veterans as did the following officers of the Mass Elks Association: President Steven Ondrick, Past State President Donald Podgurski, and State Administrator of the National Veterans Service Committee William Mahoney.

Past Exalted Ruler Thomas Garrity and the lodge's Veterans Committee Chairman Thomas Shepherd were co-chairmen of the dinner.

Habitat Adds Four Homes To Granite Village Neighborhood

Granite Village in South Quincy became a neighborhood of nine families Saturday with the dedication of four new homes on Bower Road that were built by volunteer labor and in-kind donations for the ecumenical and non-profit South Shore Habitat for Humanity.

The four new families, who are already living in their houses, are the Maconochies, the Parkers, the Montes' and the Shuklas. Each was presented with a gift basket consisting of household goods that will help them as they set up housekeeping in their dream homes.

Since 1982, Habitat for Humanity, a Christian non-profit organization, has built or renovated or converted used buildings into homes for 29 families in 15 South Shore communities, including eight in Quincy. They are beginning projects in four other communities.

The two new buildings at 104 to 116 Bower Rd. are duplexes that will house Ann and John Maconochie and their children, Lynne, Lisa, Nicole, Samantha, Theresa and Anne; Crystal Parker and her kids, Mary Ashley and Maggie; Karen Montes and her youngsters, Adelle Marie and Charles Edwards; and Rupa and Keshav Shukla with Radhoa Madhav, Abhay Krishna and Shyam Vilas.

The new home-owners do not get their homes free of charge but are sold at cost to carefully families that have been selected on the basis of need through long-term, no-interest mortgages. The cost of each varies but figures out usually at between $50,000 and $75,000 over the years.

Each of the families was introduced at the dedication and presented with Bibles by John Seavey, chair of the Family Selection Committee, and Sr. Mary Ann Crowley, their homes received blessings and Keshav Shukla and a friend, Jeff Forti, performed an "Indian Bhajan," a spiritual song of purification to protect the new homes.

Remarks were offered by City Councilor Paul Harold, the acting mayor; Julie McKinney, past president of South Shore Habitat; Greg Beeman, executive director of the Association of Builders and Contractors; Leo Maskell, president of Granite Village Homeowners Association; and Darrell Bickel, chair of the Construction Committee.

Volunteer awards were given to Sally Alexander, Carolyn Marks, Dave Payton, George Nason, George Ferland, Eddie Jingle and Phil Baimas by Jocelyn Boucher, chair of the Volunteer Committee.

Jim Flanagan III, president of South Shore Habitat, welcomed the visitors; Cynthia Hargrove, executive director of South Shore Habitat, led the litany for shelter; the invocation was delivered by Father Bill Mullian and Tim Byrne of the Family Partner in Marshfield provided the music.

Special thanks for their support as House Sponsors was given to the Association of Builders and Contractors, Best Buy, Eva Thunstrom Bequest, Jack Connors Jr. and family, Ken and Kate, Milton Faiths for Humanity, State Street Corporation, Wal-Mart Corporation and Wal-Mart's Quincy Store.

In-kind donations were acknowledged from American Manufacturing, Braintree Lumber, R & R Battista Services, Delta Roofing, Fleming Construction, Graziano Concrete Forms, J & L Concrete, P. A. Landers, Perlman, Rubin & Stein, M & M Plumbing, Profile Counters, Bob Spellman Drywall, Braintree Heat & AC, John Brodie Roofing, Cape Cod Lumber, Energy Star Program, Frazier Gutter Company, Drug Offenders Topic Nov. 28 For Quincy Rotary Club

Stephen Saloom of the Criminal Justice Policy Coalition will address the Quincy Rotary Club at the Neighborhood Club Tuesday, Nov. 28 at 12:15 p.m.

The topic will be "The Value of Alternatives to Incarceration for Drug Offenders."

Illegal drug use may not sound like the kind of topic that a room full of respected business owners and community leaders would discuss over lunch.

"When I start to talk at a Rotary lunch, you can feel the skepticism in the air," Boom said. "But once I'm about halfway through, I see people nodding as they realize that what I'm saying makes a lot of sense."

Saloom's presentation in Quincy will be part of the Criminal Justice Policy Coalition's Speaker Series. The goal of this program is to "go beyond preaching to the choir" and to show established, traditional civic groups the benefits of expanding drug treatment options within the criminal justice system.

Saloom regularly concludes his presentations by asking his audiences, "If this were your business, and you were spending excessive amounts of money with poor results, how would you handle it?" He finds that when he presents his message in those terms, the civic leaders in the audience seem to realize the importance of the topic and its relevance to their lives.

The Criminal Justice Policy Coalition is also planning upcoming Speaker Series events. For more information, contact Erica S. Perl at (617) 482-3170, ext. 315.

In Memory Of Her Grandmother She Is Giving A Special Luncheon For Senior Citizens

For the last 18 months of her life, Filomena Delorio lived at the Bostonian Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Neponset.

Each day, sometimes two or three times each day, her granddaughter, Linda Colon of Wollaston, visited her.

Each Sunday, Linda would prepare a special meal, which her grandmother often shared with other patients at the Center.

On holidays, Linda would cook an especially big meal and bring it to the home.

"It was important to me that my grandmother felt as if she was at home with family and friends," says Linda.

"My heart went out to the patients that would sit there day after day without any visits from family or friends."

"I would try to do special things for seniors that would make them feel important and not forgotten."

That's why today (Wednesday) Linda is giving a special luncheon for about 30 elders at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center in memory of her grandmother, who died Aug. 29, 1999.

The luncheon is at 11 a.m. and consists of pumpkin soup, cornbread, meatloaf with gravy, sweet potato casserole, roasted vegetables, pineapple upside-down cake, cider and eggnog.

In addition, each of the seniors received a small gift basket, all in the name of Filomena Delorio.

"My grandmother was very special to me," says Linda. "She was my best friend and a mother to me. She lived with me in Wollaston until the last 18 months of her life."

"Bringing a little sunshine into a senior's life is one of the most rewarding experiences I can think of. So many seniors are forgotten by their families."

Teddy Bear Drive Starts

The fourth annual Teddy Bear Drive is underway.

The Teddy Bear Drive Foundation collects new teddy bears and distributes them to local shelters and social service organizations in around Boston during the holidays. The TBDF provides children with a gift they otherwise would not receive during the holidays.

The public can drop off new teddy bears between Thanksgiving and Christmas at the Quincy Fire Department.

Since its inception in 1996, TBDF has donated more than 3,500 new bears to less fortunate children.

REAL ESTATE

Single-Family Home Sales Slip In Bay State

The pace of single-family homesales continued to moderate across Massachusetts during the summer of 2000, according to recent data issued by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors® (MAR).

Fluctuations in the financial markets, growing reluctance on the part of consumers to take on additional debt, and rising interest rates late in the spring all factored into softened demand for residential real estate.

Sales of detached single-family homes declined 9.8 percent in the third quarter, from 13,918 units in the July-September period a year ago to 12,554 in the same period in 2000. Also, condominium sales fell 3.4 percent, from 3,832 units in the third quarter of 1999 to 3,702 in the comparable period this year.

The decrease in sales over the three-month summer season marks the fifth consecutive quarter in which detached single-family home sales have declined from the same period one year earlier. Meanwhile, condominium sales have fallen for the last three quarters. Historically, however, sales in the third quarter of 2000 remained quite high, with the 16,256 residential sales recorded this year ranking fourth all-time, exceeded only by the third quarters of 1997-99.

Regionally, in the third quarter, sales of detached single-family homes declined in all seven regions of the Bay State, with the most modest decreases occurring in the Greater Boston and Northeast regions, where sales dropped 6.6 percent and 7.6 percent, respectively. Elsewhere, sales fell 10-12 percent in the Central, West, and South Shore regions, and 15-16 percent on Cape Cod and in southeastern Massachusetts.

While detached single-family home sales were down from year-ago levels in every region of Massachusetts during the third quarter, sales of condominiums improved in several areas, the MAR report found. Condo sales rose modestly over last year in the Central (+0.5%), West (+6.5%), and Southeast (+9.3%) regions, with slight declines reported in all other areas.

Meanwhile, trade-up buyers also are showing some hesitation at entering the market, with many expressing concern over assuming a new mortgage at a higher rate than they now hold.

One positive result of the more tempered sales pace is the partial replenishment of market listings that has occurred since last year. In fact, after sharp inventory declines of 22 percent and 17 percent in the first and second quarters of 2000, the number of single-family homes for sale is now down just 9.1 percent from the third quarter of 1999 (30,569 vs. 33,646).

North Quincy Passing Game,
Preventing Turnovers Keys

Red Raiders Relying On Senior Leadership

By CHRIS POISSON

For the North Quincy High School football team, tomorrow is its last chance — the last chance to save a season filled with so many disappointments.

Although the season was considered a rebuilding year, the Red Raiders probably never envisioned a 1-8 record back in August. After dropping their first two games against strong non-league opponents, they pulled out an improbable comeback on the road against Falmouth and optimism was ubiquitous.

Seven weeks, seven games and seven losses later, the Black n' Red find themselves preparing for the most crucial game of the year — the 68th annual Thanksgiving Day game against cross-town rival Quincy.

"It's going to be a big game for us," said second-year head coach Peter Chrisom. "The kids have worked hard all year. It's the last game for a lot of these kids and they're looking forward to it."

For 19 kids, tomorrow will be their last hurrah. When reflecting back on their high school careers, tomorrow will be the game they'll remember the most. Thanksgiving 2000 is a game they need to win and to pull it off, the 19 seniors need to come up with the game of their lives.

"The seniors need to step up," Chrisom said at practice last week. "This is it for them."

NQ SCORING LEADERS

All of these kids have been playing for four years, so this is a culmination of the four years and they're going to put everything into it."

The one thing that has kept this team from picking up more wins is turnovers. It seemed almost every game opponents would turn a North Quincy turnover into 6 points. Sometimes it would happen several times a game.

North Quincy's last game against Canton Nov. 11 summed up the season neatly. Tied at 7 in the first quarter, the Red Raiders coughed the ball up on back-to-back possessions and the winless Bulldogs cashed in for 14 points and an eventual 28-19 win.

"Hey, I wish we could wave a magic wand over [the turnovers]," Chrisom said. "They've hurt us. It's concentration and these kids realize it. We have to cut down on those mistakes and that has to come from within. We've gone over it in practice and hopefully we can put it to a rest."

When the Red Raiders protect the ball, they're an offensive force. For them to crack a solid Quincy defense, their Big Three — quarterback Max Repoff, running back Pat Bregoli and receiver Joe Holleran — need to be sharp from the get-go.

"This is the type of game that is played with so much emotion so you have to be ready to go right off the bat and sustain it for 44 minutes," Chrisom said.

The offensive line — Chris Selter (LT), Fred Butts (LG), Vin Traietti (C), Jeff Narbonne (RG) and Dennis Reale (RT) — has to give Repoff enough time to get rid of the ball. If he is given the time to find his receivers, the Presidents' secondary will be in for a tough day. Repoff has had a sensational senior season, passing for over 1,000 yards and 8 touchdowns.

"He's been throwing the ball well in practice and we've been working on a few things with him. He'll be all right," Chrisom said.

Holleran, an OCL All-Star, is the playmaker, averaging 26 yards per catch. He is particularly dangerous on

Quincy's Shruhan, Cox North's Holleran All-Stars

Unlike the fiasco down in Florida, the votes for the Old Colony League All-Star team have been calculated — and there will be no recount.

Quincy's Tom Shruhan and Joe Cox along with North Quincy's Joe Holleran have been selected to the all-star team in a vote by the league's eight coaches. In addition, North Quincy's Greg McGinness received the league's Sportsmanship Award.

Although both teams have had tough seasons, record-wise, these four players were not overlooked for their accomplishments.

"It's very difficult to make," said Quincy head coach Bob Noble. "There are no gives. It's an honor to make it. If you're fortunate enough to get on, you deserved it."

For Quincy, its all-stars, Shruhan and Cox, are a credit to its unheralded defense, which has held its opponents to nearly seven points per game less than last season.

Only a junior, Shruhan is one of four linebackers to be named to the squad. He has 94 tackles and 4 sacks this year. Senior Joe Cox, one of five defensive linemen, has recorded 57 tackles and 7 sacks.

"I couldn't be happier for them," Noble said. "They're both great kids and outstanding players. It's a testament to our kids, defensively. They were both voted on by wide margins. They're in pretty good company."

For North Quincy, Holleran's selection is an outstanding achievement because he is one of only two wide receivers in the entire league to be honored. The senior's success is a reflection of the team's offense, which has been its strength this season. Holleran has 22 catches for a team-high 570 yards and 5 touchdowns.

"He's a tremendous athlete," Chrisom said. "He has a lot of running ability after the catch. He is very knowledgeable with his routes. Did I expect this type of season from Joey, yeah."

North Quincy Red Raiders

vs. Quincy Presidents

Quincy Offensive Production Up;
Key Could Be Special Teams

Presidents Focused,
Well-Rested, Healthy

By CHRIS POISSON
Thanksgiving Day is a lot different this time around for Quincy High School.

No longer are the Presidents polluted with questions about 20-game losing streaks, elusive first wins, injuries to a handful of starters and defensive debacles.

They've been answered. The Presidents can now concentrate on one thing — tomorrow morning's 68th annual holiday clash with city rival North Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Win or lose, this year will be more enjoyable.

"It's fun," said head coach Bob Noble. "All the hoopla that goes with it. I enjoy it. The coaches enjoy. The kids enjoy it. That's what it's supposed to be about."

But make no mistake about it, Quincy wants to capture the school's 35th Thanksgiving Day crown.

"It's always important to win on Thanksgiving," Noble said. "There's no question that if you're fortunate to come out on the winning side, it ends the season on a real positive note — whether it's winning just one game like the situation we were in a year ago, or if it was the 10th win of the season."

A victory would be Quincy's third this season. After posting impressive back-to-back wins, the Presidents' special teams broke down and cost them a win against Barnstable Nov. 11. They're itching to bounce back and keep the program moving forward.

"The kids are mad at themselves for the special teams' situations in the last game," Noble said. "Those mistakes we made are correctable and we're going to make sure we do them on Thanksgiving. I'm not worried about it. Hey, a year ago special teams turned the game around for us."

With the special teams' mistakes behind them, the Presidents will stroll into the stadium tomorrow morning focused, well-rested and, more importantly, healthy. Last year, they limped into the game with six starters listed as doubtful. Tomorrow, the only one of concern is senior tight end Jon Page, who sprained his right ankle against Barnstable.

"I fully anticipate Jon playing," Noble said. "If he doesn't play, Scott Kelley will play tight end for us and Pete Turowski will play a little tight end for us as well."

"A year ago we kind of got beat up down in Barnstable and that had some guys banged up and questionable for Thanksgiving," he added. "We're not in that situation this year. Part of that is we're a better team, physically. We're a little bigger and stronger."

Indeed, across the board this is the biggest and strongest team Quincy has had in the last three or four years. And it has made a huge difference on the offensive line. Joe Duffy (LT), Brad DiMartino (LG), Tom Shruhan (C), John Alves (RG) and Joe Cox (RT) have allowed only eight sacks, enabling their young quarterback to develop over the course of the season.

Junior signal caller Mike Lorenzano spearheads this offense. As he has progressed, so has the offensive attack. In the first four games, all losses, Quincy averaged 4.2 points per game and was shut out twice. In the next four, Quincy went 2-2 as it nearly quadrupled its offensive production.

"How we play is a direct relation with how our quarterback plays," Noble said. Lorenzano has had a hand in 11 of Quincy's 13 touchdowns this season. He has modest numbers through the air, passing for 835 yards and four touchdowns. It's his ground game, however, that has much to do with the team's second-half success, rushing for 317 yards and 7 touchdowns.

"The way we were running our offense at the beginning, it just wasn't utilizing his running abilities," Noble said. "He's a threat to run the football and that adds another thing for teams to prepare for. He adds another weapon to our offense."

Lorenzano should be able to put some points on the board against North Quincy, which has given up a Division 1-high 307 points. He has some targets to zero in short slants over the middle, where he is capable of eluding defenders and breaking tackles for long gains. He had a 70-yard TD on a short slant pass against Barnstable Oct. 6. On the season, Holleran has 22 catches for 570 yards and 5 touchdowns.

Reppoff's favorite receiver is senior Greg McGinness as the two have hooked up a team-high 26 times for 400 yards. Senior tight end Sean Cote (11 catches, 200 yards) is a huge target at 6-foot-2, 215 pounds.

As for the running game, Repoff will be handing off to Bregoli, who leads the team in scoring with 48 points. The junior has carried the ball 81 times for 350 yards and 6 touchdowns and has also caught a touchdown pass. Senior Dean Zoia has 3 touchdowns from the fullback position.

North Quincy will try to establish a running game, but that might be easier said than done. Quincy has been tough against the run lately, having contained such talented backs as Plymouth South's Eric Shanley, Silver Lake's Brandon McPhail and Barnstable's Clinton Brown.

"Their defense is very good," Chrism said. "It's probably going to be one of the better defenses we've played against all year. Their linebacker, [Tom] Shruhan, is a tough kid. [Joe] Cox is a heck of a ballplayer. They've been playing very well the past couple of weeks.

"We're just going to do the things we've been doing all year. We're going to try to run the ball and do the things we do best. There's not going to be any trickery or anything like that. We're just going to run right at them."

Defensively, the Red Raiders have yielded a lot of big plays this season, giving up the most points in Division I with 307. Chrism knows Quincy's offense has come to life recently and needs his defense to make the important tackles.

"We're going to try to tighten things up a little bit," Chrism said. "They key is we have to come off the ball and make the tackles. They have a lot of skill people and they have some size up front. So we're going to have to make some adjustments."

The Red Raiders' primary focus should be on quarterback Mike Lorenzano. The junior is a double-threat in both the passing and running games, having thrown for 835 yards and 4 touchdowns and rushed for 317 yards and 7 touchdowns.

"He's a threat," Chrism said.

So, it has come down to a one-game season for the Red Raiders. It's their last chance. A win prevents an off-season hangover. A loss keeps the painful memories around for another nine months.

"We put ourselves in that position," Chrism said. "You have to face adversity and it puts you in a true test to see if you can overcome that."

The Series Record:

Quincy 34, North 28 5 Ties In 67 Games

Entering tomorrow's 68th annual Thanksgiving Day game, Quincy High School holds the edge with a 34-28-5 series record.

The contests in 1934, 1937, 1940 and 1983 were scoreless affairs, while the 55th meeting in 1987 ended in a 14-14 stalemate.

The series was last deadlocked at 7-7-3 going into the 1950 game.

The Presidents have won five of the last six Turkey Day games and are looking to repeat in 2000. They won four straight from 1994-97.

The Red Raiders will be trying to rebound after last year's 21-13 loss. They haven't won consecutive games since they three-peated from 1991-93.

Comebacks, Heartbreaks Mark Quincy-North Series

Last-second comebacks and painful heartbreakers have turned the Quincy-North Quincy high school football rivalry into an annual fight for city bragging rights.

Close, competitive games have defined the series.

Fourteen of the last 17 meetings have been decided by eight points or less.

In 1997, Quincy edged North Quincy, 7-0, on a late fourth-quarter touchdown run by Nathan DoRosario.

That game, along with the '85, '87, '89 and '93 matches, ended on the final play of the game.

In 1984 and 1994 the Presidents grabbed intercepttions in the final minutes to thwart North Quincy's comeback bids.

The only game to go into overtime was in 1975, which the Red Raiders won, 15-8.

Of the 67 meetings, 38 have been decided by eight points or less. The outcome has been greater than two scores in only 17 games.

1947 Game Drew Largest Crowd

There has always been debate as to which Quincy-North Quincy game drew the largest crowd.

It appears the 1947 game had the largest paid attendance, reported to have been 18,003. In 1946 the paid attendance was 16,065.

Many estimate that close to 25,000 saw the '47 game, if you count those who watched from the walls and trees, and those who lined the bus yard where the MBTA garage now stands.

Thousands of extras also watched the '46 contest.

Before 1947, the '39 game attracted the largest crowd with 15,000 fans showing up.

In recent years an estimated 9,000-12,000 have attended the annual game.

North Quincy Perfect In 1966, 1992

North Quincy High School has strutted into the Thanksgiving Day game with an unblemished record twice, 1966 and 1992, in the 68 annual matches.

Ken McPhee played a role in both as the starting guard on the '66 team and the head coach of the '92 club.

The '66 group finished the regular season with a 9-0 record. It captured the Greater Boston League title, shared the Class A crown with Arlington and blanked Quincy, 8-0.

The '92 squad compiled an 11-0 record to win the Old Colony League title. It knocked off Arlington to become Division 1B Super Bowl champs and also shut out Quincy, 20-0.

Ice Skating Classes Start Dec. 3

A new series of ice skating classes will be held at the Quincy Shea MDC rink, Willard St., for children ages 5 and up and adults wearing either figure or hockey skates.

There is a choice of class days: Sundays at 11 a.m. starting Dec. 3 or Fridays at 4 p.m. beginning Dec. 1.

The fee for the seven-week semester is $90 for children and $100 for adults. To register, call Bay State Ice Skating School at (781) 890-8480. Instructors teach beginner, intermediate and advanced levels.

on. Senior Gregg Walsh leads the wideouts with 18 catches for 257 yards and 3 touchdowns. Mark Robertson (17 catches, 160 yards) and Pete Turowski (10, 160, 1 TD) are capable of getting open and making plays.

If Quincy wants to win its second straight Turkey Day game, the running game will need to make its presence felt. Senior tailback Paul Desmond, in his first varsity season, has rushed for 524 yards on 116 carries — 4.5 yards a pop. If he can gain 75 yards, according to Noble, it takes pressure of Lorenzano and the offense becomes more dangerous because it's balanced.

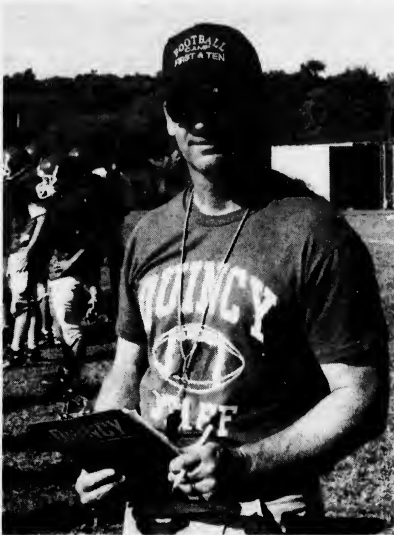

On the defensive side, Quincy, with the exception of the 41-0 loss to Falmouth, has been strong all season. Every team it has faced has had marquee players on offense — and North Quincy is no different.

If the Red Raiders can control their turnovers, their offense can get into the end zone with no problem. Like the Dallas Cowboys of the early '90s or the Indianapolis Colts of today, North Quincy has its Big Three — Max Repoff (QB), Pat Bregoli (RB) and Joe Holleran (WR). And they have not gone unnoticed by Noble.

"Offensively, they're a dangerous team," Noble said. "They have a good quarterback who throws the ball well. The Bregoli kid is a fine tailback. Holleran, a wide receiver, was voted to the OCL All-Star team so that speaks for itself. Not to slight any of the other players, but those are the guys they want to go to when they really want to do something."

Quincy will count on its league all-stars, Shruhan and Cox, to lead the defensive unit in containing North Quincy's Big Three. Shruhan (94 tackles, 4 sacks) anchors the linebackers, while Cox (57 tackles, 7 sacks) hold the defensive line together. The Presidents also have an underrated secondary. Robertson, an honorable selection to the all-star team last year, has 5 interceptions, 14 passes defended and 39 tackles.

"Tommy has really played well," Noble said. "As a junior we put him in a difficult position as a middle linebacker. He's just had a tremendous year. Joe has really Although Quincy is playing better football right now and is going up against a team that has lost six straight, Noble says that you can toss out what has happened during the season when Quincy meets North Quincy on Thanksgiving Day.

"The Quincy-North Quincy game is always a separate entity in itself," Noble said. "Either one of us could be undefeated and going to the Super Bowl, it doesn't matter. It's a one-game season."

North's Bregoli, Quincy's Lorenzano Leading Scorers

Many new faces have emerged in the scoring leaders' department in 2000. The top scorer for each team last year has graduated and has been replaced by a pair of juniors.

North Quincy's Pat Bregoli tops the scoring list for both schools heading into tomorrow's showdown with Quincy.

The work-horse tailback has totaled 48 points, rushing for 6 touchdowns and catching 1 to go along with 3 two-point conversions. Senior wideout Joe Holleran places second with 5 touchdown receptions, a two-point conversion and 4 extra points for 36 points.

Senior fullback Dean Zoia has 3 rushing touchdowns and a two-point conversion for 20 points, sophomore tailback Ryan Farnham has two rushing scores and a two-point for 14 points, and junior Dennis Thomson has 2 touchdown catches for 12 points.

Sophomores James Coughlin (6 points), Chris Dolbear (6), Tim Coughlin (2) and Corey Piazza (1) close out the scoring.

For Quincy, Mike Lorenzano leads the way with 44 points from the quarterback position, rushing for 7 touchdowns and a two-point conversion.

Senior wideout Gregg Walsh follows Lorenzano with 3 touchdowns and 18 points. Junior Tom Shruhan has booted 7 extra points. Junior tailbacks Scott Kelley and Chris Sullivan each have a touchdown run for 6 points.

Senior wideout Peter Turowski also has 6 points, a game-winning catch in overtime against Silver Lake. Senior Joe Cox and sophomore tailback Matt Ramponi round out the list with 2 points apiece.

Sullivan Quincy's Top Thanksgiving Game Coach

Bill Sullivan is Quincy High School's most successful head coach in Thanksgiving Day games.

He went 6-2 against North

Quincy from 1952-59. He also led the Presidents to five consecutive wins from 1954-58, the longest win streak in series history.

Sullivan lost to the Red Raiders in 1953 and 1959.

He was an assistant to Munroe MacLean from 1939-51.

Quincy's Undefeated 1970 Team

Quincy's 1970 team, coached by Hank Conroy, ran through its opponents on its way to a spotless 9-0 record.

That year, the Presidents

North's Repoff, Quincy's Lorenzano Quarterbacks In Thanksgiving Debuts

The quarterback match-up for tomorrow's Thanksgiving Day game will feature two signal callers making their Thanksgiving Day debuts.

Quincy's Mike Lorenzano, a junior, is finishing his first year at the varsity level after taking over the reigns of graduate Dan Kelly. After a somewhat slow start, Lorenzano has flourished in the second half of the season, compiling an impressive 1,152 in total yards.

A threat to take off and run, Lorenzano has rushed for 317 yards and 7 touchdowns on 76 carries in addition to his 835 yards passing with 4 touchdowns and 5 interceptions.

For North Quincy's Max Repoff, tomorrow will be the last game of his career. Last season, he lost the starting job to graduate Sean Adams in training camp but replaced him in the middle of the season and led the Red Raiders to their only two wins.

An ankle injury, however, kept Repoff out of last year's Thanksgiving Day game and he had to watch from the sidelines as Quincy celebrated a 21-13 victory.

Repoff has thrown for over 1,000 yards with 8 touchdowns and 9 interceptions. His 8 TD passes rank among the top in the Old Colony League. Repoff, who prefers to stay in the pocket, has only 9 carries for 45 yards.

Although they have their own styles, both quarterbacks have enjoyed individual success and should have strong games in the holiday showdown.

John Sessions deposited a pair of goals and picked up three assists to propel The Quincy Sun to an 8-7 win over Smith & Brink, PC in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division play.

Mark Gilbody (2 assists) and Brendan Foley each scored a pair of goals. Casey Conley and Mary Gillespie each had a goal and an assist. Brendan Crosslin and Sean Dunn each notched two assists and Kyle Tobin and John Storella-Mullen had one apiece.

For Smith & Brink, PC, Kevin Chenette, Glen Misho, Chris Brown and Peter Eleey each had a goal and an assist. James Budukiewicz, Josh McKeon and Ryan Murphy added goals. Pat Young and Lambros Papalambros each tallied two assists and Shane Reilly had one.

Cotter Club knocked off Pat Foley Painting, 7-4, as Brian Campbell and Laura Ledger each tallied two goals and two assists. Joe Vialpando (assist), Rick Penzo and Joe Reggiannini also scored. Justin Laura, Zack Deegan, Steve McNally, Matt Grady and Mike Cronin had assists.

For Pat Foley Painting, Chris Burke scored a pair of goals and Scott Valatini (assist) and Jeff Dunn each had one. John Kennedy, Erik Anglehart and James Cedrone notched assists.

Mason Mayberry recorded a hat trick and had an assist in Quincy Car Wash's 11-5 win over Keohane's. Frank Flora chipped in with two goals and an assist. Michael Prioli (2 assists), Brian Marks (assist), Brendan Cronin (assist), Eric Johnson, Greg Cahalan and Brian Sullivan also scored. Alec Murray gathered two assists and Matt Flaherty, Glenn Peterson and Michael

For Keohane's, Ted Walsh (assist), Pat Totten, Steve Barressi, Andrew Bythrow and Scott Jackson found the back of the net. Brian McLean, Craig Jackson, John Cicciariello, Matt Furey and Jordan Auriemma had assists.

Justin Mazenkas scored a hat trick in Local #103 IBEW's 7-6 win over Burgin Platner Ins. Derek McFarlane tallied two goals and an assist and Mike Leone (assist), Mollie O'Connell and Matt Clifford also scored. Alyssa Fontana notched three helpers.

For Burgin Platner Ins., Kyle Craig scored two goals and had an assist and Ken Patey also pocketed two goals. Jeff Mitchell and Kevin Keefe also found the cage. Alex Lopez, Erin McMahon and Pat Morrissey had assists.

Tim Young Backstops Cashman

Tim Young stood out between the pipes as Jay Cashman shut out Hayes' Dream, 4-0, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division play.

Matt Bridgeman netted a pair of goals and Michael Brooks (assist) and Justin Keenan tallied one apiece. Daniel O'Brien, Michael Benoit and Derek Graham picked up assists.

Public Comments Due Monday On QHS Site Asbestos Remediation

The public has until Monday to submit written comments regarding the city's plan to relocate and cap asbestos-contaminated fill on the proposed site for the new Quincy High School off Quincy Ave. near Faxon Park.

Those wishing to write their comments for the public record can do so by writing to: Kerry Tull, Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc., 5 Centennial Drive, Peabody 01968 or emailing him at tullk@wseinc.com.

City Yardwaste Collection To Begin Mid-April

Beginning mid-April of 2001, city trucks and employees will collect all yardwaste for Quincy residents. Pick-ups will be on the same days as regular trash pick-up and will run for 35 weeks, ending sometime in mid-December.

The city is in the process of purchasing two compactors which are necessary to do the job.

Yardwaste became a city-wide issue last year when BFI refused to pick up yardwaste for disposal in compliance with existing environmental regulations.

Ayers Produces Cable Show On Senior Health Care

Rep. Bruce Ayers recently produced a cable show geared towards serving seniors and people with disabilities, illustrating the exciting changes that have been made to the Senior Pharmacy Insurance Plan.

His guests were Chairman of House Ways and Means Paul Haley and Ann Hartstein, assistant secretary of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs. These guests outlined in detail the former and present programs and legislation involved in their development and passage, legislation in which the guests played a crucial role.

Ayers has been in strong support of these Senior Pharmacy and Prescription benefit improvements. The program outlined Eligibility guidelines and application processes and illustrated the improvements made to the plan by recent legislation.

During the past two years of his first session as a State legislator, Ayers worked closely with the Office of Elder Affairs in supporting funding for various programs that insure the high quality of life for senior citizens in Quincy and Randolph.

"We have an obligation to protect our seniors and support such programs as SHINE and Supportive Housing," Ayers said.

Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Steven Tobin and Ronald Mariano have also been instrumental in the passage of these important programs.

Ayers produced the show to create more awareness for seniors and to illustrate to them how the programs operate in their favor.

For more information regarding Senior Issues and a connection to Elder Services, call 1-800-243-4636 (1-800-AGE-INFO).

Santa To Arrive By Parachute On Saturday

Santa will make his annual "drop-in" over Quincy Saturday.

He will parachute from a plane at 12:30 p.m., landing at Faxon Field behind the Quincy Center for Technical Education across from the Quincy police station.

Costume characters will be there at noon to hand out candy canes to children before Santa's arrival.

Santa and the characters will then climb aboard a fire engine and ride through the Quincy Center business area.

Facts About Diabetes And Your Feet

An estimated 16 million people have diabetes and yet about half of them do not yet know it, putting themselves at serious medical risk. Each year more than 67,000 persons with diabetes lose a foot or leg due to complications from the disease. As many as one-half of these costly, lower limb losses could be prevented with proper foot care by a podiatrist.

If you are at risk developing diabetes, or have diabetes already, it is essential that you see a podiatrist regularly. Many amputations are the result of poor blood flow and nerve damage, serious problems for persons with diabetes. Because nerve damage often leads to lost sensation in the feet, people with diabetes often feel no pain when they injure a foot or toe. As a result, minor injuries can become infected and without proper treatment, can lead to amputation.

Here are some important tips for persons with diabetes to keep feet healthy:

- Check and wash your feet every day. Check your feet for cuts, blisters and swelling, and wash your feet in warm, but not hot water every day. Dry your feet well, be sure to dry between the toes.

- Keep the skin soft and smooth. Check with a podiatrist to see if lotions may be appropriate.

- For care of corns and calluses and nail trimming. It is recommended that you see a podiatrist regularly to avoid risk of infection.

- Wear shoes and socks at all times. Never walk barefoot. Wear comfortable shoes that fit well and protect your feet. Feel inside your shoes before putting them on each time to make sure the lining is smooth and there are no objects inside.

- Protect your feet from hot and cold. Wear shoes at the beach or on hot pavement. Wear socks at night if your feet get cold.

- Keep the blood flowing to your feet. Put your feet up when sitting. Wiggle your toes and move your ankles up and down for five minutes, two or three times a day. Don't cross your legs for long periods of time. Don't smoke.

- Be more active. Plan your physical activity program with your primary care physician and podiatrist.

- See your podiatrist. Have your podiatrist check your bare feet and determine if you are at risk for serious foot problems. Call your podiatrist right away if a cut, sore, blister or bruise on your foot does not begin to heal after one day. Follow your podiatrist's advice about foot care.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

How do I clean my aid?

First you must know that approximately 90% or more in-the-ear style aids needing repair are due to wax entering the receiver. Careful cleaning and office visits can save you $100.00-$150.00!

There is not much that we can do about the ear producing wax. The glands responsible for this in our ear canals have a mind of their own and sometimes produce much more wax than is needed for protection of the ear. Yes, protection. Ear wax is not DIRT! It's nature's way to keep out infection, insects and more. Wax should be removed by medical personnel only. Keep out the swabs, bobby pins, pens etc. Your focus should be on wiping off the aid at night and every time you remove it from your ear! A careful visual examination under a bright light and magnifier is the best way to see what you're doing. If you see wax, carefully remove it with the tools provided by your specialist, without pushing it in further. When in doubt bring it to a Hearing Instrument Specialist. Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

Union Congregational

Members of Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, met recently to discuss and plan the Christmas 2000 Mission Projects, and the Advent and Christmas services.

The active Benevolence Committee will sponsor several special Holiday Missions Projects this year, including Ditty Bags for Merchant Seaman. These contain sundry toiletries as well as woolen hats and mittens for the Boston Seafarers Society.

Gifts for Children will be collected during the Dec. 10

Sunday worship service on behalf of the Interfaith Social Services Bureau. Also, a collection for Retired Ministers will be held in December.

The Board of Deacons, working with the pastor, Rev. John Swanson, is planning several special services for Advent as well as the church's annual Christmas Eve Service of Lessons and Carols, to be held Christmas Eve at 7:30 p.m.

For more information, call the church at 479-6661. Sunday services are held at 10 a.m.

United Methodist

Student Day will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Rev. Carol Stine will have "The Lord of All Ages" as her sermon title. Sybil Whyte will be the lector.

Margaret Troup will serve as the greeter and William Morrissey and Donald Hunter will be the ushers. Sunday School will follow the pastor's young people's message.

The fellowship hour in Susanna Wesley Hall will be hosted by Joann Nolan, Dorothy Nogueira and Bonnie Mann.

Evangelical Church

Pastor William Donahue will preach Sunday at the combined 10:30 a.m. service at Evangelical Church of Atlantic, 65 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Also scheduled Sunday: Prayer meeting, 7:30-8:30 a.m.; Teens Sunday School, 9:30-10:30 a.m.; and Children's Sunday School, 11 a.m.

Quincy Point Congregational

Rev. Anne Suzedell, pastor, will preach the sermon, "You Don't Know What You're Asking" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Organist Paul Thistle is the music director.

St. John's Sodality To Meet Dec. 7

St. John's Sodality will meet Thursday, Dec. 7 in the church hall following the 5:30 p.m. Mass.

A Christmas punch reception will be held for new members.

A demonstration and tasting of "Quick and Easy Hors d'oeuvres" will be presented by Roche Brothers Consumer Affairs consultant Ellie Deaner.

A basket will be available for donations to St. Vincent De Paul's Christmas giving program. Call Jean Donnelly at 617-479-9045 for further information.

New members welcome.

AIDS Consortium

To Recognize World AIDS Day

Members of the Quincy/South Shore AIDS Consortium (QSSAC) will be at Presidents' Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Square, on Friday, Dec. 1 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in recognition of World AIDS Day.

Information on QSSAC and HIV will be displayed and a drawing will be held to raise money for the QSSAC

Emergency Fund, which assists people living with HIV and AIDS.

QSSAC is part of the Quincy Medical Center and serves people living in Quincy and the surrounding South Shore communities.

The event is free and open to the public. For more information, call Sheila Harris at 617-376-2038.

OBITUARIES

Brian McEachern, 57

Retired Boston Firefighter

A funeral Mass for Brian M. McEachern, 57, of Quincy, a retired 30-year Boston firefighter, was celebrated Nov. 17 at St. Catherine of Siena Church, Charlestown.

Mr. McEachern died Nov. 13 at home after a long illness.

Mr. McEachern was a member of Boston Firefighters Local 718, International Association of Firefighters, the Society of St. Florian, the Boston Firefighters Relief Fund, and the Boston Firemen's Mutual Relief Fund.

He was assigned to Engine Company 11 in East Boston on Dec. 24, 1969. He later served with Engine Company 36, Ladder Company 9, and Engine Company 32, all in Charlestown. He was transferred to the Marine Unit Fire Boat at Battery Wharf on April 1, 1993, and served there until his retirement on July 31.

He also worked as a shipwright's helper.

Mr. McEachern was an Army veteran of the Vietnam era.

He was a member of Bunker Hill Council 62, Knights of Columbus.

Born in Boston, he was educated in Boston schools.

He is survived by two sisters, Diane E. Leason of Brockton and Geraldine M. McEachern of Squantum; two nieces and nephews; and a dear friend, Ann Barrett of Scituate.

Burial was in St. Joseph Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were by the John H. Sawyer Funeral Home, 329 Bunker Hill St., Charlestown.

Donations may be made to Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Drive, Braintree 02184.

Helen V. McGillicuddy, 89

Retired Receptionist

A funeral Mass for Helen V. (Leonard) McGillicuddy, 89, of Quincy, a retired receptionist, was celebrated Nov. 18 at St. Ann's Church. She died Nov. 14 at Braintree Rehabilitation Hospital.

She worked for General Motors, Frigidaire Division, in Needham for 15 years, retiring in 1971.

SCOTT DEWARE

Thanksgiving Day is a day unique in American history. Other peoples have had thanksgiving days but not like ours. Ours began with the Pilgrim Fathers who, having survived a severe winter the year before and having reaped abundant crops that fall, celebrated the first Thanksgiving Day in this country in 1621.

Basically, Thanksgiving should be a day of thankful contemplation for all the things we have to be thankful for... And heading the list should be an appreciative thanks that the greatness of our country is spiritual in origin. All of us living in this great land should be everlastingly thankful for the visions born of faith by our forefathers.

The faith of our fore-fathers is our reservoir, given to us as an inheritance. The reservoir CAN run dry and most certainly will IF we fail to constantly replenish it with our own spiritual faith; a spiritual faith for future generations to live by...

Your Social SecurityApplying For Survivor's Benefits By Phone*By LAURIE ZASTROW

Now it's easy for you to apply for Social Security retirement or survivor's benefits, as easy as ordering pizza. With one call to our toll-free 800 number -- 1-800-772-1213 -- you can apply for retirement or survivor's benefits between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on business days. It's best to apply three months before the date you want the benefit to start.

Our one call service is simple and convenient. Our representative will ask a few questions to determine if you have the basic information we need to take the claim. If so, you'll be introduced to a representative who will take your claim immediately. We'll mail the completed application to you for your signature.

To use the one call service to apply for retirement benefits, you need your:

- Social Security number;
- birth certificate;
- W-2 forms or self-employment tax return for the most recent year; and
- financial institution name and account number to deposit benefits into your account.

You need proof of U.S. citizenship or lawful alien status if you were not born in the U.S.

To use the one call service to apply for survivor's benefits, you will also need, in addition to the above information:

- the deceased worker's Social Security number;
- your marriage certificate, if you are a widow or widower; and
- your divorce papers if applying as a surviving divorced spouse.

When you apply for retirement or survivor's benefits by phone, you save time. You can take care of your Social Security business--with one call--from the comfort of home. For more information about retirement benefits, contact Social Security on the Internet at www.ssa.gov or call our toll-free number and ask for the booklet, Social Security -- Retirement Benefits, Pub. No. 05-10035.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Site Concerns For New QHS Still Under Debate

asbestos as well as some amounts of heavy metals and PCB's.

Following a legal settlement with a former landowner, Bethlehem Steel has agreed to pay clean-up costs for the site.

"I have nothing to gain here," Wanty said. "I'm doing this to help the people of Quincy because I just think that this (building on the site) is wrong."

Wanty is a licensed site professional who has two decades in the field, having worked at more than 100 commercial and industrial sites in six continents and 19 countries, including more than a dozen "Superfund" sites. Wanty has been with Gillette for the past three years and is a former principal at E.R.M., a global environmental consulting company.

"My biggest concern for potential impact on kids there is that they have not adequately tested groundwater and also the potential for vapors," Wanty said. "VOC's are basically liquid wastes which can become vapor and all of the testing for those types of chemicals was done in the early 1990's using methods that are no longer allowed because they are inaccurate.

"Given their size, toxicity for children is much greater than it is for adults. Also, the time of exposure (school versus other use) is greater because kids are at school all day."

Wanty called Weston and Sampson Engineers recent additional testing of the site, done at the request of the School Committee and results of which will be ready for the council's Dec. 5 meeting, a "good start" but said that, if it were his project, he would use low frequency testing to find fractures in the bedrock — essentially finding out where to drill — and then put in "at least a dozen" wells around the perimeter of the site to test for groundwater, which Wanty said was the best indication of contaminants given that groundwater filters through the entire site.

"That's not cheap and that's not easy," Wanty admitted. "But they're moving forward with the project based on existing data and no one has taken a step back and actually considered how the prospect of a high school might change the way they're doing things.

"My main message is: just wait. Any reasonable person has to ask themselves, 'Why take the chance?' At a minimum, a lot more work is necessary to investigate this site using state-of-the-art techniques to prove that there will be no risk to the children.

"But in my professional opinion, I would never send a child to a school on top of an industrial waste dump because you will never have all the answers."

Weston and Sampson's Tull took issue with what he called Wanty's "eleventh hour" comments, particularly his assertion that some of the tests performed in the early 1990's were no longer "allowed" due to inaccuracy. "That's a fallacy. The data was valid then and it's valid today," Tull said, explaining that improvements in technology do not invalidate earlier tests. "There have been tests and none of those prior tests indicate that VOC's were a problem."

As for the parcel's use as a high school, Tull agreed that the use did mandate a thorough investigation, but stated that such an investigation had been done. "It is rare to see a site so thoroughly investigated," Tull said, noting that nearly 500 samples have already been taken at the site.

Finally, Tull said that Wanty's claim that the Quincy Ave. site was a Tier 1A site was simply wrong. "Margaret Hanley (L.S.P. for former engineers GEI Consultants) made a Tier 1A application to the DEP which was rejected on the basis that they did not consider it a Tier 1A site. They saw no reason for direct oversight, which they are only doing now because of public sentiment."

Tull said that one of the more frustrating aspects of the project so far was explaining that it was not the existence of contaminants that was necessarily the problem but "contact points," specific areas where people can come in contact with materials such as lead or asbestos. "There will be no contact points," Tull said, emphasizing that re-locating and capping the contaminants will eliminate exposure risks and actually improve the safety of the site.

Another misconception, Tull said, was that he and his company were somehow beholden to the city to make sure a high school would be built on the site, comparing it to lawyer risking disbarment because of a client. "My license, which I've had since 1993, would be jeopardized if we were to have misrepresentations concerning this site, and my firm would be liable," Tull said. "There is no way anyone would jeopardize their license over this site. If there were a problem, we would have turned around a long time ago and told the city we wouldn't go along with it (the plan)."

The Oversight Committee of the City Council meets Dec. 5 to complete a meeting on all aspects of the new high school project followed immediately by a meeting of the Finance Committee.

The new Quincy High School at the Quincy Ave. site, which has been endorsed by both the School Committee and the Mayor's School Building Needs Task Force, is scheduled to open in September of 2004 and is expected to receive 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

School. The call for alternative sites for both Central Middle School and the new Quincy High School was defeated that night by a vote of 4-2, with members William Phelan and Christine Cedrone the two votes in favor.

Colton, who said the Winfield House site was removed from consideration earlier due to size issues, said he opposed "pointing at this site or this site" for a school until the proper research had been done. "It does the public no service," Colton said.

Councillor Daniel Raymond was expected to request more details on the situation from Colton at Monday evening's meeting of the City Council.

The finding echoes a similar situation with the Quincy Ave. site for the new Quincy High School, which is being hotly contested due to fears of long-term contamination.

Controversial Quincy Ave. Site Dropped

Where Now For New QHS?

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets' announcement Tuesday that a controversial 16-acre parcel of land off Quincy Ave. was no longer under consideration for the new Quincy High School ended debate as to whether the former industrial dumpsite could be safely remediated or not.

But the decision, which was accompanied by a directive to Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg and the rest of the School Committee to locate a new site, revived the question as to where to put the new Quincy High School, currently slated to open in September of 2004.

And, unlike the last school search which essentially viewed the city's parks and open space as off-limits, the mayor said that those locations too would be considered this time around.

"They have to be," Sheets said of those parcels. "Faxon Field, the wetlands ... all locations Fenno St. (and) south will be considered for the new high school."

Sheets reaffirmed his belief that the Quincy Ave. site could be remediated, as well as his faith in the School Building Needs Task Force which chose the site, but said the real problem now was a lack of public confidence in the project.

Said Sheets:

Propose New Parish Be Named For St. Elizabeth Seton

Good Counsel, St. Boniface Merger Considered

By TOM HENSHAW

The merger of Our Lady of Good Counsel and St. Boniface churches into one parish and with a new name is being considered by Cardinal Bernard Law.

The merger, if approved by Cardinal Law, is targeted for Easter Sunday, 2001.

Parishioners by an overwhelming vote recommended to the Cardinal that the new parish be named for St. Elizabeth Seton.

Where Now For New Quincy High School?

"There are those who honestly believe that this site can never be cleaned up to their satisfaction and, if they perceive it to be so, then it is. At any case, a cloud has been placed over a new Quincy High School on this site and it would do little good to have the City Council vote money for the new high school and have generation after generation of parents afraid to send their kids to a state-of-the-art facility.

"If people don't believe it's safe, then it's not safe. This issue has divided the city in a way it has not been divided in my tenure as mayor and it will not be accepted."

The mayor said he will ask the council to postpone pending discussion of $65 million in project appropriations save for bond issues dealing with the design and renovation of Sterling Middle School so as to keep that project on schedule.

Although the mayor made clear that all sites for the new high school would be on the table, he also made plain several key points on the matter:

• He would "under no circumstances" support the renovation of Quincy High School as the new Quincy High School, citing the renovation difficulties of North Quincy High School in the 1970's.

• He would not "revisit" the contamination issue by supporting other contaminated sites, such as the Winfield House site, which has been suggested as a possible site for Central Middle School and was recently discovered to have groundwater contamination.

• Plans to cap the asbestos-contaminated Quincy Ave. site would continue regardless of the high school plans.

• The best way to ensure 90 percent state reimbursement on the project is to continue with plans to renovate the old Quincy High School as Central Middle School.

"I fully expect that Central Middle School will remain in the renovated Quincy High School because that will assure 90 percent reimbursement," Sheets said, explaining the state would be less likely to support a brand new high school while the old site remained vacant and available for renovation.

Bragg, who joined the mayor for the press conference along with DPW Commissioner David Colton, has scheduled a special meeting of the School Committee Wednesday, Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. where members will discuss possible sites, possible search committee members, and a re-evaluation of the project. "We need to look to the future," Bragg said.

Colton, who served as chairman of the Building Needs Task Force and was a strong proponent of expert remediation as the answer, said he would remain active in the process and cooperate with all parties to find the best location for the new school. "The best interest of the city is the only thing," Colton said, adding that that had always been his department's top priority.

Throughout the conference Sheets underscored his support for the School Building Needs Task Force, blasting those who, during the political debate, cast doubt as to the group's motives. "Their major concern was for the children of Quincy," Sheets said. "In my opinion, their integrity and honesty have never been in question and never will be."

News of the mayor's decision came as a relief to School Committeeman William Phelan, a staunch opponent of a Quincy Ave. site he insisted could never be satisfactorily remediated and whose research efforts sparked many concerns about the former Bethlehem Steel dumpsite.

"I didn't win. The people of Quincy won," Phelan said of the decision to abandon the site. "The mayor made a good decision, the reasoning behind which is not as important as much as the fact that teachers, students, and employees who would have had to attend that school will not be subjected to an unnecessary risk to their health.

"At one of the meetings at Roche Brothers (Supermarket), a citizen stood up and asked whether he had a voice and whether his voice counted. I think the decision of the mayor clearly shows that the citizen's voice does matter."

In fact, Phelan credited citizens' voices for playing a large part in the city's change of heart. "The hard working, dedicated citizens who spoke out deserve the credit. They spoke their mind and became part of the process."

Phelan said it was time for all parties to "take a deep breath" and hear all options with regards to alternative sites. "There are a number of sites which should be considered and no site should be discarded without proper scrutiny."

Ideally, however, Phelan said he favored a high school on Coddington St. and an alternative site found for Central Middle School, adding that no assumptions concerning reimbursement should be made until a proposal or proposals had been submitted to the state's Building Assistance Division and a decision made. "There's no harm in asking," Phelan said.

The 16-acre Quincy Ave. site is a former dumping ground for Bethlehem Steel, a past owner of the Fore River Shipyard. After a legal battle with a former owner of the property, Bethlehem Steel has agreed to pay for full remediation of the site.

Even with the Quincy Ave. site's 16 acres, city officials were still looking for more property to meet the needs of the new high school, specifically parking and athletic field concerns.

The current Quincy High School, including the Center for Technical Education as well as the parking lots and tennis courts, is roughly eight acres.

GANGLIONS

Several types of cysts can form in the human foot. A commonly seen cyst is a ganglion. Ganglions are formed from tendon sheaths (a thin cover around the tendon) and contain a clear, gel-like fluid resembling joint fluid. Some ganglions may actually have a direct communication with a joint space. These cysts are usually found on the extensor surface (tendons that help pull the toes and foot up) of the foot. Ganglions are also common in the wrist.

In general, ganglions do not produce symptoms and just need to be watched closely. Treatment can include aspiration (removal of the fluid through a needle), cortisone injections for the smaller ones, and surgical excision. Surgical excision may be indicated when shoe fit is difficult due to the location of the cyst, if an infection develops in the area, or if the mass impinges on a nearby structure such as a nerve.

Gold And Silver License Request Withdrawn

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

In a surprise move at Tuesday's License Board meeting, Bob Watts and Rene Sirois withdrew their request for a common victualer/old gold and silver license for The Witches Brew at 266 Water St.

As protesters sat in the city hall chambers, waiting to be heard and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico waiting in the wings, Watts who had been out in the hallway with Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Police Chief Thomas Frane walked in after 30 minutes and said "I have withdrawn my petition" to the surprise of everyone there.

After the meeting, Watts said he was going to take time to "reorganize some of the details." He was reluctant to explain further.

One of the protesters, Rosemary Martin, chairperson of the South Quincy Neighborhood Association who lives on Penh St., said neighbors were opposed because of the increase of business in the area and traffic. She said "one car on the corner is one too many."

Last year, a request for a similar business on California Ave., was voted against by the License Board.

Gorman chaired the meeting in the absence of Joseph Shea, who was in Ireland. Maureen Hallen, assistant city clerk sat in for Gorman. Building Inspector Bruce Knapp sat in for Walter White, Director of Inspectional Services.

Second Millennium Tile Decorating Session Saturday

A second ceramic tile decorating session for young people as part of Quincy's Millennium Celebration will be held Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Millennium Committee, will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Center, One Merrymount Parkway.

Youngsters, from preschool to grade 12 are invited to participate.

Tiles selected by the committee will become part of Quincy's history. They will be permanently displayed in the new Children's Room in the addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library.

At the first session held in a tent on the Library Lawn, Oct. 28, 299 tiles were painted. Youngsters were asked to paint what they felt was significant in this millennium or what they thought would be significant in the new millennium. Each tile was diverse in projecting the feelings of the youngsters who painted them.

Quincy Still Keeps Presidential Honor

Well, it looks like our next and 43rd President is going to be George W. Bush.

But, with all the legal wrangling and court challenges it still might be Al Gore.

Hopefully everything will come to an official end sometime this week.

But if the new president is Bush, Quincy needn't be concerned over its unique place in history in father-son presidential honors.

Bush, of course, would create a tie in the father-son presidents department.

We would have two sets: our John Adams and John Quincy Adams. And George H.W. Bush and George W. Bush.

But Quincy would still hold the rare honor of being the birthplace not only of two presidents, but father-son presidents.

Former President

Bush was born in neighboring Milton June 12, 1924. But George W. was born in New Haven, Conn., July 6, 1946.

John Adams (Oct. 19, 1735) and John Quincy Adams (July 11, 1767) were not only born here in Quincy in next door cottages but grew up here and lived here all their lives except for the times they were in Washington, D.C., or overseas serving their country.

And now are forever here, entombed with their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine in the crypt in historic United First Parish Church.

Former President Bush was born in a 15-room Victorian house at 173 Adams St. in Milton not far down the street from the Adams Mansion on Adams St. in Quincy which served as a summer White House for the second and sixth presidents and was the home of four generations of the illustrious Adams family.

Bush lived in Milton only six months and has not paid much attention to his birthplace.

But he did return in August, 1997 when Milton dedicated a plaque to mark the house as his birthplace.

During his brief visit he toured the home with present owners Dean and Nina Graves and peeked into the second floor room where he was born.

He candidly acknowledged to the estimated 1,000 at the dedication he had no memories of living there.

But noted with a smile and apparent pride:

"I was potty trained in six months, however, right here in this house. It's a remarkable historical fact that will live on forever."

JOHN ADAMS

JOHN Q. ADAMS

GEORGE H.W. BUSH

GEORGE W. BUSH

The Adams roots still remain deep in their hometown of Quincy. But the Bush roots were transplanted from Milton to Connecticut and then to Texas.

If George W. is declared the final winner in this year's cliffhanger election he will create that Presidential father-son tie.

And Barbara Bush will share the honor Abigail Adams has held alone all these years: being the wife of one president and the mother of another.

And fate would be kinder to her. She would see her son sworn in as President. Abigail died in 1818, six years before John Quincy Adams was elected. His father lived to see that day, however.

But Quincy would still have the distinction of being the only birthplace of a father and son who became president of the United States.

FRANK McCAULEY will be autographing his book on Quincy's political history Sunday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Abigail's Crossing, Hancock and Temple Sts., Quincy Center.

The book, Quincy, Massachusetts: A Political History 1889-2000 was written by McCauley as part of the city's millennium celebration.

McCAULEY

It was a two-year labor of love for him in researching and writing the book at Mayor James Sheets's request. He charged no fee.

The book, which sells from $19.95 (plus tax) would make a nice Christmas or birthday present for anyone interested in the city's political history especially residents with deep Quincy roots.

McCauley has served 26 years in public office as school committeeman, ward and councillor-at-large and four terms as mayor. And is now back in the city council at-large.

He knows his political history.

The idea was to take a chance and guess how many were in the jar.

Dan looked them over closely, from all angles of the jar, studied it a little more and made his pronouncement: 3,700.

He was on target. The actual count: 3,720.

His prize? All 3,720 Tootsie rolls.

Now he's trying to figure out what to do with them. He's open to suggestions.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN old postcard view of Billings Road in Norfolk Downs looking east from its intersection with Hancock Street. This scene, circa 1910, precedes the erection of the commercial buildings that now line both sides of the street. The single trolley track in the center of the street continued on to West Elm Avenue and then to Elm Avenue, rejoining the Hancock Street mainline at Wollaston. Today Balducci's sub shop is on the right corner and the Wah Cheung Hing Chinese Herbs & Convenience Store is on the left. The houses on the right were moved to make room for the business blocks.

READERS FORUM

Opposes Quincy Ave. Site For New Quincy High School

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I know there has been much debate regarding the proposed site for the new Quincy High School. However, I felt compelled to write after attending the School Committee meeting at City Hall Nov. 15.

A young man, representing the Student Council of Broad Meadows School, spoke about the cost to students commuting to the new school from Germantown and Hough's Neck, as well as addressing the contaminants contained at the site. I was horrified that the chairperson left the podium, while this young man was speaking, to address another member of the audience. They say actions speak louder than words and this action spoke volumes. This young man could have been engaged in any number of activities with his friends or siblings, yet his choice to address the School Committee took precedence.

To be essentially ignored is inexcusable, especially seeing that this student would be among the first graduating class of the new high school. There was also some irony that the chairperson, after closing the public forum, said the purpose of the forum was to hear the views of the public, without commenting on them without further consideration. The very next thing out of their mouth was to address a point made by the speaker before the Broad Meadows representative.

My other observation is regarding the complete inability for anyone to give a guarantee of any kind, or to accept liability for any consequence of remediating the site to build a high school. There are four members of the School Committee who are 100 percent convinced the site can be remediated for the high school. Fine, taking into consideration that the Mass Toxins Action has named the Quincy Ave. site among its Dirty Dozen, the 12 most contaminated sites in the state of Massachusetts. The acceptable concentration for lead, known as a carcinogen and developmental toxicant, is 300 parts per million, according to the Department of Environmental Protection. The concentration at this site is 32,200 parts per million.

Finally, I would like to close by saying the School Committee does not have an alternate site on which to build. The Department of Education has approved 90 percent reimbursement to the city to build the new high school. It is never a good thing not to have a back up plan. Sen. Michael Morrissey asked the School Committee to have another site in case the further testing being done for noxious vapors and contaminants renders this site unacceptable.

Citizens of Quincy, there is no debate about the need for a new high school, but is there a need to build on the former dumping ground of the Quincy Shipyard?

We have a proud historical legacy in Quincy. I wouldn't want to live in the town known for building a high school on a toxic waste dump and holding our breath, hoping no student or staff member suffers any ill effects from the waste contained a mere 10 feet from the foundation of the building. If the health and well-being of the children are the prime concerns here, answer one more question: why is the program for Infants and Toddlers being housed in the basement? Since when is a basement a healthy environment for children.

Urge the public to contact their ward councillors and the mayor and oppose this site for the new high school. Be a voice for the children.

Urges Mayor To Reconsider Quincy Ave. School Site

(The following letter was sent to The Quincy Sun for publication)

Mayor James Sheets:

During the past three to four years the citizens of Quincy have relied on your office and the School Building Task Force to investigate the best possible location for a new Quincy High School. As elected officials, the taxpayers assumed that each elected official, public works employee, and task force volunteer would locate the best possible location for a high school and would first and foremost put the health and safety of each child, educator, and the public above all else.

I do not believe that my elected or appointed officials have done this with regard to the high school site. I feel strongly that if this information was known, it was purposely kept quiet to get the Quincy Avenue site and only that site approved, since in fact, the land was purchased.

I have followed the developments of the high school over the past several years and do not feel that the citizens of Quincy were properly informed of the level of carcinogens at this location. This issue should have been the first and only issue the city should have concerned themselves with before state funding, design, or athletic fields were discussed. It is very difficult to believe that, after owning the land for three or more years, the City is just now investigating the levels of contaminants at this location. Worse is that you and especially, Mr. Colton, believe that moving and capping these contaminants relieves you and the City of all responsibility should future generations become ill. At what cost is the safety of our children, educators, and other employees?

I am not a life-long resident of Quincy. My husband and I moved here in 1987 and fell in love with the community and have stayed and are raising our three children. We are both active in this community, working and supporting the place we call home. I do not want my home to become known as another Love Canal or Woburn around the state or the country. I want my children to attend a state-of-the-art school and not worry whether they are being exposed to contaminants that not only may affect their health but the health of their children for generations to come.

Please reconsider the Quincy Avenue site. You have proven to be a man who does not give up. Don't be remembered as the Mayor who took a chance on our children and was wrong. Our children's lives may depend on the action you take today.

You can stop this project. Be creative, be passionate, find another location.

Retail Building Planned For Capitol Site

By PAUL HAROLD

Robert M. Faxon announced plans to construct a retail building on the site of the closed Capitol Theater on Hancock St. He said that Sears Roebuck, which was next to the site, was in negotiations to expand into the new building.

Nov. 30 - Dec. 30
39 Years Ago

The famous city landmark was built by Sen. Henry Kincaide and was the first moving picture theater in the city. Known as the Kincaide Theater, its name was changed in 1926 to the Quincy Theater and in 1944 to the Capitol.

Hollywood comedian Billy DeWolfe became interested in show business when he was an usher at the theater. It became famous when Eugene O'Neill's banned in Boston play, "Strange Interlude" showed there.

In announcing the plans for the new building, Faxon said that Sears management had confidence in the future of Quincy as a retail center and wanted to expand, nearly doubling the size of its present store.

RECORD CROWD SEES CHRISTMAS PARADE

A crowd estimated at 150,000, the largest ever, viewed the annual Christmas parade along Hancock St.

Included in the march were 20 bands, 12 drum and bugle corps and eight floats. Quincy Police Capt. Walter Kemp was grand marshal with Rev. Thomas Tierney, formerly of St. John's, as parade director.

SUB CONTRACT BEGINS NEW SHIPYARD ERA

With the announcement of a $25 million contract to build a nuclear-powered attack submarine, shipyard officials said the Quincy yard was beginning a new era. While the new work wouldn't increase the number of workers it would prevent the layoff of the current force of 7,500.

William O'Connell, chairman of the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee, said that the new contract would be "a great boost to the business climate in the area." In addition to Quincy the Navy awarded sub contracts to Electric Boat in Groton, Conn. and Ingalls in Pascagoula, Miss.

QUINCY-ISMS

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa sent an order to the city council asking for funds to build a new Atlantic fire station. The current 30-year-old building was gradually settling, creating a dangerous condition. Plans were for the new building to be built on piles at the current site. . . Edward Kennedy, the brother of the President, was the orator at the Elks memorial program, honoring members who had died during the year. Russell Hally was chairman. Some 200 attended the services. Included in the names of the deceased were three past Exalted Rulers: Clifton Canniff, John Barry and Edwin LaCroix. . . Fifty members attended the family reunion at the Montillio St. home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Malvesta. . . Robert Blair, vice president at South Shore National Bank, was confirmed as a member of the Quincy Housing Authority board. . . A letter was sent to the city council asking that Park Ave. in Squantum be changed to Purcell Rd., honoring the late civic leader and school committee member Esther Purcell. . . The mayor asked the city council for funds to build a North Quincy branch for the Thomas Crane Library. He said the estimated cost for land opposite Sacred Heart was $54,000 for a total cost of $150,000. Councillor George Burke, a long-time supporter of a branch in the north end of the city, moved the bond issue at the council meeting. . . Mrs. Antonio Svizzero was chairman for the Democratic Women's Christmas party scheduled for the Torre Dei Passeri. . . City Clerk John Gillis swore in policemen for their new positions. Sgt. William Daley was promoted to lieutenant and patrolman Edward Immari, Francis Norton, Jr., and Roy Cavicchi to sergeants. . . Chief of Detectives William McIntyre presented service revolvers to new policemen William Donnelly, Frederick Fuller, Walter Frazer, Alfred Radley, Ronald St. Angelo and Thomas Nigro. . . The North Quincy K of C held a Norman Basius appreciation night for all his civic works. He was the founder of the Sea Scout Ship 29. Grand Knight John Sullivan was presented a plaque on behalf of the council. . . Morrissey Club Steelers' players were honored at a banquet. John "Butch" Mahoney, team and conference high scorer, was given the John Wallace Memorial Trophy. Don Aikens was MVP.

Traditions Of Christmas Carols Historical Society Program

The many traditions of the Christmas Carol featuring a performance by Suzanne McDermott, a singer-songwriter, will highlight the Quincy Historical Society's holiday program, Tuesday, Dec. 5 at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy.

McDermott, who has three critically acclaimed CD albums, performs traditional Christmas songs from Europe and America in an order that both tells the Christmas story and reveals the history of the Christmas Carol itself. Throughout, she comments on sources, symbolism, authorship, and historic context of the various songs and thus provides a glimpse at the history of Western music and religion. McDermott is an accomplished performer in the fields of both folk music and classical music and has appeared with such well-known musicians as Roger McGuinn, Tom Paxton, and Livingston Taylor. Everyone is welcome to attend this program. Refreshments will be available, and the Academy will be decked out in Holiday finery.

There is no admission fee.

Scout Christopher Johnson Honored By City Council For Eagle Badge Project

The City Council recently awarded a special commendation to Christopher Johnson for replacing over 700 feet of fence along the seashore walkway wall along Dorchester St. in Squantum.

Johnson, a 17 year old senior at North Quincy High School, also graded and leveled the walkway as part of a project to earn his Eagle Scout Badge.

"On behalf of the council, we're so proud of what you've done," Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton told Johnson before presenting him with the citation. Johnson, of Shoreham St., was accompanied by mother Paula Johnson and father Robert Johnson, himself an Eagle Scout.

Johnson, for his part, praised family, friends, and fellow scouts for helping him with the project and said that, as a jogger, he noticed the need to make the area more useable for city residents. Johnson also thanked Lester Gerry of the DPW for providing the necessary boards, paint, stone dust, and assorted materials for the project. "It was a lot of work but I was confident we could get it done," Johnson said.

Newton said he was particularly impressed by the overall scope of the project. "What this young man did in just three weekends was unbelievable," Newton said. "I get calls now asking when the DPW will finish the rest of the seashore walkway project and I tell them, 'That wasn't the city, that was Chris Johnson.'"

Johnson is a member of Scout Troop 24 based at The First Church of Squantum.

CHRISTOPHER JOHNSON was recently honored by the City Council for his restoration efforts along the seashore walkway in Squantum. Johnson, who replaced over 700 feet of fence and graded the walkway as well, undertook the task as part of his Eagle Scout Project. He is a senior at North Quincy High School and a resident of Shoreham St.

Why Take The Chance When The Site Has A History Of Industrial Dumping?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
A high school is being built on top of an industrial waste dump. This almost sounds like the beginnings of a dramatic movie, cast in some faraway state, with glamorous leading ladies and rugged men. But it is not. Right now, in Quincy, your city leaders are planning to build the new high school on what is, make no mistake about it, an industrial waste dump.

The city has reported to the citizens of Quincy that the only problem at the site is asbestos in soil, which can easily be fixed with a simple soil cover, which will protect the children of Quincy. City leaders have also reported that the State Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) agrees with the conclusions resulting from numerous studies.

The city has reported that only a few barrels were found at the site, which were removed in 1995, inferring that no more barrels exist at the site. The consultants have concluded that groundwater has not been impacted. City leaders have reported to the DEP that the citizens of Quincy are in favor of building ball fields on top of covered asbestos wastes.

This all sounds great. It sounds as if very thorough, state-of-the-art studies were conducted, a well considered plan was developed, and everyone supports the outcome. But as you know, all too often, things are not as they seem.

Asbestos is not the only contaminant at the site. DEP has not taken any position on whether the work to date is good enough or not. Barrels, or rather rusted barrel parts, are still present at the site, and have spilled their contents after 40 to 60 years of rusting in the fields. The studies to date are based on only two wells used for testing the quality of groundwater, whereas similar sites would likely have half a dozen to a dozen more of these wells. You decide whether city leaders acted appropriately in telling DEP that the citizens of Quincy support this project.

Some people may be suspicious of my motives in writing this letter, and in presenting comments to the Quincy School Committee Nov. 15 because I am not a resident of Quincy. Why am I intruding into the affairs of Quincy?

The answer is that I was asked, by some friends and co-workers who are residents of Quincy, to review the reports for the site because of my extensive background in the cleanup of hazardous waste sites. I have nothing to gain. I am not an activist. In fact, I work for a responsible industrial company. I will go back to my life regardless of the final decision of this high school. I do not have to live with the consequences if your city leaders decide to proceed with this project. However, here are my issues and concerns:

- I am not stating that a significant problem exists. I am only stating that given the site history, 25 years of industrial waste dumping, the site has not been adequately investigated given the intended use of the site — a high school. If the site were planned for commercial or industrial use, I would not necessarily have the same objections.

- This site has enough significant problems, issues, and concerns that it should be listed as a Tier 1A site with the DEP, meaning that it may be one of the worst sites in the state. The only reason it is not is because DEP has too many other Tier 1A sites that involve public drinking water supplies, which are even of greater concern. The point is that this is not your average contaminated site.

- There is not only one way to investigate a contaminated site. There are many methods available to professionals that work in this field. The decision on which methods to use, and how thorough to be, is usually based on the complexity of the site, potential risks, and intended use of the site. When a site has a 25 year history of industrial dumping, when a site is planning to be inhabited by school children, only the most rigorous state-of-the-art methods should be accepted. This has not been the case at the proposed Quincy High School site. Some of the data used to conclude that there will be no risk is based on information almost 10 years old using methods that are no longer allowed because of their inaccuracy. These same questionable methods have been used to conclude that there is no impact to the groundwater.

Some professionals would claim that a solution is available to solve any environmental problem. My nearly 20 years of experience has told me that sometimes cleanup plans fail. And when they do, they usually fail for reasons not even understood during the design of the cleanup plan.

This site has a 25-year history of industrial dumping. Little or no attempt has been made to interview people who were working at the dump during the time of the waste disposal. Hardly any information is available regarding potential impacts on groundwater and the potential presence of toxic vapors underground that could infiltrate buildings.

Any reasonable person has to ask themselves, "Why take the chance?" At a minimum, a lot more work is necessary to investigate this site using state-of-the-art techniques to prove that there will be no risk to the children. But in my professional opinion, I would never send my child to a school on top of an industrial waste dump, because you will never have all the answers.

Calls Quincy Avenue Site Absurd For New QHS

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
During my campaign for Quincy School Committee in 1999 I was the only candidate who continually spoke out against the Quincy Ave. site for the new Quincy High School.

The site was a chemical dumping ground for over 80 years. Highly lethal toxins such as mercury dioxin and asbestos were literally poured into the ground for generations. The site is remote, far removed from the city and the site abuts busy Quincy Avenue, raising a real risk of traffic fatalities.

I feel what is driving the rush to this site is politics, pure and simple. It is an incredibly short-sighted move that will hurt the city in the short as well as the long run.

I question the need for a new high school. The current building on Coddington St. is in an excellent location and is in very good condition. Although it is being stretched. Is the need for its replacement so critical?

I remember as a high school student in the seventies that both North and Quincy High Schools were more crowded than they are today. I don't recall any hand wringing or calls for their replacement on the part of our elected officials. I feel the need for a new Quincy High School is questionable. The proposed site absurd.

Says Site Should Be Flat Out Disregarded

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
This letter is a plea for sanity to anyone who will listen concerning the multi-layered implications going on in Quincy concerning a high level toxic dumping area used by Bethlehem Steel for shipyard waste and the city's attempt to cap it and build a high school there.

This site must be flat out disregarded. For any public or private entity to continue to back this disgraceful proposal makes the Columbine tragedy pale in comparison. This is an experiment or proposal one might expect from Adolf Hitler or Josef Stalin to monitor the long and short term effects of a populace regarding their physical, mental, and spiritual health; to see how far a regime can push, bend, or break its people.

There should be recall elections to remove any and all elected political officials that subtly or overtly continue to endorse this horror show or turn a blind eye. Any appointed officials supporting this should be investigated for possible conflict of interests and prosecution. Any clergy that does not take a stand should be ashamed of themselves.

The city, state, and country should be made aware of this health and mind game being played out on its children and its people.

Light Up The Holidays With Hope

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
My husband and I had the pleasure of attending Granparents' Day at St. Agatha's School in Milton. We received a copy of the Youth Newspaper put out by the students and it contained the following article:

Light Up The Holidays With Hope

"This holiday season, the very first Childhood Cancer Awareness tree will be displayed on Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C. This unique tree will glitter only with gold ribbons celebrating the lives of children with cancer."

Would we possibly want any of these gold ribbons to glitter for our children or grandchildren because they attended a new High School built on a toxic waste dump?

I pray not.

I ask all of our city officials, before it is too late, to give the citizens of Quincy a wonderful present by changing the site of this school to a new, safe one; one that we can all be proud of.

Happy Holidays and thank you!

Keep Those Detox Beds Available

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Kudos to Quincy Mayor Jim Sheets for acknowledging that it is a moral imperative that will keep those detox beds available now at Faxon House in the Quincy area serving the needs of many in the South Shore community. These are not Quincy beds alone.

Detox is good preventive medicine. It is also the right thing to do for those fighting substance abuse and addiction.

If Faxon House must leave Quincy Medical Center grounds as reported, then a proper site must be found as quickly as possible.

Several city councillors think Faxon House should remain where it is. Recently, opposition from the neighborhood surrounding a possible new site means trouble if everyone doesn't work together in finding a place for these beds. Already we are hearing that another site in East Braintree is also guaranteed to generate opposition. No one wants a detox center in their neighborhood but everyone agrees we need those detox beds.

Now is the time for political leaders from Quincy and surrounding communities to work together with neighborhood groups and church leaders to find a way around the impasse.

It is a moral imperative and we must address it. I thank Mayor Sheets for his leadership in this crisis.

A Team Effort Weed Removal Brings New Life To Butler's Pond

Thanks to a combination of community involvement and public support, Butler's Pond can breathe again.

"We have our pond back," said DPW Program Manager Rosemary Nolan after a hydro-raking machine recently cleared the invasive species of plant known as phragmite, whose 18-foot reeds had been slowly but surely turning Butler's Pond into marshland, from the site. "We'll be able to skate again for the first time in years."

In late August, while the phragmite was in full bloom, the plants were treated with a non-toxic chemical to kill them and ready the pond for clearing. The project was funded by a $9,600 grant from the small ponds and lakes division of the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) with matching funds from the city.

Nolan praised nearby schools The Woodward School, Central Middle School, and Eastern Nazarene College for their long term efforts on behalf of the pond's restoration -- which has included volunteer cleanups, fundraisers, and tests of water quality -- and neighbors who realized what an asset the pond was to the community. "For an urban area, this is really quite a little jewel," Nolan said.

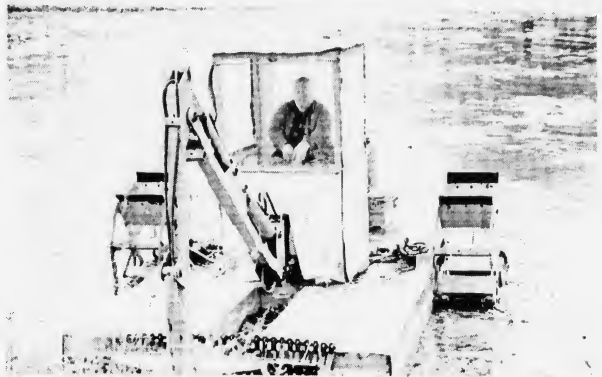

Nolan also commended the DEP for its commitment to the project and to restoration efforts at Sailor's Home Pond, which received a similar grant in 1999.

The next steps will include efforts in the areas of waterflow, cleanup, and landscaping and could come as early as next spring, Nolan said.

Nolan, appointed a program manager in July of 1998 by Mayor James Sheets, who emphasized the restoration of Sailor's Home Pond and Butler's Pond as two top priorities, said she envisioned the restored pond as a quiet spot for both residents and tourists, a site for winter recreation such as skating, and an outdoor science lab for the local schools.

Both the treating and clearing of the phragmite were handled by Aquatic Control Technology, Inc., of Sutton.

CHANDLER SMITH, operations manager for Aquatic Control Technology, Inc., mans the hydro-raking machine to clear the invasive plant phragmite from Butler's Pond. The reeds, which can grow 18 feet in height, were first treated with a non-toxic chemical in late August.

A HYDRO-RAKING MACHINE works to clear 18-foot phragmite reeds which had long clogged Butler's Pond and threatened to turn it into marshland. The clearing efforts, funded equally by city and state, have restored the pond to such a degree that ice skating will be possible this winter.

QHS AFJROTC Completes Fall Encampment On High Note

By CHRISTINE BARRETT
Quincy High School's MA-0061 JROTC program, in its 29th year, recently completed its Fall Encampment at Otis Air Force Base in Bourne.

More than 40 students spent the weekend at the base waking up at 5 a.m. for physical training, drill and other obstacles such as saluting and marching. All of this was done to prepare cadets for personal and room inspections, and flight drill competition.

Quincy High students also had to use leadership and teamwork in order to solve various assigned obstacles and leadership tasks at the base. For example, carrying all members of a team from one side of a simulated hazard to the other using only two wooden boards. These students had to make sure members didn't touch the ground for fear of imaginary landmines.

The cadets spent most of a Friday and Saturday practicing for the final drilling competition on Saturday. Quincy High School was led by Major William E. Zinnel, Senior Aerospace Science Instructor, MSgt. John Stephens, Aerospace Science Instructor, and student-leader Cadet/Major Peter Lucier, Group Commander who helped cadets compete a series of physical training, flight drill, obstacles, and leadership challenges.

"I'm very proud of our group this year," said Zinnel. "This is my fourth year here and this year I've seen a lot of hard work and leadership among the cadets."

As the weekend came to an end, cadet 2nLt. Andy Benjamin led his flight to the "Outstanding Flight for the Weekend" and to the "Outstanding Flight Drill Score."

$40,000 In Federal Grants Awarded To Crane Library

The Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners announces it has awarded $40,000 in grants to the Thomas Crane Public Library under the Federal Library Services and Technology Act.

One $20,000 grant is for serving people with disabilities. Another $20,000 grant is earmarked for digitizing historical resources.

The Library Services and Technology Act is a federal program administered in Massachusetts by the Board of Library Commissioners. The Board of Library Commissioners, a nine-member board, is appointed by the governor and is the agency of state government with the statutory authority and responsibility to organize, develop, coordinate, regulate, and improve library services throughout the commonwealth. LSTA funds are appropriated by Congress and the president in order to stimulate excellence in library service and to promote access to learning and information resources for all individuals. LSTA is administered at the federal level by the Institute of Museum and Library Services.

Chiropractic Update

Mark C. Jaehrig D.C.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE RAKING LEAVES

Once again the change of season is upon us; the summer vacation to New Hampshire or the Cape is just a memory, and we realize that soon enough we will be dealing with snow and ice. Autumn is, for many folks, the prettiest season of the year, but it is not without potential health risks to the back and spine. In my opinion, the two main culprits of the Fall season are the fallen leaves and the changing weather conditions.

It has been my experience that fall's colder and occasionally damper weather can contribute to the aggravation of many back or neck problems, such as chronic sprains, strains or arthritic conditions. Secondly, the repetitive twisting and bending actions done by a person while raking leaves is a very common cause of lower back, mid back and/or shoulder problems.

If you are planning to clean up your yard and will be raking leaves, the following guidelines may be helpful:

- 1) Warm up prior to raking as you would do before exercising.
- 2) Switch sides when raking so that you are not always raking the leaves in the same direction.
- 3) Try to keep your back straight and whenever possible, get down on your knees to rake under bushes or hedges, or when lifting leaves into a trash barrel.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehrig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Beechwood Center Youngsters Thank Firefighters

READY FOR DUTY in a fire truck on display at Beechwood's Thanksgiving Tribute to firefighters are Charlotte Chretien, age two and one-half, and Drayton Coyle, age one and one-half.

ALL ABOARD: Garret Kulig, Brianna Kyc, and Meredith Roach get a firsthand look at a real fire engine under the watchful eye of their teacher, Patti McIntyre. Using pretend smoke, children at Beechwood demonstrated how to "stop, drop, and roll" and presented firefighters with small gifts in gratitude of their efforts.

AIR BAG SAFETY

Not all air bags are alike. On most vehicles manufactured prior to 1998, air bags inflate with significant force in front impacts, which comprise 45% of all crashes. They also inflate in low-speed crashes, in which the forcefulness of their inflation can occasionally prove to be dangerous to unbelted children and short adults. In 1997, automakers could outfit their vehicles with depowered front air bags, which provide comparable protection with less force. Nearly all cars built in the 2000 model year carry these bags. Finally, all cars are mandated to carry more advanced air bags by model year 2005, which modulate inflation force on the basis of crash severity, passenger weight and position and whether or not seat belts are fastened.

For your safety, it's important to wear your seatbelt at all times. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent running condition whether that means something simple to complex engine work. Favorite Holiday Stuffing

This past Thanksgiving, I roasted two 10 pound turkeys...a tradition left over from when all our little darlings were small and everyone wanted a drum stick. Anyway, I stuffed one with the giblet stuffing (my husbands' favorite) and the other one with mushrooms. Here is the recipe for both.

Giblet stuffing
giblets and liver from the turkey
6 ounces ground meat (a favorite)
2 stalks celery (minced)
1 medium onion (chopped)
1 tablespoon Bell's seasoning
2 cups Bell's stuffing mix (or a favorite, soaked)
3 slices of soaked bread salt and pepper to taste
2 cups chicken stock
1/4 cup white wine (optional)

1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
2 tablespoons olive oil (or vegetable oil)
2 tablespoons grated cheese (optional)

First cut the giblets in small pieces. Then cut the celery and onion.

In a frying pan, heat the oil and, add the giblets and meats you will use and sauté for a couple of minutes...add the celery, onion, and all the rest of the ingredients. Blend until done. If it appears too dry, add more liquid (water will due). If too watery, add more breadcrumbs.

For the mushroom stuffing, cut the mushrooms in small pieces and sauté with the celery and onion. Add the same amount of ingredients as above. P.S. I've used the mushroom stuffing for roast pork or veal. Great for the rest of the holidays.

Alzheimer's Program At Beechwood Center

A month-long effort to reach and assist families coping with Alzheimer's Disease is successfully underway, reports Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood-on-the-Bay.

The Quincy Alzheimer's Association, located at the Beechwood Center, is providing a series of programs and events throughout November (Alzheimer's Awareness Month) and December.

"We're bringing the experts to Quincy to meet with individuals and families," reports Kathy Price, director of Elder Services.

Dr. Sanford Auerbach, chairman of the board of the Alzheimer's Association and professor of Neurology and Psychiatry at the Boston Medical Center, launched the two-month series.

Dr. Auerbach met with a large group of seniors and caregivers about diagnoses, new research and medications. "He is optimistic that within the next 10 years great strides will be in the treatment and care of Alzheimer's Disease," stressed Prince.

Small group meetings, videos, family counseling and support groups for caregivers are continuing at the center.

For general information, schedules or to schedule a private family meeting, call Kathy Prince at 471-5712.

Houghs Neck Tree Lighting Ceremony Sunday

The Houghs Neck Community Council and the Houghs Neck Legion Post will sponsor a tree lighting ceremony at the Community Tree on the lawn of the Sea St. Fire Station Sunday at 5 p.m.

The annual event will also include a memorial wreath laying at the Veterans Memorial across Sea St. in front of the Atherton Hough School. City councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley will be the emcee. The Houghs Neck Post will be open after the ceremony for coffee, hot chocolate, doughnuts and other refreshments.

Tom Timcoe is the committee chairman.

CHRISTMAS LIGHTS on Constitution Common at City Hall shine brightly with a cheery look after being switched on Friday night for the holiday season. (Quincy Sun Photo)

Troop 6, Pack 6 Food Drive Saturday

Troop 6 and Pack 6 of Houghs Neck will sponsor a Food Drive Saturday.

The drive will be a part of a nation-wide scouting program called "Scouting for Food."

The food collected will be given to "The Emergency Food Center" part of Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. to be distributed as needed.

The drive will be held at LaBrecque Field in Houghs Neck on Sea St.

The troop will also hold a bottle drive. Scouts will be collecting food during the bottle drive. Cubs will be dropping bags door to door and picking them up on Saturday.

Those wishing to donate non-perishable food items are asked to place them in a bag and drop them off at LaBrecque Field.

Those needing items picked up or for more information should contact Michael Berry at 479-2787.

Atlantic Center Seeks Christmas Donations

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center is seeking donations to help families in need during the Christmas season.

A donation of $25 will provide each family with a turkey dinner and a small gift for each member.

The center also offers an "adopt-a-family" program in which a donor may purchase a gift for one family plus make a $25 donation to the center.

The center serves many families in North Quincy, Wollaston, Montclair and Squantum as well as though throughout the city.

All donations of food, clothes, toys, etc., should be sent to 11 Hayward St., North Quincy.

Checks made out to the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, Inc., need to be received by Monday, Dec. 18.

For more information, call Pat at 376-1387.

MHFA Loan Will Preserve Long-Term Affordability Of Wollaston Manor

The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) announces it will provide $8.36 million in financing to the Wollaston-Quincy Limited Partnership for the purchase and rehabilitation of the 164-unit Wollaston Manor housing development in Quincy.

The financing will allow for improvements to the development and assures that Wollaston Manor will be maintained as affordable housing. The MHFA financing package is contingent upon the developer receiving additional funds from the state and the city.

"The owners of the development are eligible to prepay their mortgage and convert the development to market rate rents," said MHFA Executive Director Steven Piece. "But thanks to the hard work of MHFA's staff and many other parties, 164-units of affordable housing in Quincy will be preserved for low- and moderate-income seniors."

The Wollaston Manor loan is being made through MHFA's Friendly Pre-Payment Program. The program is designed to help preserve the long-term affordability of rental housing developments financed in the 1970's by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and MHFA. Many of these properties had mortgage terms that permitted owners to prepay after 20 years and convert the units to market use.

Built in 1971, Wollaston Manor consists of 38 studio units, 124 one-bedroom units and 2 two-bedroom units.

Make Your Home Healthier

Radon is estimated to be the second leading cause of lung cancer in the United States.

High levels of radon have been found in every state. If you smoke and your home has high levels of radon, your risk of lung cancer is especially great.

If you haven't yet tested your home for radon and you live in an area where high levels of radon exist, the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County urges you to test your home.

The American Lung Association offers the following testing tips:

1. Any home can have a radon problem—even apartments if they are below the third floor. Testing for radon is a simple precaution that everyone should take. Homes with radon problems can be fixed.

2. Do-it-yourself test kits can be ordered from the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County for $10 each.

3. The American Lung Association kit meets Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) requirements for short-term screening (4-7 days). Look for the words "EPA Listed" on the package.

4. If a short-term test indicates an elevated radon level, confirm your findings with a second test before taking action.

5. If you prefer, a professional testing firm listed by the EPA or the state can test your home for you.

6. If your home does have a high radon level, don't panic. Repairs cost no more than many other common home repairs and will not change the appearance of your home. A variety of methods can be used, from sealing cracks in floors and walls to changing the flow of air into your home.

7. Always consult an EPA-qualified or state-certified radon contractor. They can evaluate the problem and help you select the right solution.

8. As when hiring a contractor for any other home repair, you may want to get more than one estimate and check references.

9. Contact the American Lung Association (508) 668-6729 for more information.

Jack Conway 'Christmas Carol' Benefit Tonight

A performance of Charles

Dickens's classic "A Christmas Carol" will benefit the MainSpring House homeless shelter and The Charity Guild food pantry.

The special show, hosted by the Jack Conway Company, will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Company Theatre (formerly the Nickerson Theater) in Norwell.

Tickets are $50 per person and the price includes an invitation to a pre-show reception at the theater beginning at 7 p.m. All proceeds from the performance will go to the two South Shore charitable organizations.

The Brockton Coalition for the Homeless operates MainSpring House in Brockton, which provides shelter, food, educational programs and counseling to individuals and families in need. MainSpring houses as many as 60 homeless individuals per night; Conway House in Middleboro provides shelter for 13 homeless families in a residence on East Grove St.

The Charity Guild Inc. is a Brockton-based, non-profit organization that provides food, clothing and donated household items to low-income individuals and families throughout the region. The group operates a food pantry and thrift store on North Main St. It receives no state funding and pays for its programs through the generous contributions of its members, area residents and local businesses.

Requests for tickets can be sent with payment to MainSpring/Charity Guild, c/o Jack Conway & Co., 137 Washington St., Norwell, MA 02061. For more information, call Chris Haraden at Conway at (781) 871-0080, ext. 316.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

'Tis The Season: Holiday Stress And How To Cope

Each year the holiday season seems to start a little earlier. And so, it seems, does the amount of stress that we're forced to deal with. Shopping, partying, family commitments and all the other activities we see as essential to the season can create stress to provide a fertile breeding ground where stress feeds on itself and grows.

Luis Sanchez, M.D., director of Physician Health Services, a subsidiary of the Massachusetts Medical Society, sees this time of year as a being unlike any other.

"We have Thanksgiving, New Year's and the festivals in between compressed into a very short time span. We feel more aware of our obligations, particularly toward family and friends, some of whom we don't often see.

Kids are home from school, relatives are visiting and friends are dropping by. Suddenly we're involved with these people in non-typical ways," he says. "This can create what Dr. Sanchez calls "opportunities for volatile moments."

Some of the events that Dr. Sanchez cites as stress creates are shopping, traveling, cooking and cleaning. Good planning and time management practices are essential to avoiding stress.

"People who don't plan get stressed," says Sanchez. "And some people don't handle stress too well," he adds.

Inability to handle stress can manifest itself in different ways, including alcohol abuse, irritability or overeating.

The National Mental Health Association has developed a list of suggestions to help people manage stress through the season. These include:

- Keeping your expectations manageable. Pace yourself, get organized, and be realistic about what you can and cannot do. Dr. Sanchez suggests prioritizing your activities based on a list you develop before the holiday rush begins.

- Recognizing that it's all right to feel sad or lonely. Natural emotions occur all year, including the holiday season.

- Trying not to compare today with the "good ol' days." The present can never be compared with romanticized moments from your past.

- Helping someone else. There are plenty of volunteer organizations looking for help this time of the year.

- Avoiding excessive drinking. Alcohol will increase feelings of depression.

- Communicating with those around you to prevent your emotions from building to the point of exploding.
- Saving time for you! It could be the best present you give all season.

Dr. Sanchez of the Massachusetts Medical Society says he believes that providing yourself with some "down time" with do wonders. "The secret is in balancing the work of getting ready for the holidays with the enjoyment of them," he says..

"Tips from Tobias"

"How do I clean my ears?" You normally "clean" things that are dirty.

Believe it or not wax is not dirt. It is a protective secretion from mother nature.

It helps to keep out infection and insects.

It is produced in the outer portion of the ear canal, about 3/8" into your ear. When I see wax next to someones eardrum it usually spells "Q-tip" or some other brand swab. Wax must be put there by some means, swabs, bobby pins, keys, you name it. When the ear itches people will stick just about anything in their ear to stop it, sometimes damaging the eardrum or canal wall. If your ear itches try to scratch it by rubbing behind your ear. Earwax normally migrates outward, so don't push it back in, let nature take it's course. Unfortunately in rare cases the ear produces too much wax, too little or too dry wax. Ask your doctor, (preferably an ear doctor) about your specific problem. If you need the name of one in your area feel free to call me. Remember ear canals are not dirty they are probably the cleanest most germ-free part of your body!

Now you go and spread the news! Steve

SPORTS

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL celebrates its 28-13 victory over North Quincy in the 68th annual Thanksgiving Day game last Thursday at Veterans Memorial Stadium. It was the second straight Thanksgiving Day win and sixth in the last seven years for the Presidents.

(Quincy Sun Photos)

SENIOR PAUL DESMOND (27) races 6 yards down to the 1-yard line. He punched the ball into the end zone on the next play for his first touchdown of the season and a 14-0 lead. Desmond finished with 88 yards.

Thanksgiving Is Presidents' Day For Quincy

By CHRIS POISSON

After being planted to the ground on back-to-back plays, a battered Max Repoff garnered enough strength to peel himself off Veteran Memorial Stadium's frozen turf. Standing 94 yards away from a chance to send the game into overtime, and with less than a minute left and no timeouts, the North Quincy quarterback might as well have just laid there.

On the next play, a swarming Quincy defense made a beeline towards Repoff, whacked him in the end zone knocking the ball loose, and junior Scott Kelley pounced on it for a touchdown, setting off a frenzy on the Quincy sideline.

Let the celebration begin.

For the second straight year, Quincy was crowned Thanksgiving Day champs after its 28-13 triumph over neighboring North Quincy in the 68th annual showdown, which drew an estimated 4,000 fans. The win marked Quincy's 35th Turkey Day title overall and sixth in the last seven years. Pretty soon, the holiday will be named Presidents' Day.

"It was a great day for the kids, the program and the high school," said second-year head coach Bob Noble.

Indeed, the win keeps the program moving forward. Quincy (3-7) finished the second half of the season with a surge, winning three of four to close out the 2000 campaign.

"I think we're moving in the right direction," Noble said. "The kids believe in what we're trying to do here at the high school and it's bearing fruit right now."

Meanwhile, North Quincy (1-9) wrapped up its excruciating season with seven straight setbacks. Although they fell behind 21-0 in the third quarter and were clearly outplayed by Quincy, the Red Raiders somehow managed to close the gap to 21-13 early in the fourth.

"It has been a tough season, game in and game out, but these kids did the best they could," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "These kids have nothing to be ashamed of."

It didn't take long for Quincy to strike first. On the second play of the game,

28-13 Win Over North Quincy Is Quincy's 35th Title In Thanksgiving Series

North Quincy's fullback lost the ball and Quincy's Chris Sullivan covered it up at the North Quincy 48. As if they weren't already fired up for this game, the Presidents seemed galvanized by the fumble recovery.

On the first play from scrimmage, junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano rolled right and hit senior wideout Gregg Walsh for 20 yards. Three plays later, Lorenzano faked a handoff, danced in the backfield with more moves than 'NSYNC and accelerated 22 yards into the end zone for quick a 6-0 lead (extra point failed).

"I just faked it to the running back and followed him up the hole and there was no one there," said a surprised Lorenzano after the game. "I didn't even get touched."

Quincy continued to move the ball against North Quincy. On its second series, senior tailback Paul Desmond reeled off a 26-yard run on the option, and at the end of the play North Quincy was tagged with a personal foul to push Quincy to the Red Raiders' 39. The Presidents picked up another first down before stalling at the 9 and settling for a 26-yard field goal, which it missed.

Early in the second quarter, North Quincy's offense finally showed a pulse when it marched 57 yards to the Quincy 23, highlighted by senior Ricky Crane's 19-yard scamper. But it turned the ball over on downs when Walsh, playing linebacker, blitzed and sacked Repoff for a 10-yard loss.

Quincy's dynamic defense, which received recognition this season with a pair of OCL All-Star selections, suffocated the Red Raiders, holding them to 57 yards in total offense in the first half and under 200 for the game. It also registered seven sacks and forced two fumbles.

"We played extremely well defensively, particularly in the first half," Noble said. "And when we had to make plays at the end, we made them."

Following Walsh's sack, Quincy took over at its own 33 and orchestrated an 11-play drive that resulted in a score late in the first half. On the drive, Lorenzano hit senior wideout Pete Turowski for 32 yards and on fourth-and-4 from the North Quincy 17, legged out 8 yards for a first down.

Desmond, who headed to the sideline after being shaken up on the first play of the drive, returned to the gridiron and found paydirt on fourth-and-goal from less than a yard out with 1:51 remaining. Lorenzano rushed for the two-point conversion for a 14-0 Quincy advantage.

"Paul Desmond did a solid, workman-like job for us," Noble said of his 88-yard performance. "I was hoping to see him get into the end zone and I'm glad he did. It was his first touchdown of the year."

In the second half, Quincy jettied onto the field energized and revitalized, like it was the team trailing by two touchdowns.

"We got the ball to start the second half and we talked about it at halftime," Noble said. "We told them we've of the ball with a 14-0 lead and this is an opportunity to really put them away. We took advantage of it. The kids responded to that beautifully."

On the opening drive Lorenzano ran for 28 yards on five carries and connected on all three of his passes — the last being a 16-yard TD strike to Turowski with 5:39 left in the frame. "We had a great drive that put them in a hole," Noble said.

Lorenzano's emergence as a sleek signal caller had a lot to do with Quincy's late-season success. Ever since Noble and the coaching staff changed the offense near midseason to suit Lorenzano's running ability, the team has flourished.

Lorenzano showcased his double-threat attack against the Red Raiders, scorching them for a game-high 105 yards and a touchdown on the ground, while completing 7-of-10 passes for 97 yards and a touchdown in the air.

"Michael is one of the top quarterbacks in the league," Noble said. "He really came on in the second half of the season. He made some big plays for us, both as a passer and as a runner. He's the general out there and we're going to get him back for another year."

other year."

Turowski's touchdown put North Quincy in a huge hole, but the Red Raiders caught a couple of breaks on the ensuing series to set up their first score of the game. Quincy was whistled for a pair of 15-yard penalties on consecutive plays, giving North Quincy a first down at the 17. Repoff (9 for 16, 129 yards) found senior wideout Greg McGinness for 8 yards on a third-down play and after Quincy stuffed junior tailback Pat Bregoli twice from 1 yard out, North Quincy gave the ball to senior Dean Zoia, who plunged in for the score with 2:22 left.

North Quincy's defense gave the team a lift when it forced Quincy to punt for the first time in the game — and the offense capitalized. Repoff heaved a pass that glanced off Turowski's fingertips and into the hands of senior tight end Sean Cote for 54 yards. "It looked like we had an interception there and it popped right out of his hands," Noble said. On the next play, Repoff gunned the ball down the middle of the field to league all-star Joe Holleran, who made a juggling, 26-yard TD catch with a couple of defenders draped on him. North Quincy trailed 21-13 (extra point failed) with 9:02 left on the clock.

The Red Raiders had two chances to engineer a game-tying drive, but Quincy's defense rose to the occasion both times.

"At halftime we told them you have 22 minutes left of football in your high school career, and everything you have, you have to leave out on the field," Chrisom said. "I can't say enough about them. We came back. We were right there at the end of the game. Unfortunately, it didn't go our way."

"Give those guys credit," Noble said. "They were down 21-0 and they battled back and made it a game. We came back and had to play hard in the last five minutes of the game."

Identity Theft And Routine Transactions

In the course of the day you may write a check at the drugstore, charge tickets to a concert, rent a car, call home on your cell phone, or apply for a credit card. Chances are you don't give these routine transactions a second thought. But others may.

Identity theft is the fastest-growing crime in America, affecting half a million new victims each year. Identity theft or identity fraud is the taking of a victim's identity to obtain credit, credit cards from banks and retailers, steal money from a victim's existing accounts, apply for loans, establish accounts with utility companies, rent an apartment, file bankruptcy, or obtain a job using the victim's name. Thousands of dollars can be stolen without the victim knowing about it for months or even years.

The imposter obtains your Social Security number, your birth date, and other identifying information, such as your address and phone number. With this information and a fake driver's license, they can apply in person for instant credit or through the mail posing as you. They often claim they have moved and provide their own address. Once the first account is opened, they can continue to add to their credibility.

They get the information from your doctor, lawyer, school, health insurance carrier, and many other places. "Dumpster Divers" pick up information you may have thrown away, such as utility bills, credit card slips, and other documents.

A Message From South Shore Mental Health Helping Children Cope With Death

By LAURA ORTH
Tyler (not his real name) was told that his mother is in heaven, which to him is a place in the sky. So, if mom is in the sky, then to him that means if he is always near a window then she will be able to see him and watch over him. This makes sense, right? It does if you are 3 years old, like Tyler is.

LAURA ORTH

Children understand things in life differently than adults do. When it comes to the subject of death, experts agree that most children can't even comprehend the concept until the age of 6. So, it is up to us, as adults, to help children understand and cope with the death of someone they know. But just how do we do this, since we understand things so differently than children?

Give them information
Be factual and clear. Tell the child what has happened — that the person has died and that they are not coming back. It may be hard for a child to understand "never coming back," but they take things very literally. So if you tell them that Auntie has gone away, it may convey that the person has voluntarily left and is able to come back. This is not to say, however, that you should ignore religious beliefs concerning death during a difficult time like this. Religion can help provide comfort and should be part of your mourning process if it is important to you.

Stop talking when the child is done

When a child is ready to stop talking about the death, stop. They need time to absorb what you have told them. You will most likely need to talk to them more than once about the subject anyway because children learn through several small segments of information instead of being given everything at once.

Help them by helping yourself

Caregivers should get the support and help they need in dealing with the death themselves. If you are not okay yourself, you will not be able to help the child who is coping with the same loss. Don't try to hide your pain, but moderate how you express it so that the children don't feel that things are out of control or that their safety is threatened.

Provide structure and stability

It is important to let children know that everything doesn't have to change because there has been a loss. Send the child to soccer practice on Monday afternoons if that is what they are used to doing. Structure and routine can help them feel safe at a time when it may seem that everything is turned upside down in their life.

Let children participate

Older children sometimes can participate in planning a funeral or memorial service. This helps give them a way to say goodbye. As they get older, they can look back on the experience with a clearer understanding of what was happening. Younger children should be made a part of the farewell activities, too. It can be very meaningful for a small child to place a favorite stuffed animal into the casket of a loved one who has died.

Families can help children cope with the death of a loved one by providing a caring support network for the child. Talking to children in a truthful, straightforward manner will help the child tremendously, and showing them that it is okay to mourn will provide them with a healthy model of grief. After all, little Tyler can't sit by the window all of his life.

Quincy Crisis Center Christmas Delivery Dec. 16

The Quincy Crisis Center is preparing for its "Help for the Holiday" Christmas deliveries made throughout the South Shore bringing food and gifts to those in need.

Volunteers are needed to help in many ways: preparing bags, making deliveries, donating food, or being a sponsor for Christmas gifts.

Individuals, church, school or civic groups, Boy Scout or Girl Scout troops, etc., are welcome to be involved in any one or more of these areas. Delivery day for Christmas is Saturday, Dec. 16.

Those interesting in helping can call (617) 847-6967.

The following are some of the food donations needed for the Christmas deliveries: turkeys, hams, canned vegetables (corn, green beans, peas, etc.), stuffing mix, dessert mix, pie filling, spaghetti sauce, tomato products, cereal, tuna, peanut butter, macaroni and cheese, etc.

All donations are welcome and be dropped off at 282 Billings Rd., Quincy, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Blood Pressure Clinic

Blood pressure clinics are offered at 10 a.m. the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at Hancock Park Adult Health Center (part of Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center) located at 164 Parkway, Quincy.

The public is welcome to a free blood pressure check by a nurse from Managed Health Care Systems.

Hancock Park is owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group.

United Methodist

The first Sunday of Advent will be observed at the 10 a.m. worship and Holy Communion service at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Rev. Carol Stine will have "Starborn Souls" as her sermon title. Dancel Bollen will serve as the lector.

Paul and Linda DelGreco will be the greeters and Keith Eisenhauer and John O'Connor will be the ushers.

Sunday School will follow the pastor's young people message.

The hospitality hour will be held in Susanna Wesley Hall where the United Methodist women will have a bake sale. At 6 p.m. an all church Christmas Party will be held featuring tree decorating and carols.

Evening Of Prayer And Praise At St. John's Church Dec. 5

St. John the Baptist Parish, 44 School St., has invited Ivan Dragicovic, visionary from Medjugorje, to an evening of prayer and praise Tuesday, Dec. 5.

The program will begin at 6 p.m. with the Rosary followed by Our Lady's Apparition at 6:40 p.m., Holy Mass, Adoration and Benediction at 7 p.m. and Ivan's talk at 8 p.m. and a final blessing at 9 p.m.

SCOTT DEWARE

that word... Courtesy... can be found the key to most of our driving ills.

Courtesy often is nothing more than a highly developed sense of fair play... A friend told me once of driving along a narrow, unpaved mountain road. Ahead was another car that produced clouds of choking dust and it was a long way to the nearest paved highway. Suddenly, at a wider place, the car ahead pulled off the road. My friend, thinking there might be engine trouble, stopped and asked if anything was wrong. "No," said the other driver. "But you've endured my dust this far; I'll put up with yours the rest of the way." There was a man of good manners, a man with an innate sense of fair play.

Perhaps if all motorists were more courteous, possessed of the same degree of consideration as this driver, we would witness an automotive death rate far lower than ever imagined!

Pre-arranging: peace of mind for every family

ONE GUARANTEE TWO OPTIONS

As early as 1940, we began helping families pre-arrange their funeral expenses. So, the concept is not new to us. But today, there are payment options that some funeral homes don't offer.

Irrevocable Trusts—Many financially secure persons appreciate making one payment or several payments over a short time period. For these persons, we can offer an interest-free plan and payments spread over twelve months. (Endorsed by Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a way to reduce assets and meet state and federal requirements for Medicaid or nursing home care.)

Flexible, Tax-Free Insurance Plans—Budgeting your payments over additional time offers an affordable way for other families to pre-arrange. We can help structure an individualized plan with reasonable premiums, payable within three, five or ten years.

With either pre-arrangement option, protection begins immediately. Since 1917, we've provided the highest degree of understanding and personal assistance to South Shore families. Call us at 617-773-2728 for a free pre-arrangement consultation. We'll help find a plan that suits your family's individual needs.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You often let others complete projects that you've started, but you'd be wise to stick with this one if you hope to make that important professional impression.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) As you begin to shop for Christmas presents, be sure to put yourself on your list for a well-earned special gift.

October 22) Recent family problems have simmered down for the holidays, but they're still boiling beneath the surface. Expect new support in your search for a resolution.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Holiday plans could include long-delayed reunions with people you loved in the past and still keep close to your heart.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Opposites attract in physics, but not necessarily between humans. Be wary of a relationship with which you don't feel comfortable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's decision-making time in the workplace. Use your communication talents to put your case for a promotion in the best light. A family member has news.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You continue to see progress in both your personal and professional aspects. But be careful not to allow holiday pressures to erupt.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You relish being surrounded by the bright lights of the holiday season, but be careful they don't blind you to the true motives behind a friend's recent behavior.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Flexibility remains your watchword at this time. Expect more changes in your plans. But stay the course, and you'll soon enjoy smooth sailing.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Recent family problems have simmered down for the holidays, but they're still boiling beneath the surface. Expect new support in your search for a resolution.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your circle of friends widens as new people come into your life. An old friend urges you to reconsider those travel plans you put aside.

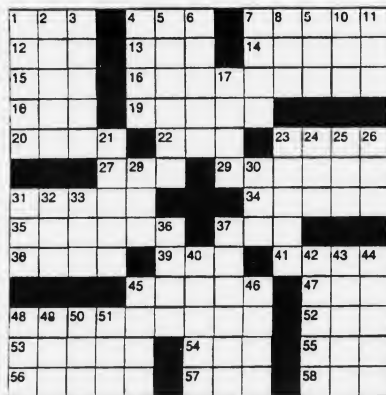

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You have a warm and generous nature, but be careful it doesn't get out of control during these holiday times.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK! You have a gift for seeing beyond the obvious. You also have a sense of curiosity that makes you want to discover hidden places.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Grants Available To Support Alcohol Abuse Prevention

The Blue Hills Community Health Alliance (BHCHA) announces it will award grants up to $1,000 for projects that address issues related to alcohol abuse prevention within its service area.

The grand application process is open to residents, hospitals, local service agencies, organizations, business, boards of health, coalitions, and community groups. The project must involve residents in one or more of the towns in BHCHA, including Quincy, Braintree, Canton, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Norwood, Randolph, Scituate, Sharon or Weymouth.

Proposals should not exceed three pages and will be evaluated against specific criteria. Criteria include a brief abstract of the proposed program, a description of the targeted population, and the goals and objectives of the projects, as well as how the project will be evaluated. A budget must be submitted, and grants cannot be used for salaries, administrative fees, or registration/travel fees to attend conferences/workshops.

For a full request for responses and criteria, call (781) 828-7702.

Deadline for proposals is Dec. 1 at 5 p.m. with award announcements made in December. Grant recipients will make a short presentation/report at the completion of the project at the June 2001 quarterly meeting of BHCHA.

Submit proposals to Mindy Mazur at the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Metro West Regional Office, 5 Randolph St., Canton, MA 02021.

Christmas Parade Reset For Sunday

with one exception being the Waltham American Legion Post.

Festival Committee Chairman George White said the parade, the first of the new millennium, will feature many old favorites plus a few new entries.

Local honored guests will include 92-year old Gladys Moore, longtime Quincy resident, who submitted the winning parade theme "Old Memories — New Dreams" in a South Shore area contest. She will ride with her daughter, granddaughter, and two great-granddaughters.

Roy Lind, recently retired program director of Radio Station WJDA, whose voice is familiar to thousands of listeners along the South Shore, will be parade grand marshal.

In addition, the six prize winners in the Quincy Elementary Grade Schools' Parade Theme Poster Contest will also be riding in the parade.

The parade will proceed northerly along Hancock St. and terminate at North Quincy High School.

The parade will feature 23 floats, 21 bands, 23 specialty units, 17 color guards, and an appearance by none other than Santa Claus himself.

of St. Joseph's parish, and vicar of Quincy's nine Catholic churches said the shortage of priests, a nationwide problem, and the changing demographics in Quincy led to consideration of the merger.

He indicated that parishes in North Quincy may be facing the same problems since the Asian population has increased rapidly and many of the old parishioners are moving to communities farther down the South Shore.

Father Michael Kearney of St. Boniface parish said both church buildings would remain open as long as it's financially feasible under the recommendations made to Cardinal Law, who is the final authority on the move.

A decision is expected before the end of the year.

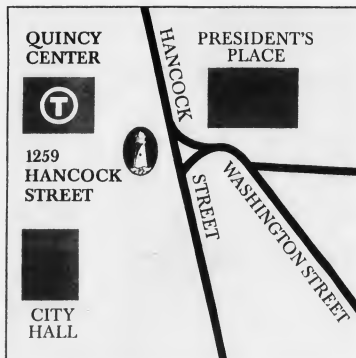

Our Lady of Good Counsel parish was incorporated in 1938 in Merrymount and St. Boniface in 1956 in Germantown. Each has about 1,500 parishioners, said Father Kearney. A third area parish, Blessed Sacrament in Houghs Neck, is not involved in the merger.

"The three parishes have been cooperating for the past 10 years," said Father Kearney. "Last year the Cardinal mandated that we look into the possibility of a merger. His only mandate was that we look at the issues. He wanted to call to come from the people."

Father William MacKenzie, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church was out of town for several days, and unavailable for comment.

Residential Rate Up 23 Cents, Commerical Down $1.69 City Returns To 169% Classification

By CRAIG SALTERS

Citing issues of fairness and long-term economic strategy, the City Council voted Monday night to return the city's tax classification percentage for commercial, industrial, and personal property (CIPP) from the state maximum 175 percent to Mayor James Sheets' traditional recommendation of 169 percent for Fiscal Year 2001.

"It's an issue of fairness," Council President Paul Harold said moments before the 7-2 vote. "Fairness would dictate that business pay a higher burden of taxes and fairness requires that businesses be given a type of predictability in terms of what their costs are going to be."

Following the vote, the council used the classification percentage to set the new residential tax rate at $15.94 and the new CIPP rate at $33.56 per $1,000 valuation of property.

The FY 2001 $15.94 residential rate represents a 23 cent increase over last year's tax rate of $15.71 while the $33.56 CIPP rate is $1.69 less than last year's CIPP rate of $35.25.

Regardless of the classification percentage and tax rates, tax amounts for most residents and business owners will rise as a result of roughly $415 million increase in total property valuation, with residential property value increasing by approximately $345 million and CIPP property increasing by about $70 million.

Total valuation of city property for FY 2001 is $5,371,145,580.

The average valuation of a single-family home in Quincy increased $2,200, from last year's average of $151,900 to the new average of $154,100, reported Marion Fantucchio, chairwoman of the Board of Assessors. That homeowner, Fantucchio said, can expect to pay $2,456 in taxes, a $70 — or 2.9 percent — increase from the previous year.

The total tax levy for FY 2001, Fantucchio said, is $106,651,925, an increase of roughly $6.5 million from the previous year. Without any classification, residents would bear about 78 percent of the levy while business would bear 22 percent, corresponding to their respective property valuations. With the 169 percent classification shift, residents will bear roughly 62 percent of the levy while business will pay 38 percent.

Classification, whereby the proportion of CIPP value is multiplied by a percentage, is a means of shifting the tax burden from residential to commercial property.

President Harold and Councillors Timothy Cahill, Michael D'Amico, Stephen Durkin, Frank McCauley, Patrick McDermott, and Joseph Newton voted to return to the 169 percentage. Councillors Daniel Raymondi and Gregory Hanley voted against.

"In the long run, you can't help the homeowner by socking it to the business owner," McCauley said. "It's

Teaming To Help Those In Need 49 Community Leaders To Man Kettle For Salvation Army

Forty-nine community leaders are teaming up for the fourth year to ring the bell in downtown Quincy to help the Salvation Army help those in need this holiday season.

Mayor James Sheets has proclaimed December "Salvation Army Month In Quincy" and will be among those volunteering to man a "Celebrity Kettle" in front of

Ryder's Home Decor and More store, 1489 Hancock

St., tomorrow (Friday), Thursday, Dec. 14 and Friday, Dec. 15.

Money raised will go directly to the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., to aid local families.

There is a dire shortage of bellers again this year.

Board Votes To Transfer Controversial Liquor License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday voted unanimously to transfer an all alcoholic common victualer license from Steven Barrett, owner of the 11th Chapter Saloon, 536 Washington St., to George Pepdjonovich. It was formerly the controversial Point Pub.

In opposing the transfer

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi asked the board to deny the request and if they didn't he asked the board to restrict the hours until 11 p.m. instead of 1 a.m.

Father Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church cited the proximity to the school and church. and that it was an inapproprate area to sell alcohol.

The former Point Pub which Chairman Joseph Shea called an "albatross around the board's neck" has had in the past a bad reputation with noisy customers after midnight.

In the past couple of years, there have been two or three potential buyers for the pub, which the license board rejected.

However, according to Shea, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) disagreed with the board's action and said they had insufficient reason not to allow the transfer especially to a "fit applicant".

While Raymondi was pushing to have yet another hearing, Shea said "what good would it be to continue this-- nothing would be accomplished."

He said as long as the board has a "fit applicant" they have no choice.

That is what Pepdjonovich was called by Atty. Louis Cassis and also said he was the "best ever to want to buy the place."

Marilyn Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association reiterated Cassis' description and said that Pepdjonovich who formerly owned the 8 Ball Pool Parlor on Hancock St. that there was "no cleaner or a better run business" and called him a "very good a hard-working young man."

Pepdjonovich is also owner of the Sports Memories on Hancock St. He said he plans to serve food including deli sandwiches and pizza.

In addressing the board he said "I know there has been opposition in the past," but "I can handle it." He added "I believe I can do an excellent job."

Helping to run the new restaurant will be his father Peter Pepdjonovich, a former bartender for Anthony's Pier 4 in Boston and a brother.

As Raymondi wanted to restrict the hours until 11 p.m. instead of the usual a.m. Cassis said Pepdjonovich would no longer be interested in purchasing the site if the hours are restricted.

He urged to the board to "give him a chance he'll do a great job," but to reduce his hours beforehand would be a "huge mistake."

In making the motion, Police Chief Thomas Frane said he shared the frustration by Raymondi and Fr. Graham but said it was clear to him that despite all the efforts to deny the transfer, it seems that on the state level, the ABCC disagrees with the board's decision.

Frane noted that the silence of the board was deafening as board members sat without saying a word. Saying they "need to go forward" he finally made the motion to transfer.

He also put the new owner on notice saying there would be additional pressure by the police department and that if there were any problems, then the board could restrict and limit hours of operation.

In seconding the motion Walter White, director of inspection services, said it was apparent that the owners were "determined to have a liquor license there, which is their right" and reluctantly seconded the motion.

After that, the board voted unanimously in favor of the transfer.

The board denied however, the transfer of a cabaret license citing the "place is too small." A cabaret license allows up to three persons entertaining. Cassis asked the board if they would agree with "just one person". However, that was also denied.

After the meeting, Pepdjonovich said he was unhappy about the denial of the cabaret license and said he would probably go back to the board at a later date to have just one guitarist.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said that if there is a special occasion, Pepdjonovich could come to the board with a request for entertainment for that particular night.

Two abutters, one who lived in Beacon St. and one from Curtis Ave., spoke of problems in the past with the old Point Pub.

Cassis said that Barrett plans to keep the building, but will lease the cite to Pepdjonovich for 10 years.

PLANS ARE TO move the USS Salem from its present berth at the Fore River Shipyard to a new home at Squantum Point Park at Marina Bay.

Visibility, New Fore River Bridge Main Reasons Plans Underway To Move USS Salem To Marina Bay

By TOM HENSHAW

The USS Salem, home of the U. S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum, is about to sail on its last voyage from its berth at the Fore River Shipyard to a new and permanent home port alongside a pier at Squantum Point Park at Marina Bay.

"We have to move," said Executive Director Joanne Condon Walsh. "We're in the way of the new Fore River Bridge. We're out of business if we don't move."

"Besides, it will give us higher visibility. We can be seen from the Expressway and from boats in Boston Harbor. We're a hidden treasure right now."

No firm date has been set for the move but Step One, maintenance dredging a site for the 719-foot, 17,000-ton retired cruiser, which was built at the Fore River Yard in 1949, has to be accomplished by Feb. 15 when shellfish in the surrounding bed start spawning.

Approvals for the $600,000 dredging job on the three-acre site, owned by the MDC, are on the agendas of the Quincy Conservation Commission tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. and federal and state agencies this afternoon at a joint meeting.

Dredging is expected to move some 25,000 cubic yards of silt and debris.

"As soon as we have approval for the dredging, we will develop plans to get the ship there and exactly where to put it," said Walsh. "Our goal is to have the ship and the museum in operation by next summer."

The new site for the Salem is on the far side of the pier that was used by the MWRA to shuttle workers to the Deer Island installation.

"There will be no major construction," said Walsh. "and we have the existing parking lot for 900 cars that was used by the MWRA workers. The ship may go to Boston for some refurbishing before it comes back home."

"The longer we wait to make the move, the more difficult it will be. They've already started constructing the temporary bridge that will be used until the permanent bridge is finished. The construction barges are near us and the cranes come over the top of us."

She suggested that people visit the Salem in its current location "to see what we are up against."

The new bridge is expected to be finished in five to 10 years but the Salem will remain at its new berth in Squantum Point Park permanently, providing tours for tourists and educational opportunities for school kids.

She noted the Naval connections of the new home of the Salem. It is on the site of the old Squantum Naval Air Station and right across Dorchester Bay from the John F. Kennedy Library, from which the ship will be visible. Kennedy was the captain of PT 109 of World War II fame.

Those who served on the ship during the 10 years (1949-1959) it was in service, active volunteers who have staffed it since it came to Quincy in 1994 and members of the board of directors have been invited on board for the "last ride," and there are 1,000 spaces for fee-paying visitors.

An important part of the Salem is the museum, run

Bragg: New QHS Commission To Explore All Options

School Committee Vice-Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg is scheduled to present her resolve creating a commission to find a new Quincy High School site at a special meeting of the School Committee Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Lloyd Hill Auditorium in Quincy High School.

As of press time Bragg, who was given the responsibility of forming the commission by Mayor James Sheets after his decision last week to no longer consider a controversial site off Quincy Ave., said she was still in the final draft stages of writing the resolve and had not decided on the number of commission members, whether to select a chairman, or whether she or a chairman would decide the make-up of the committee.

Bragg did say, however, that the commission, in order to be eligible for reimbursement by the Department of Education (DOE), must include the Superintendent of Schools, at least one School Committee member, and a representative from the office in charge of constructing the physical building, namely the Department of Public

I Now Pronounce You . . .

Bruce Ayers can now say he accomplished one special thing that few, if any, of his State House colleagues have ever.

He performed a wedding.

With special permission from the Governor's office, he was recently granted a justice of the peace status.

And, performed a marriage ceremony for long-time friend and newly appointed Quincy Firefighter John Coughlin and Andrea Bradbury at the Adams Inn Gazebo in North Quincy.

James Conlon was best man and Wendy Currier as matron of honor. And Fire Lt. Robert Mood provided a stirring musical touch on the bagpipes.

Ayers and Coughlin have been friends since childhood. The bride and bridegroom met at an Ayers fundraiser and thought it would be quite appropriate and romantic if Bruce performed the wedding ceremony.

Andrea, an attorney, and Coughlin, a former Army Ranger, are lifelong residents of Quincy and after a honeymoon in Newport now live on Farrell St.

Ayers, however, isn't going into the wedding business. His justice of the peace status was granted for that one ceremony.

QUINCY'S "Father Bill," one of the city's most popular and visible clergymen for a near quarter-century, won't be seen around town as much in the future.

Fr. William McCarthy, after whom Father Bill's Place, the interfaith shelter for the homeless is named, will be splitting his time between St. John's Church and two parishes on the Cape.

He will mark 24 years at St. John's in February, 18 as pastor and the last six as senior priest.

During the last four years he has been assisting at Our Lady of Victory Church in Centerville and Our Lady of Hope Church in Barnstable.

Fr. Mark Hession, pastor of those two churches, asked him for more of his time because of the shortage of priests. And, as you know, he's not the type to say "no."

So, he will now at St. John's only three days a week -- Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. And at the other two churches, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. And, what about Father Bill's Place?

"Oh, I'll be helping out there," he says. "You can be sure of that."

He's been an energetic and successful fundraiser for the shelter through the years and has no plans to slow down in that department.

In fact, he was at it again Wednesday night with a birthday celebration fundraiser hosted by the Common Market in West Quincy with all proceeds going to Father Bill's Place.

P.S. He doesn't mind you knowing it was No. 74.

DAN DEWEY didn't win in his political debut as a candidate for Norfolk County Clerk of Courts last month but he was encouraged by his vote.

And, you may see him back on the political trail -- possibly on the municipal front.

"We'll take a look maybe at the local level," he says. "But I don't want to be a political gadfly just running for the sake of running."

Dewey, a Squantum resident and chairman of the Quincy Republican City Committee, found Milton Democrat Walter Timilty, assistant clerk of courts, too much in their race to succeed Nicholas Barbardoro.

Timilty swept to victory county-wide 170,580 to Dewey's 90,814. (They tied in Cohasset.)

Timilty took Quincy, a Democratic stronghold, 20,431 to 12,203. Not too bad though for Dewey considering there are only 7,494 registered Republicans in the city compared to 25,996 Democrats.

"Well, I topped George Bush here," Dewey muses. (Bush got 11,282 here).

As for his run against Timilty, he says, "I didn't have the money to get my message out. I spent only $2,800."

His campaign was a family-friendly affair: His son, Dan, Jr., as campaign manager and wife, Kathleen, as finance chairman, and a few friends, two of them Democrats.

He and one of the Democrats alone gathered the necessary 1,000 voter signatures for him to get on the ballot.

Give him credit for making the run. He's the only Quincy Republican who was willing to take on a Democrat in the election.

SENATOR MICHAEL MORRISSEY and family are holding a nice-gesture Holiday Party Wednesday, Dec. 13, 7 to 10 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St.

To help the less fortunate, those attending are asked to bring a donation of non-perishable food items, new toys for needy children or a donation to the Braintree Special Olympics.

MILESTONE: Jack Lydon, owner of the Lydon Funeral Home and former city councillor, had a surprise sprung on him by his wife, Diane, the other day.

Jack and Diane were staying at their apartment in Vero Beach, Fla. Unknown to him, she called home and had their three daughters, Carol, Janet and Michelle Phelan fly down.

They slipped into a bedroom and when Jack came back to the apartment, the three walked out carrying a birthday cake.

It was not only a pleasant and complete surprise, but a little teary-eyed too for Jack to have his daughters with him to help him celebrate a major No. 60.

Jack, you look like a kid in his 50s.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early 1930's artistically enhanced view of the Boston Gear Works factory in Norfolk Downs. The street with autos running diagonally across the view in the foreground did not exist. In fact the company had a garden there in front of the two-story building facing Hancock Street. Hayward Street separates the buildings at the top left and Burgess Street is in the right foreground. In 1948 an office building was erected along Hancock Street bordered by these two side streets. Several other large buildings were added and at its peak the company owned 25 acres of land in Norfolk Downs and had over 750,000 square feet of floor space there. It was the second largest employer on the South Shore after the shipyard.

The Biggest Winners Will Be The Children

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As both a public school parent and as a substitute teacher in the Quincy Public Schools, I never thought the former shipyard dumping site on Quincy Ave. was either appropriate or really that safe for a new high school facility. Mayor Sheets said, "I didn't want moms and dads worried and concerned that the site could be hazardous to their children." They mayor's sudden change is great news.

We, who opposed the site, were called scaremongers. However, the more I was called names the more determined I was. The people refused to quiet down for the polls and now in the end no high school will ever go up there in that ugly pit of a site. I agreed with Julie Berberan who said, "I'm grateful that the mayor listened to us."

The battle lines were drawn by all those 90 percent polls. It was us versus them and we won. Government is us. We the people are the bottomline. They're supposed to represent us and our interests.

Special thanks to School Committeeman William Phelan for not taking "no" for an answer. While the victory belongs to all of us who stood up to the political steamroller, Phelan, along with Christine Cedrone, were the only two Quincy polls who took the right stand. They stood up for us. We weren't scaremongers. We could have surrendered to the inevitable but we didn't. No one ever loses if they stand up for their beliefs. In this case we flat out won. Quincy parents owe a debt of gratitude to Phelan and Cedrone for keeping an open mind as new evidence poured in and they researched the site more and more. Many others involved in the process seemingly refused to change their minds.

Government is our business. Either we run it or it runs us. Never ever surrender to the inevitable of the so-called done deals. We lose when we say we can't win. Surrender is never an option of a healthy citizenry. Next year when I go to the polls I will vote for my friends and remember those who attempted to cram a bad site down our collective and unwilling throats.

The biggest winners in the end will be the children of tomorrow who won't have to go to a school built on a toxic waste dump site. They were always the bottomline for opponents.

Profile In Courage

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The citizens of Quincy should be proud of School Committeeman William Phelan for exposing and fighting to defeat the plan to build a new high school on highly contaminated land. The Toxic Actions Committee of Boston named this site as one of its annual "Dirty Dozen" — what it considers the state's worst environmental and public health threats. Incredibly, Mayor James Sheets, School Superintendent Eugene Creedon, a majority of the School Committee, and several City Councillors actually favored this dirty site, even though it was a toxic waste dump loaded with all sorts of contaminants including asbestos and other legal toxic substances.

Ledger articles labeled Phelan as a "small minded demagogue" using scare tactics" and, unbelievably, DPW Commissioner David Colton called him a hypocrite. Mr. Phelan withstood the abuse and criticism of the politicians and, with support from concerned parents, the outrage and outcry forced the Mayor to withdraw the site from future consideration.

Many thanks, Mr. Phelan, from a grateful city, for protecting the health and safety of our children.

Quincy's Yesterdays Plans To Revive Christmas Promenade

By PAUL HAROLD

The Quincy Merchants group, a division of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, met to make plans for the revival of the downtown Christmas Carol Promenade. The holiday caroling had long been a part of the city's Christmas festivities but had been suspended during the war.

Dec. 7 - 13
55 Years Ago

John Sirois was elected chairman of the merchants' committee. The revival of the promenade immediately gained the endorsement of Mayor Charles Ross as well as church and civic leaders.

Dec. 23 was the date set for the event when all store lights would be shut off with only the Christmas tree lights along Hancock St. guiding the carolers.

HISTORIANS OPPOSE DEMOLITION OF ADAMS ACADEMY

Fifty historians met at the Adams Academy where they unanimously voted to oppose plans to demolish the Adams Academy for a new city hall.

The historians said that the academy building was an historic site of great significance and was a beauty spot in the city. The academy was built under the terms of John Adams' will. He selected the site to honor John Hancock who was born in a house that had been located there and was destroyed by fire.

MacLEAN RETURNS TO COACHING JOB

Munroe MacLean, who was recently discharged from the Navy, returned to his regular coaching job at Quincy High School this week.

"It's great to be back," said the QHS three-letter man. MacLean was an outstanding high school athlete who later became a teacher and coach in football and basketball. His first team, the "Granite Chips," made the Tech Tourney.

New Theatre Workshop At Quincy College

Aspiring young actors throughout the South Shore and Greater Boston are invited to apply to Quincy College's new Theatre Workshop.

The inaugural session, offered to high school students, begins over Christmas vacation, from Dec. 26 to Dec. 30. The workshop is part of a college-wide recommitment to arts and humanities education.

Students will have an opportunity to turn the holiday break into a personally enriching experience designed to enhance their talents and affirm their skills.

Steven Dooner, English Instructor at Quincy College, has designed and will instruct the program. Dooner has won acclaim for directing and co-writing "Lizzie of Fall River," a play that recently completed a successful run at the Company Theater in Norwell.

"This program will offer high school students the exciting chance to participate in a college-level drama program," Dooner said.

"We are fortunate to have an instructor of Mr. Dooner's expertise and enthusiasm to oversee this program," said Michael McCue, Director of Community Development at Quincy College. "Not only was the idea for such a program Mr. Dooner's brainchild, but every detail along the way as well."

The program will include workshops featuring improvisation, pantomime, Shakespeare and classical stage technique and scene study. The five-day program will culminate in the presentation of a one-act play. Skills developed during this new and innovative workshop will provide a broad-based exposure to drama.

Quincy College sees the beginning of such workshops as the latest in its efforts to serve all aspects of the community, offering enhanced opportunities in the Fine Arts.

The winter program will be followed by spring and summer drama camp offerings for younger students as well as adults. In keeping with its mission to provide affordable, high quality education for the communities of southeastern Massachusetts, Quincy College will soon offer a spectrum of personal growth and development, arts and expressive programs serving the young, the young at heart, and the not so young.

For more information, contact McCue at (617) 984-1768.

Squantum Seniors Club To Meet Dec. 19

Family Holiday Musical At Eastern Nazarene

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will present a holiday event for the whole family, All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten, a musical version of Robert Fulghum's best-selling stories, Dec. 7-9.

All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten tells the journey of a group of adults who learn that the simple truths of fulfilling life were taught to them in kindergarten. All they need to do is remember the lessons they have already learned: "Share everything," "Play fair," and "Clean up your own mess."

This adaptation of Fulghum's popular stories by Ernest Zulia and David Caldwell brings to life Fulghum's whimsical and philosophical reflections on childhood to old age.

Through acting, storytelling and singing, a talented cast of six actors presents over 40 delightful characters, including a little boy who steals the show as the pig in his school production of Cinderella; a truck driver who fulfills his dream of flying by attaching weather balloons to his aluminum lawn chair; and an elderly couple that celebrates Christmas Day five times a year.

Fulghum is a best-selling author of numerous short story collections, including It Was On Fire When I Lay Down On It, Uh-Oh, Maybe (Maybe Not), From Beginning to End, True Love, and ROBERT FULGHUM'S best-selling stories come to life in All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten, an adaptation featuring vignettes and music, at Eastern Nazarene College Dec. 7-9. From left to right are Allison Ross (teacher), David Dein, Matthew Henry, Kate Ellis, Brett Schellenberger and Tara Brooke Watkins.

Words I Wish I Wrote.

All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten has sold 7 million copies in over 93 countries.

Director Nathaniel Scott leads a student cast of six actors: David Dein, Kate Ellis, Matthew Henry, Allison Ross, Brett Schellenberger and Tara Brooke Watkins. Professor Michael Ballard will design the sets and lighting.

Performance dates are Dec. 7 at 7 p.m., Dec. 8 at 8 p.m., and Dec. 9 at 5 p.m. Tickets are $7 and can be ordered by calling the box office at (617) 745-3715 or by sending a check to Eastern Nazarene College, Department of Communication Arts, 23 East Elm Ave., Quincy 02170.

An Educational Matinee will be offered Thursday, Dec. 7 at 10 a.m. Tickets for the matinee are $5 and require advanced reservations. For more information call the box office.

'Guerrilla Theater' Alice At Woodward School

The Drama Society of the Woodward School for Girls will present a production of the 1970 Andre Gregory rough-house versions of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" next month at the school, 1102 Hancock St. Quincy.

The performances are scheduled for Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 7 through 9, at 8 p.m.

Those familiar with Alice's adventures in "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," will find them all here but with a twist in a "guerrilla theater" versions of the Victorian classics.

From the presumed innocence of the original is drawn a caustic and giddy revelation of the human psyche and the dark, unsettling shadows which can linger there.

Freud and Jung, Kafka and Dali all make their presence felt in a work of fantasy that is full of truth, terror and comedy.

At Allure Spa, The Customer Is Always Pampered

By CRAIG SALTERS

Unlike some business owners, Allure Spa's Sandra Ishmael doesn't have to spend a lot of time trying to figure out what her customers want.

"You're coming in to be pampered and we know that," said Ishmael, who founded the day spa six years ago with husband Azim. "You want to relax and feel rejuvenated."

To give her customers even more of that feeling, and to realize a personal dream, Ishmael and her husband recently purchased the 15 Quincy Ave. building and have spent the last year renovating and remodeling the formerly vacant second floor office space.

The result: a second floor "personal sanctuary" — removed from the bustling salon downstairs — with larger rooms devoted entirely to body massages and facials and even a wet room with a Vichy Shower.

Beginning this weekend, clients can enjoy the new rooms as well as a spacious upstairs waiting area complete with stone fireplace, high cathedral ceilings, skylight, built-in bookshelves, cookies, herbal teas, flavored coffees, soft classical music, and a large-window view of Christ Church across the street.

And customers be advised: check your cell phones at the door.

"In this day and age no one really takes time for themselves," said Ishmael. "we offer a chance to feel relaxed, to just start over again."

The new space will allow clients to take time both before and after sessions for the full day spa effect, said Ishmael, noting that a one-hour massage is the equivalent of nine hours of sleep and a facial the equivalent of four hours sleep in terms of muscle relaxation.

Allure Spa has always prided itself on a relaxed, comfortable atmosphere, Ishmael said, and she credited her staff, numbering 18 full and part-time workers, for making it so. Ishmael singled out hair stylists Helen Mello and Elaine Foley and Lori (Derbes) DelVecchio, who specializes in facial and body treatments, for being there "from the start" but emphasized the list didn't stop there. "There's just too many to mention," Ishmael said. "I have always been blessed with a very dedicated staff."

Ishmael noted that staff members are constantly updating their training at institutions like Elizabeth Grady or the New England Massage Therapy Institute or attending seminars on various topics such as hairstyle trends, electrolysis, or "micropeel," the latest technique in skin care.

Ishmael herself was trained in London for skin care, massage, and electrology. A native of Trinidad, Ishmael and husband Azim, who came to Boston for its academics and now works at Jacobs Engineering in Andover, live in Quincy with their two sons, eight-year old Christian and three-year old Silas.

Allure Spa offers: facials and treatments; makeup and tinting; waxing; massage therapy; body treatments; hand and foot treatments; hairstyling; children's hairstyling; permanent waves and relaxers; and color.

Gift packages are also available, including: Memorable Morning, three hours; Mother and Daughter Escape, three and one-half hours; the Ultimate Day Spa, five and one-half hours including Spa lunch; the All Day Inclusive, five hours including Spa lunch; and the Bridal Bouquet, five hours including Spa lunch.

Allure Spa, 15 Quincy Ave., is open Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Morrissey Holiday Party For Charity Dec. 13

Sen. Michael Morrissey will hold his annual Holiday Party Wednesday, Dec. 13 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St., West Quincy.

This year, as in the two previous years, friends, family and supporters of Morrissey will bring a contribution to charity to the holiday party. Morrissey will collect financial donations, food and toys for various charitable organizations in his district.

"I feel privileged to have so many supporters share in this season of caring and giving with me and my family by making such generous contributions to local charities," said Morrissey.

In previous years, recipients included the Holbrook Food Pantry, Quincy Community Action Food Pantry, Atlantic Neighborhood Center in North Quincy, The Toy Drive of the Norwell Police Department, the Quincy Commission on Families, Toys for Tots, the Dianne DeVanna Center and DOVE, based in Quincy devoted to assisting battered women and children. The Dianne DeVanna center in Braintree focuses its efforts on curing and ending child abuse.

This year, Morrissey plans to direct the charitable gifts collected at his holiday party to the Rockland Food Pantry, the Rockland Toy Drive, the Quincy Commission on Families and the Braintree Special Needs Program. Morrissey's holiday party features live music, a buffet, a cash bar and a family atmosphere.

All are welcome to attend.

Burned husband warns others against touching appliances

John O. No, husband of Mary B. Loving, was reported to be badly burned by a toaster he gave to Mary for Christmas. Rumor is that Mary refused to speak to John; all romantic fire apparently was quenched. However, wounds were quickly healed when John came to see us for the appropriate gift of fine jewelry that Mary wanted in the first place. John said, "I just hope and pray that no other husband gets anywhere near a toaster, or any other appliance at Christmas." Good advice, fellows. Come see us today for that gift that she really wants.

Quincy Christmas Festival Parade Highlights

THE ARTS CLUB of North Quincy High School received the Grand Prize of $1,500 and the Father Thomas Tierney Trophy for its float in the 48th annual Christmas Festival Parade Sunday. The trophy recognizes Father Tierney, the founder of the parade. (Quincy Sun photos)

SANTA CLAUS, his reindeer, and some elves wave to parade spectators aboard a float sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

THE MAYOR'S TROPHY, given annually to the best Quincy float, went this year to the Citizens Bank Float.

GRAND MARSHAL Roy Lind and wife Joan have the best seats in the house for the 48th annual Christmas Festival Parade. Lind, longtime voice of WJDA Radio, recently retired after more than three decades at the station.

THE IBEW LOCAL 103 Fife and Drum Band entertains the Quincy Center crowd during Sunday's Christmas Festival Parade.

THE KOCH CLUB float "Bringing Home The Tree" makes its way down Hancock St. during Sunday's parade. The club, founded in 1948 by Richard J. Koch, runs charitable programs during the Christmas season providing food and toys to more than 25 needy Quincy families each year.

"TALL TEX" Rick Cobban seems as big as the great outdoors as he entertains folks during parade festivities Sunday.

Raymondi Favors Open Space For Quincy Ave. School Site

The Ordinance Committee of the City Council will hold a public hearing Tuesday, Jan. 16 at 6:45 p.m. to consider Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi's resolve to re-zone the rejected Quincy High School site off Quincy Ave. for Open Space.

If passed, the measure would re-zone the roughly 16-acre parcel of land originally selected for the new high school as well as a 13-acre parcel often referred to as the "Hazelton Property."

Raymondi said that, following remediation of the property, he envisioned the parcel becoming part of the adjacent Faxon Park and contributing to the quality of life for residents, which Raymondi said had endured much over the past 10 years with the rapid development of apartment houses, condominiums, and retailers.

Following a unanimous vote by the council to hold the public hearing, Raymondi objected to a resolve offered by Councillor Frank McCauley, which asked the city to consider sale of the Quincy Ave. parcel with proceeds returning to funds for a new high school, regardless of location.

Raymondi, whose objection by council rules ended discussion on the matter, said the McCauley resolve was "totally inappropriate" because the council would entertain the thought of selling a property while at the very same time seeking input as to whether or not to re-zone the area for Open Space.

Asked for comment on the matter Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets pointed to the conflicting resolves as evidence that any decision regarding the future of the Quincy Ave. site was "premature."

"The first thing we're going to do is we're going to clean up that land," Sheets said, echoing comments made by DPW Commissioner David Colton at Monday night's City Council meeting.

After remediation, Sheets said, the city would examine its options and "consider very seriously the sale of that land."

The city, Sheets continued, could get $5 million for the property, which could go towards the new high school, or sub-divide the property, using a portion for Open Space and selling the rest.

Patriot Lunch License Transferred

There will be a new owner of the Patriot Lunch, a longtime coffee shop in Quincy Center, which closed only a couple of months ago.

Susan Donnelly plans to open the restaurant at 1352 Hancock St. by the end of this month. She said it will have a new name but told the License Board Tuesday, she hadn't yet decided on which one.

The board granted the transfer of the common victualer license with the stipulation that the exhaust system be replaced and a new kitchen floor be installed.

Donnelly said she was changing from an ordinary stove to a commercial stove and grill and would combine one hood to two hoods. She said all of the cooking would be done in the kitchen area.

Donnelly said she plans to open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. She asked the board however, to extend the hours to 7 a.m. to midnight on special occasions such as First Night on New Year's Eve.

My Lazare Diamond dazzled me with a brilliant message.

LS 396135 U.S.A.

Not only do I love the way it sparkles like fire, it's the diamond that says 'I Love You' brilliantly. Its unique laser inscription identifies it as mine alone, and when I gaze at the sparkle and fire of My Lazare Diamond, I know there's even more to it than meets the eye. It's My Lazare Diamond, and I can prove it.

49 Community Leaders To Man Kettle For Salvation Army

teers for our kettle effort because so many people are trying to balance two jobs just to make ends meet," said Major Ed Forster, who with his wife, Major Flo Forster, are the commanding officers of the Quincy Temple Corps. "Many of the people who come to us for help are employed, but at low-end jobs and just can't afford Christmas for their families or are unable to meet heating and other costs they face in the winter."

"It's wonderful that such busy people as our community leaders take time to help us with our Christmas Kettle effort. They are going the extra mile for others and we appreciate it..."

"This Celebrity Kettle program gets bigger and more significant with each passing year. It's great for Quincy Center to have its leaders standing on the sidewalk and greeting people as they pass by and encouraging them to give to the Salvation Army."

Forster noted that representatives of Quincy's service clubs and churches and individuals have also been helping out manning kettles at various locations.

"But we still need help," he said. "If you, your group or family could help by ringing a bell at one of our kettle sites, please call me at (617) 472-2345. By doing so you'll be brightening the lives of others this Christmas and lifting your own spirits."

Forster also had a message for those in need.

"People who need help with food and toys this Christmas for their family, should apply on Wednesday, Dec. 13 at the Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m."

The community leaders will man the downtown kettle from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow, and Thursday, Dec. 14 and Friday, Dec. 15 in one-hour shifts.

They urge their friends and others to stop by and "help fill the kettle" to help the many who are still in need of help despite today's healthy economy.

Grinch Dims Christmas Spirit For One Wollaston Family

The Christmas decorations stolen early Monday morning from the front lawn of the Dockham family's Elm Ave. home in Wollaston have an estimated value of $100.

But what price tag can you put on a seven-year old's Christmas?

"My son was in tears this morning," Roberta Dockham said after her seven and one-half year old son Kevin discovered that the family's plastic train -- two and one-half feet tall, three-feet long, carrying Santa, and weighted down with 75 pounds of sand -- was missing from the front yard, as was the reindeer portion of a Santa Claus display which had been held into the ground by a stake.

Other decorations, including a nativity set and items which were on the porch, were not touched.

"It's taken away from the kids and it's taken away from the neighborhood," said Dockham, who explained that the train was bought for her son, "a train fanatic," when he was one-year old and that the reindeer were a particular favorite of her four-year old daughter Christine.

The theft -- coupled with a similar incident one Halloween -- has dampened the Christmas spirit for the family and will make them re-think whether or not to decorate in the future. "I don't want to see this happen again," Dockham said.

The Dockhams ask anyone with information on the theft to contact the Quincy Police Department.

Ward Five Association Annual Meeting Dec. 11

Fore River Bridge Update At Quincy Point Meeting

The Quincy Point Business and Professional Association will meet this morning (Thursday) from 8:15 to 9:15 a.m. at the GTN Center of St. Joseph's School.

Registration begins at 8:15 a.m. followed by a welcoming from QPBPA President Thomas O'Brien.

Agenda items include: a QPBPA certificate presentation to Quincy Police Officer Robert Costa for his efforts directing traffic at the intersection of Southern Artery and Washington St.; a construction update on the Fore River Bridge Project; an update by DPW Commissioner David Colton on Quincy Point issues such as Washington St. development and traffic and construction management; and a Quincy 2000 update by Executive Director Joseph Mannarino.

A question and answer period will take place between 9:10 and 9:15 a.m. after which the meeting will adjourn.

The meeting is free and open to QPBPA members and non-members alike.

First Time Homebuyer Workshop At Mass. Co-Op

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved and Certified First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a First Time Homebuyers' Informational Workshop in collaboration with the Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank

Sunday, Dec. 10.

The workshop will be held at 70 Quincy Ave., Quincy, from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. This workshop will be informal but informative. All participants will have the opportunity to work with a mortgage consultant from Massachusetts Co-Operative and receive a free pre-qualification.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area. Don't miss this opportunity to find out how you or someone you know can buy a home with little or no money down.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer, and how to determine the best mortgage program for your needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Contact Debbie Kidd at Neighborhood Housing Services at (617) 770-2387 or Eileen Hilton at the Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank at (617) 456-1478 for more information and to register for the workshop.

Red Cross Highlights Safety For A Joyous Holiday Season

• Be careful with holiday candles. Keep candles away from decorations or other combustible materials. Don't leave children unattended in a room with lit candles. Keep candles, matches and lighters out of the reach of children. Avoid using candles during parties. Never display lighted candles in windows or near exits.

• Test tree trimmings. When decorating with lights, purchase only those labeled by a testing laboratory. If decorating an outside tree, use only those lights labeled for outdoor use. Don't overload electrical outlets, and always unplug all lights before leaving home or going to bed. Never put electrical lights on a metal Christmas tree.

• Keep Christmas trees fresh. Choose a fresh Christmas tree and secure it in a sturdy stand. Place the tree away from heat sources and exits, and water it daily. If you purchase an artificial tree, be sure it is labeled as fire-retardant.

• Prepare for holiday parties. Decorate only with flame-retardant or noncombustible materials. If guests will be smoking, provide them with large, deep ashtrays and check them frequently. After the party, look under upholstery such as couches, between cushions and in trash cans for cigarette butts that may be smoldering.

• Inspect fireplaces and wood stoves. Have your chimney connections and flues inspected by a professional and cleaned if necessary prior to the start of every heating season. Use a sturdy screen when burning fires. Burn only wood — never burn paper or pine boughs. If purchasing a factory-built fireplace or wood stove, select one listed by a testing laboratory, and have it installed according to local codes. If you plan to hang stockings on your fireplace, do not use the fireplace for fires.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), over 143,000 children were treated in hospital emergency rooms for toy-related injuries in 1999 alone. To play it safe this holiday season, and all year long, the safety professionals at UL and the NFPA offer the following tips and precautions for toy safety:

- When shopping for toys,

Don't Toy With Safety

especially electrical toys, look for markings that indicate the product has been tested for safety by an independent, third-party product safety and certification organization, such as UL. If you spot a UL Mark on a toy, it means that samples of that toy have been tested (dropped, pulled, tugged at, and generally torn apart) by UL engineering staff and found to comply with appropriate safety requirements.

- Pay close attention to the recommended age designation marked on the toy or its packaging. Always make sure the child's age matches or exceeds the manufacturer's recommended age specification.

- Before children play with a new toy, read the manufacturer's warning markings and, if applicable, the use and care booklet. Make sure you and your children understand the proper way to play with the toy.
- Immediately discard plastic packaging and gift-wrapping — these materials can pose a suffocation hazard.

- Initially and periodically inspect toys for cracks, breaks, ripped seams, etc. Parts from damaged toys can break off and become a choke hazard. Sharp edges can cause dangerous cuts or other abrasions.

- If a toy requires assembly, make sure a responsible adult assembles the product by completely following the manufacturer's instructions.

- Keep deflated and broken balloons away from small children. Infants and toddlers can easily get them caught in their throats and suffocate.

- Electric toys can become a shock hazard if they're misused. Remember, water and electricity never mix. Never allow your children to use electric toys near water.

- Be alert. Watch television newscasts and scan newspapers and consumer magazines for information on toy or other household product recalls.

Whenever possible, complete and return product warranty and registration forms to the manufacturer. If a product is recalled, the manufacturer can use these forms to contact you directly.

- In the event of an emergency, make sure you have telephone numbers for the appropriate law enforcement agency, fire department, and poison control center posted near every phone in your home.

Hearing aid "Tips from Tobias"

Do I need one or two hearing aids?

We have two ears for many reasons. If you are a candidate for both ears consider yourself fortunate, since some people are deaf on one side and cannot benefit from a hearing aid. The Better

Hearing Institute gives us fifteen reasons for wearing two hearing aids. In this column I can list only a few. 1. People wearing two aids understand speech and conversation better than those wearing one. 2. Better understanding in group and even noisy situations is possible with two aids. 3. People can better detect the source of sounds in every situation with binaural fittings. 4. With two hearing aids hearing range is 360 degrees- not just 180 degrees- and provides a better sense of both balance and sound quality. 5. There is less distortion and better reproduction of amplified sounds with two hearing aids that require less volume than one aid. 6. With two hearing aids people can hear sounds from a farther distance. 7. Sounds are more easily distinguishable with two hearing instruments. For the rest of these reasons call the Better Hearing Institute, check their web site or call me. Now you go and spread the news! Steve

North Quincy's Goal: To Advance In Tournament

By CHRIS POISSON

Sitting at a desk inside the coaches' office of the North Quincy High School gym, Doug MacFarlane is frank about discussing the events that transpired the evening of March 1, 2000.

"That game hurt last year," he said about the girls' basketball team's first-round, tournament loss to Somerset at home. "I still think about it. They shot 70 percent and we were still in the game. It was a weird game.

"We know what we did wrong. We didn't box out well and we're working on that. It was one of our weaknesses last year — and it's not going to be this year."

With the 77-59 defeat still lassoed tightly around Hancock St., MacFarlane has raised the proverbial bar for his Red Raiders this season. "Our goals are definitely higher than they were last year," he said. "This year we want to make the tournament, and go on."

For North Quincy to play well into March, it will have to compensate for the loss of the sweet-shooting Jill Nicholson to graduation. The two-time OCL all-star carried a long-distance calling card, draining threes from almost anywhere on the court. And when the team needed a clutch basket, she delivered.

"It's going to be an adjustment this year without Jill around, to be honest with you," MacFarlane said. "We knew we could depend on her for 15 a game. That's a lot of points. She could light it up anytime. People are probably going to be able to sit back in a zone and bother us. So we're going to try to look to pound the ball inside to the big girls."

The inside game, however, is as uncertain as a Rick Ankiel fastball. North Quincy returns junior center Kahli Dearani and sophomore forward April Suprey to the frontcourt, while adding a pair of sophomore newcomers in Kathleen McCarthy (forward) and Kristen DiMaggio (center).

"My only concern is our frontline," MacFarlane admitted. "Our centers and forwards are young."

Girls' Basketball

Suprey, who shocked the coaching staff as a freshman last year, could be the piece to the puzzle. While many of her teammates double as soccer and volleyball players, Suprey's identity is solely a hoops player, which allows her to focus on her game in the offseason.

"April has really improved from last year," MacFarlane said. "She doesn't play any other sports so she really works hard in the offseason. She's a true basketball player. I think she's going to have a great year."

If the big girls don't pan out, MacFarlane has the option of moving guards Jen Conley and Lauren Sleeth down on the block to try to pick up some points in the paint.

"We have some nice flexibility this year," MacFarlane said. "I can put Sleeth down low because she's a tough kid. [Conley's] not that big, but I can move her inside and out because she's tough under the boards."

Where ever they play, the tri-captains will need to score more than last season to pick up some of slack left behind by Nicholson. Sleeth, a junior, averaged nearly 11 points last year while being named to the OCL All-Star team. Conley, a senior, has a nice shot and will be given more chances to shoot with Nicholson's absence.

"Jen showed us signs last year of being a very good shooter," MacFarlane said. "Unfortunately, with the line-ups we had she always didn't get that chance to show it off. So we're looking for her to step up and maybe fill some off Jill's shoes."

The team has also stressed defense as another way to replace Nicholson. "We can pick up some of that scoring slack on the defensive end, too," MacFarlane said. "If we don't give up the points, we don't have to worry about the scoring."

As for the other tri-captain, senior point guard Casey Ridge happens to be the most important player on the hardwood for North Quincy. Last season, she set the record for most assists in a game (12) and in a season (107). The Red Raiders' success will depend on how she plays, and if it's anything like last year they should be fine.

"Coach's dream," MacFarlane said of Ridge. "She runs the show out there. She handles the ball extremely well. I don't have to worry about bringing the ball up the court. If you want to press us, go ahead. Nobody is going to take it away from her. She's that good."

In addition to her passing and ball-handling skills, Ridge will be asked to score some more. "She has a decent shot," MacFarlane said. "She doesn't shoot it enough, but we're working on that."

As MacFarlane enters his third season at the helm, he feels the girls are finally understanding what he wants from them. After a slow start last year, he believes they'll overcome the tourney disappointment and get off to a quick start, beginning next Tuesday night when they open up on road against Randolph.

"We're disappointed in the first-round loss last year — big time," MacFarlane said. "But I thought we had a great year. This year we're jumping right back into it. I think we're going to be very competitive and fun to watch."

Quincy Girls' To Accent Quickness, Defense

Bob Noble is in the middle of switching the name plates on his desk from football to girls' basketball coach, so forgive him if he seems a bit surprised when you mention that two of the five starters he lost to graduation were all-stars.

"Matter of fact, I haven't even really thought about it until now," Noble said. "Two out of the starting five were all-stars. When you think about it, that's an awful lot to lose."

Indeed. Take away the Lakers' starting lineup, including Shaq and Kobe, and see if you can continue to be successful.

Although the Presidents dropped their first 10 games last season, they turned things around in the second half with a 5-5 record. All that success, though, has been put on hold with the way graduation wiped out the team.

"Yeah, we've lost quite a bit," Noble said of the seven players lost to graduation. "We've lost some good kids and we have to replace them. We have a lot of holes to fill. There's no question about it."

Quincy will surely miss the intensity and passion from its two all-stars. Twin sisters Colleen and Caitlin Nichol were the heart of the last year's squad and were the main reason for the late-season surge.

"Hopefully, we can match the intensity of those players," Noble said. "That's probably our first goal, to play with a great deal of enthusiasm. We'll let the wins and losses take care of themselves. If you don't go out and play that way, you won't be successful, period."

Quincy actually has 11 seniors on the roster, but the problem is most of them played on the JV team last year. Senior Christina Keenan and junior Christine Niosi are the only two players with full-time varsity experience. Senior Kerry Eaton only saw some minutes on the big club as she endured an injury-riddled season.

"We're not going to be the most talented group in the world," Noble said. "But we're going to play hard and be scrappy. We have to rely on pressuring people defensively to force turnovers. We're somewhat quick, so we have to push the ball up the floor offensively and score."

Although everyone will be asked to contribute in some way, Noble has penciled in Keenan, Niosi and Eaton, along with seniors Andrea Pelletier and Pam Sullivan, as a possible starting lineup.

"I have confidence those five will play well," Noble said. "They deserve to be out there. They worked very hard in the offseason."

"But the jobs are all open," he quickly added. "You have to start with five and that's what I'm going with initially."

Experience, Depth Red Raider Keys

While many got a jump-start to their holiday shopping the day after Thanksgiving, Phil McGillicuddy shot hoops at Merrymount Park to get a jump-start on the season that would begin that Monday.

"That's what he does," said Ted Stevenson, head coach of the North Quincy boys' basketball team. "He wants to be one of the best in the league, and he will be."

After leading the team in scoring as a freshman and sophomore, McGillicuddy has clearly established himself as the go-to guy for the Red Raiders this season. Last year he averaged nearly 15 points per game to become the fourth leading vote-getter on the OCL All-Star team.

Following two straight losing seasons, North Quincy has pointed to this season and next as the years to get back into the tournament and do some damage. With that in mind, McGillicuddy improved his game, bulked up in the offseason and now has the necessary experience to compliment his talents.

"Phil realized that after playing two years of varsity ball he had to get a lot stronger," Stevenson said. "And he went out and did it. Before, when he would take the ball to the hoop and get bumped, he'd go flying. Now guys are bumping him and he's sending them flying."

"Another big difference is as a freshman and sophomore he was a very skilled player, and now you can add experience," said varsity assistant coach Jim Rendle. "He's anticipating rather than reacting. That's huge for a junior to have that kind of experience. I think he's going to have real good year."

"I think the experience of the whole team is going to help," Stevenson added.

North Quincy returns 10 kids with varsity experience, and unlike past seasons it has depth — not just bodies, but quality players. With the loss of its two big men, North Quincy will change its style from a slowed-down, set offense to a wild, up-tempo show. And that's where the bench comes into play.

"We've changed our style of play completely," Stevenson said. "We're going to be more of a pressing team. Run, run, run. A run-and-gun type style this year. I think we'll be fun to watch. We're very athletic. We have quality depth. We'll probably play 10, 11 guys every game."

"They're too small to be slowed down, so let them go," Rendle said. "That's why we're doing it. They're all great athletes."

Senior Joe Holleran will accompany McGillicuddy in the backcourt and seniors guards Adam Woo and Brandon Sleeth, both tri-captains, will be the so-called forwards with junior John O'Connell manning the paint.

"It will be like having four guards out there and that's going to make us even more dangerous," Stevenson said. "As much of a match-up problem we'll have playing forwards on the other team, they'll have a match-up problem with us. We'll go right by them."

If opponents believe all they have to do is stop McGillicuddy to win, Stevenson says they'll be in for a long night because everyone on the team has the ability to put the ball in the basket.

"I think this is going to be one of the best shooting teams I've ever had," Stevenson said. "You can't leave any of the starters open; they'll bang it home on you. That's going to help us an awful lot. You can't really concentrate on one guy."

Tri-captain Mike Keddy, along with seniors Matt Yohe, Chris Lockhead, Matt Mooney, Max Repoff, Greg McGinness, Nam Pham and junior Pat Bregoli will all see minutes and at any time this season they can erupt for a big night.

"We have much more balance," Stevenson said. "I think we're the type of team where in five different games we could have five different leading scorers."

Defensively, Woo spearheads the unit with his energized, floor-diving play. He'll be asked to shut down the opposing point guards with his skin-tight defense.

"He's really a leader on the defensive end. He gets us going," Stevenson said. "He's going to drive a lot of point guards crazy. He's the type to get right up in your face. Adam Woo has worked very hard and we expect big things out of him."

Coming off a 7-13 campaign, North Quincy is itching to make it back to the postseason and anything short of playing in March will be make this season a failure.

"I think we'll be one of the top three or four teams in the league," Stevenson said. "I'll be very, very disappointed if we don't make the tournament. We want to get back to the tournament. We've been out of it for two years in a row and we don't like it down here."

Presidents Team Chemistry A Plus

Boys' Basketball

By CHRIS POISSON

If John Franceschini had his way, the headline for this article would read: "QUINCY NEEDS TO BOX OUT."

"We need to box out," stressed Franceschini, who will begin his 17th season as head coach of the Quincy boys' basketball team. "You can put that in big, bold letters. We can't give up second shots. That will annihilate us."

Franceschini has never had the luxury of a big man — someone to camp out in the paint to block shots and snatch rebounds. With the lack of size, the philosophy on Coddington St. has always been an attacking, man-to-man defense: Defense creates turnovers and turnovers lead to transition and transition leads to fast-break points.

"Our defense creates our offense," Franceschini said. "If we can hold people down into the high-40's to mid-50's, we're going to win the game. If we play that good of defense, we feel that our team can put up 55 points because we know that if our defense is that good, we're getting transition baskets."

"But if we go in against the Bridgewater-Raynham and Barnstable, which are bigger than us, and we're running transition but we're giving up second and third shots, the game's over. Jim Calhoun from Connecticut has said that the one thing you can control is boxing out. You can control second shots. And we spend time on it every...single...day."

Quincy will be preaching this system to a team younger than the cast of characters on the WB. It lost six to graduation, including 1,000-point scorer Dan Kelly, and has only three seniors with varsity experience on the roster.

That triad — Mark Robertson, David Centrella and Adam Jurewicz — will determine how far the Presidents go this year. Robertson needs to score and deliver in the clutch, Centrella has to play tough defense on opposing point guards and Jurewicz has to grab eight to 10 boards. Franceschini has made it point to tell them what he expects from them. He has put the ball in their court.

"These three guys bring a different element to the floor," Franceschini said. "Without the three of them clicking it's going to make times tough because of our youth. These three seniors need to take a leadership role and I think they're up for the challenge. Is there pressure there? Absolutely."

Quincy has called up five sophomores from last year's freshman team and has another sophomore who has never played organized ball. It has also brought up seniors Dan Walker and John Lupo and juniors Adam Vecchione and Mike Lorenzano from the JV team.

The fab five sophomores — Matt Ramponi, Kevin O'Connell, Shawn Munchbach, Mike Quigley and Craig Keenan — should adjust easily because they ran the same system under Michael Draicchio that propelled them to an 18-win campaign last year. The sixth sophomore, Jene Washington Morriset, has been described as a kid with "untapped potential" and has been labeled a "project."

"Those five guys were primary figures on last year's freshman team," Franceschini said. "They are used to winning. They really bring great stability to our offense. They all have the ability to score and that is something we were really inconsistent with last year."

Lorenzano and Vecchione, who worked out with the varsity club last season, will be expected to contribute significantly. Walker and Lupo will be role players coming off the bench.

"Mike is the starting quarterback on the football team and I always think that is important when it comes down to confidence," Franceschini said. "He's probably our most physical player. Adam is a great transition player. He brings great defense and the ability to run up and down the floor."

With the absence of a Kelly, a consistent 20-point scorer, Franceschini thinks he has a team where a lot of players can average seven to 10 points per game. "If enough guys do that, then that's the best situation of them all," he said.

Despite the mix of the upper and lowerclassmen, the team has nice chemistry because a lot of the kids have developed relationships on the football field. "These kids are pretty tight," Franceschini said. "They enjoy each other and they're pushing each other right now. Those are some good signs."

The Presidents have a favorable schedule with only three games in December and a cluster of home games early and late in the season. The only rough stretch is in January when they have three games in a week for two weeks.

"The key for us is that we only have three games in December, which is wonderful because it's going to give us a chance to really get football legs into basketball legs and give the kids a good month to prepare for the league," Franceschini said.

"If we can get to the middle of January and be no worse than .500, then it's very realistic we could go to the tournament."

Quincy Girls Accent Quickness, Defense

game [Marshfield, Dec. 11] that could change."

Niosi will face the arduous task of replacing Kelly Raymer at point. She holds the inside track over senior Meaghan Connolly because of her experience from a year ago. Sullivan will accompany her in the backcourt at off-guard.

"We have to find someone to lead the team," Noble said. "Right now, Christine is a little ahead only because she was a varsity player a year ago."

In the post, Keenan, Eaton and Pelletier will be counted on to make their presence felt and provide some inside scoring. Keenan, who had some spot starts last season, needs to establish herself as the go-to player. "She has to step up and score for us," Noble said.

For the first time in Noble's tenure as head coach, a freshman may have a chance to lace up the sneaks for the varsity club. Bonni Hirtle, who led the Sacred Heart girls to the cadet championship last season, will be given a chance to showcase her shooting touch.

"Bonnie is a very good player," Noble said. "The only drawback is the fact that she is in ninth grade. But we anticipate her becoming a very good basketball player. We need an outside presence as far as a consistent outside shot is concerned. We'll take a look at her."

With many new, inexperienced faces filling out the bench, it would be unrealistic for this team to have its sight set on the tournament. Noble just wants the girls to be the team that works the hardest every single game.

"All I'm asking for them is to go out and play hard and be enthusiastic and aggressive with what they're doing. And we'll go from there."

'Identity Theft' Part 2

To prevent Identity Theft from happening to you:

- Do not use your personal information over the phone, through the mail, or over the internet unless you have initiated the contact or know whom you are dealing with. Identity thieves will pose as bank representatives, Internet service providers, and even government officials to get you to reveal identifying information.
- Shred all documents, including pre-approved credit applications received in your name, insurance forms, bank checks and statements you are discarding, and other financial information.

- Do not use your mother's maiden name, your birth date, the last four digits of your Social Security number, or a similar series of numbers as a password for anything.
- Minimize the identification and the number of cards you carry. Take what you'll actually need. Don't carry your Social Security card, birth certificate, or passport, unless necessary.

- Do not put your Social Security number on your checks or your credit receipts. If a business requests your Social Security number, give them an alternate number and explain why. If a government agency requests your Social Security number, there must be a privacy notice accompanying the requests.
- Do not put your telephone number on checks.
- Be careful using ATM's and phone cards. Someone may look over your shoulder and get your PIN numbers, thereby gaining access to your account.
- Make a list of all your credit card account numbers and bank account numbers with customer service phone numbers and keep it in a safe place.

A Message From South Shore Mental Health When Holiday Drinking Crosses The Line

By TOM O'TOOLE
Quitting Time
A program of South Shore Mental Health

It's that special time of year again we affectionately refer to as "the holidays." And no matter what the occasion we celebrate during this time, whether it's Christmas, Hanukkah, New Year's or another special event, alcoholic beverages can provide added cheer to our year-end celebrations.

We enjoy alcohol because it can help enhance our spirits or even put us in a relaxed mood, and, for most of us, drinking in moderation is not a problem.

But during the holidays there are circumstances that may cause usually responsible people to overindulge in alcohol. It's helpful to be aware of what causes us to drink too much during this time of year and how to recognize when "normal" drinking has become a problem.

TOM O'TOOLE

Why we drink too much at the holidays

The holidays are a time of joy, cheer, parties and family gatherings. They can also be a time of stress, fatigue and unrealistic expectations. The demands of socializing, the tension of crowded and hurried shopping, and the let-down that can result from family gatherings are just some of the reasons we feel pressure during the holidays. Some of us depend on alcohol during these times to help temporarily feel more relaxed.

How to tell if holiday drinking has become a problem

The practical definition of alcohol abuse is when someone has difficulty limiting alcohol intake even when they have experienced a negative consequence with their drinking. If someone drinks more than they usually would or if their behavior changes, these could be warning signs that they are having a problem controlling their drinking. When the shy person becomes unusually talkative or the outgoing person becomes withdrawn, this could indicate that drinking is getting out of hand.

Where to go for help

What should you do if you notice that your behavior or the behavior of a friend or family member is changing significantly when drinking? First, monitor intake. Learn how much is too much. If you find that despite good intentions, the tendency is still there to overindulge, it is time to discuss the problem with a professional. If you're concerned and would like to talk about options or simply get more information, call South Shore Mental Health's Quitting Time Addictions Services Programs at (617) 847-1923.

This holiday season, if you find you are having a problem with drinking too much, give yourself and your loved ones the greatest gift of all — sobriety.

Quitting Time Addictions Services is comprised of a multidisciplinary team of clinicians, including certified addictions counselors, licensed psychologists and social workers, nurses and psychiatrists. All are experienced in the 12-step model of recovery.

SCOTT DEWARE

The scars are removed and our one time enemies can become friends. Yet, in person to person - day by day living = one time friends can become enemies...

It is a disturbing reflection that some people, at times, place themselves on a higher level than God. All of us, at some time or another, are guilty of religious infidelities. But, when with humility, in an aloneness before God, we ask forgiveness for our faults, we know He will say, "I forgive." Since this is true, isn't it silly for people to refuse forgiveness to people for far less serious hurts?...

A very wise man once said that to forgive is the quickest way to end trouble and to have peace and unity. For a forgiving spirit is by its very nature a unifying force. It can remove the barriers of separation between people and nations and weld them together in peace and goodwill. To hate is to die physically and spiritually, but to forgive is to live...

Dr. Charles Gaughan, 56 Founder Of South Shore Cardiology

DR. CHARLES GAUGHAN

A funeral Mass for Dr. Charles E. Gaughan, 56, of Marshfield, formerly of Quincy, a cardiologist, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Christine's Church, Marshfield Hills.

Dr. Gaughan died at home Dec. 1 of pancreatic cancer.

Dr. Gaughan was the first cardiologist to join South Shore Hospital's medical staff in 1976 and was active in hospital affairs almost until his death.

He was the first physician to serve two consecutive terms as president of the hospital's medical staff.

Dr. Gaughan was founder and president of South Shore Cardiology, PC, a practice he founded in 1976.

Born in South Boston, he was raised in North Quincy and graduated from North Quincy High School in 1962.

He graduated from Harvard College in 1966 and Tufts University Medical School in 1970. He was an intern at Boston City Hospital in 1970 and 1971 and completed his medical residency there in 1974 and 1975.

From 1972 to 1974, Dr. Gaughan served in the US Air Force and, upon completion of his military service, became a cardiology fellow with Dr. Bernard Lown at Brigham & Women's Hospital in Boston.

It was during this post-doctoral fellowship that Dr. Gaughan began his long association with South Shore Hospital.

Dr. Gaughan became the first cardiologist to join South Shore Hospital's medical staff in 1976 and helped the hospital evolve into one of the state's busiest in diagnosing and treating cardiac conditions. He chaired the hospital's department of medicine from 1991 to 1993 and was elected to the first of his two one-year terms as medical staff president in 1995. As president, he was instrumental in creating a division of cardiology to more effectively represent the interests of the growing number of cardiologists practicing at South Shore Hospital.

"Dr. Gaughan's advocacy on behalf of quality care in the region went far beyond his role as a physician to his own patients," said David T. Hannan, president and chief executive officer of South Shore Hospital. "From the bedside to the boardroom, he created the model for clinical leaders to follow."

Dr. Gaughan is survived by his wife, Susan E. (Burns) Gaughan; a son, Matthew Gaughan of Marshfield Hills; a daughter, Kathleen Gaughan of Boise, ID; his mother, Margaret (Sullivan) Gaughan of North Quincy; a brother, Dr. Gerard L. Gaughan of Milton; and two sisters, Betsy Gaughan of North Quincy and Margaret McLaughlin of Quincy.

Burial was in Couch Memorial Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the McDonald Funeral Home, 809 Main St., South Weymouth.

Donations may be made to the Hospice of the South Shore, c/o South Shore Health and Educational Foundation, 55 Fogg Rd., South Weymouth 02190.

Margaret Fearing, 92

A private funeral service for Margaret (Prena) Fearing, 92, of Quincy, was held at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

She died Nov. 19.

recent unpleasantness, and reach out to include more family members in your holiday plans. This will go a long way toward resolving those problems.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're a child of light, which is why these darker, shorter days might depress you. Lighten up those moody moments by sharing good times with friends and family.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your social life is energized with new friends you meet at holiday events. An old friend comes has an interesting suggestion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Recently received family news might cause you to shift your priorities. Don't allow holiday pressures to influence the decision you'll ultimately make.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A new financial opportunity has you wavering between rushing in and backing away. Do neither. Take time to evaluate.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You love to give beautiful presents as much as you relish receiving them. But be careful to rein in your tendency to overspend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That recent unsteady period settles down, and you can now begin to make plans that will carry you through to your goals.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Forget any SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) News from the workplace could make this a very special holiday season.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although things seem to be smoother between you and that special person, some knotty problems still remain to be unraveled.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You love to be surrounded by family, especially during the holidays. This year, prepare to be surprised by the arrival of a special someone from the past.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The holiday season starts the Water Bearer off on a new and brighter course that could lead to the well-earned fulfillment of many dreams.

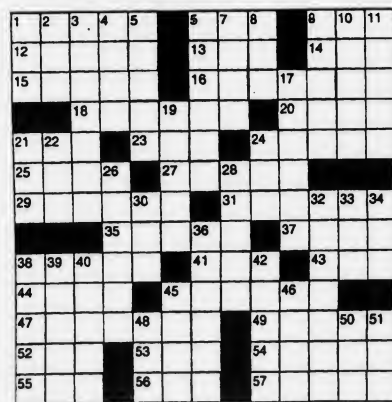

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're going to love splashing around in the social sea that marks your holiday-season aspects. Get out there and enjoy every wonderful moment.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have a tendency to believe that you know what's best for everyone — and you're often right.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Plans Underway To Move USS Salem To Marina Bay

by Curator Jim Fahey of Braintree, which includes such none Naval items as an 1888 Gatling gun, an "assassination gun" from World War II, and Revolutionary War artifacts.

"The new location will enhance Squantum Point Park, which is adjacent to the shops and entertainments of Marina Bay," said Walsh. "It will also give us greater visibility. That's important because we have to raise every single dime ourselves."

The Salem will get some $200,000 for engineering the new site from the Massachusetts Highway Department as mitigation for getting out of the way of the new Fore River Bridge and "we'll be looking for additional mitigation," said

Walsh.

The mitigation obtained through the efforts of Mayor James Sheets, State Rep. Ron Mariano and George O'Malley, a member of the Salem's board of directors.

An engineer, Ronald R. Bourne of Bourne Consulting Engineering, has been hired to develop the plans for dredging as well as relocating the ship.

Other than the mitigation funds, the Salem and its Museum are on their own.

Most recently, they raised $36,187 from the 11-day "Haunted Ship" Halloween event and $7,869 from a dinner and auction at the Neighborhood Club.

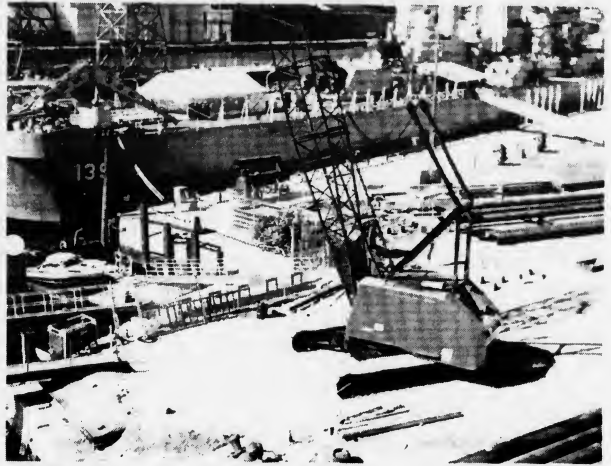

Next on the fund-raising menu is "The Enchanted Ship" event on the weekend of Dec. 15-17 at which visitors are asked to bring a "toy for a tot" and a canned good for a needy family.

Santa Claus and Mrs. Claus and their elves will be on hand along with refreshments, activities, the opportunity for a picture with Santa and a tour of the Salem. The event is sponsored by Sprague Energy Corporation.

Admission, at half price, is $3 for adults, $2 for children. Hours are 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 15, and 12 noon to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 16 and 17.

Sprague Energy also donated 3,000 of fuel oil to the Salem, which, according to Walsh, "is our biggest expense. We use an average of $150 gallons a day, 250 gallons a day when the temperature is below freezing."

CONSTRUCTION activity on the new Fore River Bridge is this close to the USS Salem, which forces its coming move to Squantum Point Park.

Planning Board Hearing Dec. 13 For Proposed Hotel

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing Wednesday, Dec. 13 at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall to discuss a special permit for a four-story, wood-framed, 72-room hotel proposed for the former Winfield House site currently owned by Eastern Nazarene College.

The property is located at 845 to 865 Hancock St.

Copies of the proposal may be examined at the office of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock St., Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Works. Bragg added that she would like to see more than one member of the School Committee on the commission as well as teacher and parent representatives. "I think it's important to hear from teachers and parents, the people who will be most affected by the decision," Bragg said.

The new commission, Bragg said, would "start fresh" and look at every possible site for a new QHS, including a thorough review of the work done by the previous School Buildings Needs Task Force, which ultimately selected the site off Quincy Ave. "We will look at every possible option," Bragg said.

As for bringing former members of the task force aboard the newly created commission, Bragg said their experience would be of great value but that several of them, after more than a three year commitment, have expressed a desire not to be on the new commission.

Stating he would not allow the issue of whether or not to build the new Quincy High School on a remediated industrial landfill divide the city, Mayor Sheets removed the Quincy Ave. parcel from consideration Nov. 28.

BULLETIN

When a vehicle has an inherent design problem known to the manufacturer, the company will likely issue a technical service bulletin that describes the problem and the corrective action required. Bulletins such as these help both consumers and technicians to avoid costly and time-consuming efforts at diagnosing problems. One of the more common corrective actions described in technical service bulletins involves the replacement of computer microchips called "proms." These components store information on how much fuel the engine will receive under various operating conditions, ignition timing, etc. Because only the manufacturer knows whether the code works properly, it must take the lead in supplying replacement proms containing revised codes that enable engines to achieve maximum efficiency and performance. Most everything in your car is part of a "system." For most of your car's maintenance and repair needs, rely on our ASE Certified Technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Learn for yourself why so many of your friends and neighbors turn to us to keep their family cars in top condition. For the best service in town, we're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Tutorial Program To Start At Union Congregational

The Union Congregational Church will soon begin a weekly tutorial program for students — and their volunteer "learning partners" — of all ages, needs, and backgrounds, says its pastor, Rev. John Swanson.

The program, which is being run by Higher Educational Development and Upliftment Program (HEDUP), a non-profit Christian outreach organization based in Braintree, will handle all subjects and levels of learning, although students studying for the MCAS will be of particular focus.

"It's from eight to 80," Rev. Swanson said of the program, noting that learning partners already on board range in age from his mother to a 15-year old high school student.

Swanson said that the sessions, tentatively scheduled for Wednesday nights, will represent a community-based, ecumenical outreach program which will offer one-on-one learning relationships within a group atmosphere. "The church needs to be available beyond Sundays," Rev. Swanson said, "especially when it comes to education."

Rev. Swanson said that one reason for initiating the program at Union Congregational was his recent bid to become a member of the Quincy School Committee. "I saw so many kids confused and terrified by the MCAS," said Rev. Swanson. "I began to see tutoring as a real need."

Paul Linehan, founder and program director of HEDUP, says that Union Congregational is the first church to partner with the organization since it revised its mission statement to focus less on GED preparation and be more encompassing in scope.

"There are no pre-qualifications for students," Linehan said, although he added that the learning, which is done at the student's own pace, requires motivation and dedication on the part of the student.

Linehan, who has experience as both a GED tutor and teacher, started the all-volunteer HEDUP in 1993 as his Thesis Study Project while obtaining his master's degree from the Harvard Extension School.

The program, Linehan said, makes use of Math Made Easy and Reading Made Easy, well-respected educational videos which will be available to all students and their families.

Rev. Swanson said he expects the church's tutorial program to begin by the end of the month.

For more information or to volunteer at Union Congregational Church, call (617) 479-6661.

For more information on HEDUP, or to become either a student or a learning partner, call (781) 843-3343.

Impact Quincy Honors 'Community Heroes' Friday

Impact Quincy will honor several members of the community with its Community Hero Award Friday from noon to 2 p.m. at the second floor Conference Room of City Hall.

The award recognizes honorees for their dedication to the reduction of underage drinking in the city of Quincy. It is offered yearly and is a result of nominations by other members of the community.

Among recipients this year are: Mayor James Sheets; Police Chief Thomas Frane; Kathy Quigley, director of Germantown Community Services; Peer Leaders of the youth program H2O, "Health To Others;" Co-chairpersons of IQ "People of Color" Coalition Donna Johnson and Dianne Pinckney.

Quincy DARE Peer Leadership Group; Impact Quincy Leadership Group; Shawn Sheehan, director of Faxon House Recovery; Anne Marie Zukauskas, principal of Broad Meadows Middle School; and Ruth Norton, volunteer advocate of Germantown Community Services.

"The importance of this event is difficult to overestimate," said Program Manager Alejandro Rivera. "This is a pure example of a celebration of members of our community by our community. The youth groups nominated for this award worked hard a whole year to set an example to others and show to adults and teenagers alike that it is possible to have fun without alcohol and drugs."

"These groups provide information and skills to other teens on issues of health and other wellness matters in settings that are alcohol, tobacco, and drug-free. Our distinguished members of the adult community are recognized for their outstanding leadership and dedication to the commitment of reducing underage drinking in the city of Quincy.

"These people are community activists and leaders who truly care about the community, and work well with all segments of the population. They display an outstanding initiative in everything they do and are committed to the goals and mission of Impact Quincy."

Refreshments for the occasion will be provided by Impact Quincy.

City Returns To 169% Tax Classification

Raymond, in defense of the 175 percent he proposed last year, responded that neighborhoods were the heart of the city and that residents, including fixed-income seniors and young couples, were being squeezed out of Quincy because they couldn't afford it. "These are good people of modest means who wish to make Quincy their home," Raymond said. "I know in my heart that I cannot ask them to pay anymore."

Speaking to The Sun Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets said he was pleased with the council's decision since 169 percent had been his recommendation since 1993, amended last year in a controversial vote by the council. "It was fair all those years and it's still fair," Sheets said, adding that he hoped the council's vote would have a "healing impact" on city and business relations since many business owners were angered by last year's hike and felt shut out from the process.

"This is a victory for the entire city of Quincy," said Anthony Agnitti, chairman of the Quincy Business Council, who emphasized a QBC theme that business and residents were partners, not adversaries, in a strong economy and a strong community. "Some citizens of Quincy may not realize it now, but five years down the road, when the city has an increased business base, strong development, and a lower tax burden on residents, the city will praise this council for their bravery and foresight."

After last year's vote, the QBC organized a year long campaign to advocate for the 169 percentage, arguing to officials and taxpayers alike that a strong business community was essential to a strong city and that many business owners were Quincy residents. The campaign culminated at Monday night's meeting with remarks from many business leaders including Agnitti, Granite City Electric owner Phyllis Godwin, State Street Bank Realty President Thomas Cataldo, Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, and Keohane Funeral Home owner Edward Keohane, among others.

"I applaud the intelligence of the City Council," Keohane said after the vote, explaining that city businesses bear 40 percent of the tax burden while receiving far less services than residents.

And the most important message of the lower percentage, Keohane added, would not be sent to business owners like himself and Curry/Ace Hardware's Robert Curry, both lifelong residents with no thoughts of leaving the city, but to outside companies who will view Quincy as more business-friendly.

"We won't walk out on our city," Curry promised councillors at the public hearing. All we want you to do is be fair. As a resident, I'm going to pay (the taxes) either way."

Ronald Zooleck, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, warned councillors that the worst effects of maximum classification would never be seen, with decisions made in faraway boardrooms not to locate in Quincy.

State Street's Cataldo also presented a strong argument for the 169 percentage, pointing out that State Street Corp., the city's largest taxpayer, pays over $5 million in taxes and employs over 9,000 workers, including 2,000 Quincy residents with a combined income of close to $90 million. Noting State Street's commitment to such projects as the soon-to-be built Germantown Community Center and Father Bill's Place, Cataldo called State Street and Quincy "good partners" and urged the council to send a "positive message" to business.

The public hearing, which was filled to capacity, also included many residents and city leaders in favor of maintaining the 175 percent classification, or seeking a compromise figure, with the city, state, and national affordable housing crisis given most as a reason.

Speakers included residents Bartholomew Caggiano, Matteo Panarelli, and Ann Yeomans as well as the Rev. Sheldon Bennett of United First Parish Church and the Rev. William Mullin of St. John's Church.

"We already have a housing crisis," Rev. Bennett said. "We are concerned for those low and moderate income wage earners, especially those who are renters."

Caggiano, a senior citizen and World War II veteran, told councillors that many veterans and non-veterans were "still fighting a war of personal survival" due to rising insurance, prescription, and heating costs and urged councillors to help them out. "We voted for you. Now it's your turn to vote for us," Caggiano said.

But in the end the majority of councillors voted to return to the mayor's recommendation, saying that last year presented "extraordinary circumstances" due to the bailout of what is now Quincy Medical Center.

McDermott, one of the three no votes against the 175 percentage last year along with Harold and McCauley, seemed to summarize the council's position: "We will be sending the right message with 169 percent."

N.Q. Library Closes Saturday Reopens Jan. 8

As of Saturday, the North Quincy Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library will close until Monday, Jan. 8.

During that time, workers will return books and other inventory back to the main library, which is already closed in preparation for its Feb. 4 Open House and Feb. 5 re-opening.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin said the North Quincy Branch, which has served as the main library since construction began on a new wing for the actual main library in Quincy Center, will return to its permanent book collection and regular business hours after the Jan. 8 date.

The H.H. Richardson building of the main library closed Dec. 8 in anticipation of the grand re-opening of the main library Monday, Feb. 5 complete with a $15 million, 50,000 square foot addition which will boast an extensive children's room, state-of-the-art technology, a variety of meeting rooms and quiet study areas, and a library cafe.

From Saturday until the Feb. 5 re-opening, there will be no access to the main library's collection.

"Everything's in limbo (until that date)," said McLaughlin, who reminded library patrons that December and January were "fine-free" months in recognition of the transition period. "But that doesn't mean it's still not a good idea to return your library books," she added.

The Adams Shore and Wollaston Branches, McLaughlin said, will remain open during the transition period with their regular schedules, as will the Bookmobile. The library can be reached at (617) 376-1301.

An Open House for the public in celebration of the new main library will be held Sunday, Feb. 4 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

TROUBLES WITH AIR BUBBLES

A spongy feel of the brake pedal should lead car owners to check their automobiles' brake fluid levels. If it is necessary to add fluid, have the auto technicians check out the reason for the fluid loss. Brake pedals may also exhibit sponginess due to air trapped in the brake hydraulic system. When this happens, depressing the brake pedal causes the air to compress. As a result, the air bubble absorbs some of the pressure that is supposed to be reserved for the system. This reduces pressure in the brake calipers and wheel cylinders to reduce braking power. To remove the air, the system must be bled. At the same time, it is a good idea to replace all the brake fluid, which absorbs moisture over time. This moisture can boil upon hard braking and cause brake failures. Don't hesitate to ask any questions about your brakes or about anything else related to your car when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Kerry To Attend

Navy Will Convey Squantum Gardens At Ceremonies Friday

In a first-of-its-kind "special conveyance," the United States Navy will pass ownership of the 27-acre Squantum Gardens property to the privately run, non-profit Elder Housing Corporation for $1 at ceremonies slated for 9 a.m. tomorrow (Friday).

The special conveyance will allow for a long-awaited two-phase rehabilitation project which will eventually result in 152 units of affordable senior housing.

Senator John Kerry will attend the ceremonies which will see city officials and representatives from the Navy, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), and the Elder Housing Corporation sign a memorandum of understanding concerning the parcel, which lies at the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St. and for years served as Navy housing in conjunction with operations at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Senator Edward Kennedy, Governor Paul Cellucci, and Congressman William Delahunt, among others, have also been invited to attend the ceremony.

The memorandum of understanding will state that, as of the formal closing Dec. 20, Squantum Gardens will be passed from the Navy through HUD to the Elder Housing Corp.

"In essence, the Elder Housing Corporation will be purchasing Squantum Gardens for a $1," said Mayor James Sheets. "This is the first conveyance of this type in the country and it is considered a model which will be used in the conveyance of federal and military land."

In fact, Sheets said, one of the reasons the conveyance -- which has been a goal of the mayor's for several years -- took so long to accomplish was that nothing like it had ever been done across the country. "We were writing the regulations as we moved the process, but I'm told that this model will now be used almost immediately in Key West, Florida," Sheets said.

Sheets said that one of the benefits of the agreement was that the city will have no financial liability for the project.

However, the city, along with HUD, will monitor the project over the next 20 years to make sure that the private, non-profit Elder Housing Corporation makes good on its part of the agreement. "We are going to make sure they (Elder Housing Corp.) do exactly what they said they were going to do in the transfer of the deed."

Project monitoring will be conducted through the city's Planning Department.

Sheets credited Senator Kerry for his efforts in making the Squantum Gardens special conveyance a reality, noting that it was Kerry who arranged the first meetings between Sheets and HUD Secretary Andrew Cuomo.

"He's been extremely helpful in this process," Sheets said of Kerry. "He's been the mover and the shaker on this project."

CBS EVENING NEWS Correspondent Randall Pinkston (left) interviews City Clerk Joseph Shea about punch card versus optical scan ballot systems as the cameras roll in the basement of City Hall. Shea's expertise on both systems, as well as his familiarity with the Delahunt-Johnston primary of 1996, made him the ideal person to comment upon the presidential process in Florida, where punch card ballots similar to those used in Quincy until 1996 (but before the Delahunt-Johnston primary) are in dispute. CBS Interviews Shea On Florida Ballot Battle

City Clerk Joseph Shea knew of dimpled, pregnant, and hanging "chads" long before the word bullied itself into the national vocabulary.

"I've seen thousands of them," Shea told CBS Evening News Correspondent Randall Pinkston, who visited Quincy City Hall recently to interview Shea about the controversial punch card ballot system.

Punch card ballots, the cause of much controversy in various Florida counties this presidential election, were used in Quincy between the years 1985 and 1996 but were replaced by the more expensive and more accurate optical scan system.

"It's a clerk's nightmare," Shea said of the problems caused by the punch card system, adding that "if those machines aren't taken down and cleaned after every election, you can have problems."

CBS decided to interview Shea -- who in various capacities is a veteran of 30 elections and roughly 10 recounts involving particular offices -- for his knowledge of both systems and also for his experience with the controversial William Delahunt versus Philip Johnston Democratic primary for Congress in 1996.

In that primary, Johnston was at first declared the winner only to have a judge award a majority of 900 contested Weymouth ballots, which due to machine error had been indented but not punched, to Delahunt.

That gave Delahunt the victory by 108 votes which, after a defeat of Republican State Rep. Edward Teague, put him in Congress a few months later.

Quincy had no such problems in that vote because, at Shea's urging, the city had already switched to the optical scan system.

But Shea did testify in court during the legal battle over the votes and is no stranger to the issues now raised in places like Palm

Time To Move The Granite Ball

I know this isn't going to play well in Quincy Point. It didn't when I first suggested it a few years ago. But, I'll try again.

Really, isn't it time?

Isn't it time to move the granite ball from the Fore River traffic rotary back to City Hall where it was originally and where it really belongs?

And, maybe for its own safety.

There's a lot of work going on now around the rotary for its redesign and the new Fore River bridge is under construction. A temporary bridge supposedly to be followed by a permanent.

The area looks pretty hazardous right now. Something like a war zone.

Hate to think of the ball getting whacked and cracked by a bulldozer, or by a truck or car coming off the bridge.

But even if the ball isn't in harm's way, it still belongs back at City Hall -- where it could be seen and really appreciated. You can't get a good look at it where it is now without risking an accident going around the rotary.

The near 11-ton polished ball was presented to the city June 25, 1925 to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Quincy in 1625.

It was a gift to the city -- the entire city, not one section -- by the Quincy Granite Manufacturers Association who also selected the spot where they wanted it: alongside the city clerk's office outside old City Hall.

The ball was moved to the Fore River traffic rotary in 1937.

That may have been a good idea back then.

But Route 3A is no longer a major highway into the city. Much of the traffic is the same cars coming and going over the bridge each day. How much attention do those people give the ball? For them the ball is old hat.

And anyone wanting to get a good look at the ball could get in a bad accident instead of not keeping their eye on the road.

You can't park and walk out to it unless you enjoy dodging cars and trucks.

Children who used to love seeing their reflections in the mirror-like polished granite of the ball when it was at City Hall are cheated of that fun today. Imagine them trying to get through the heavy traffic to get to the ball today.

The ball would be seen by many more visitors and tourists if it were back at City Hall. It would be another attraction like the new Abigail Adams statue across the street beside historic First Parish Church. Tourists, visitors -- and residents -- could see it close-up. And the kids could see their reflection again in what used to be called the "Gazing Ball."

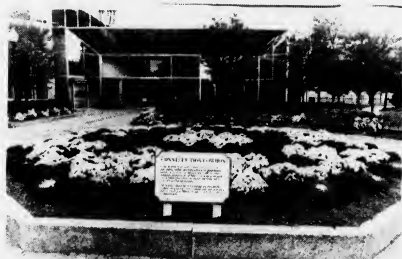

It would also be the crown jewel on Constitution Common with the "Walk of Names" and beautiful flowers and shrubs.

The site would be the appropriate showcase for a fitting tribute to Quincy's granite manufacturing and

(From the Tom Galvin collection)

craftsmen who made Quincy granite famous the world over.

I still think, as I said back in 1993, the rotary should have a handsome model of one of the famous ships that were built at the Fore River shipyard. Maybe, for example, the USS Quincy. Or the Lexington or the Massachusetts.

Quincy Point is known for its great ships -- not for granite.

Why not a swap?

An attractive model ship at the rotary as a tribute to Quincy Point's great shipbuilding history. And the ball returned to City Hall.

With all that construction work going on at the Fore River bridge and rotary area, now would be a good time to do it.

The ball was given to the entire city. And it should be back where those who gave it as a gift wanted it to be seen. At City Hall.

That's where it belongs.

For all to see.

Suggests Land Exchange For New QHS Site

Editor, The Quincy Sun: It was a decision of Mayor Sheets of Quincy to drop the idea of building a high school on an asbestos disposal site in South Quincy. This decision was reached after parents, concern citizens, and some members of the school committee picketed, wrote letters, attended numerous informational meetings and spoke at hearings. It showed that people have the power to affect outcomes when united, but with much effort. These efforts by citizens of Quincy are commendable.

Now it is up to the committee to find a new location. I suggest the following land exchange.

Construct a new, state-of-the-art public works garage on the asbestos site in South Quincy, and build the new high school on the present public works site off Sea Street. This solution would keep the school close to the police station, public transportation, the new 13 million dollar library addition, South Shore YMCA, after school work opportunity at the nearby supermarket, Quincy College, and Bethany Church to mention only these, which are fine resources for the high school students.

This would mean no land taking cost, and the money could be used for the garage. Further, no sacrificing of parkland and minimizing student transportation cost. In addition, the Sea Street site would also be close to the athletic fields of the Merrymount Park.

The city should not sell the asbestos site now that Bethlehem Steel is paying for its clean-up, and it has already purchased it. The city has also used its valuable resources in its procurement. The hours of negotiations and paperwork do not come cheap.

The trouble with Quincy is that it is too eager to sell its resources, and then find itself scrambling for land for needed expansions and open space. Most cities and towns try to procure land for future use, not give it away or sell at minimal cost. "Sell the asbestos site at minimum cost..." one of the city councilors was quoted.

Quincy's Yesterdays Kindergarten To Start In September

By PAUL HAROLD

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Paul Gossard announced that after much planning, the city would begin kindergarten classes in September. He estimated that costs to start up the new classes would be minimal since there would be no need for additional classrooms or additional teachers. The only costs would be for the purpose of new equipment, that he budgeted at $36,000.

The kindergarten classes would be for half a day, with only two sessions. Eleven of the city's first grade teachers had already expressed an interest in transferring to teach kindergarten.

BURGIN PROPOSES NEW STADIUM SEATING
Former Mayor Thomas Burgin, in a letter to the school committee, proposed the construction of concrete seating on the easterly side of the stadium. The stadium was built during Burgin's administration.

Burgin said his proposal for new seating was prompted by his recent attendance at the Thanksgiving Day game when 12,000 people jammed the stadium that had seating for only 5,366. He said the overcrowded wooden stands on the easterly side created a safety issue that had to be addressed.

As a way to save money and to pay for the expanded seating capacity, Burgin proposed that the construction be done by the city's DPW and that fees for stadium rentals be used to amortize the expansion cost.

HEADLINE HERE

The First Parish Church celebrated the 125th anniversary of the dedication of the "new" church building. It was the fourth building that housed the congregation since its founding. The new building, commonly referred to as the "Stone Temple," was built under the terms of John Adams's will, at a cost of $30,488.

The pastor, Rev. Charles Wing, noted the congregation was one of the oldest in the U.S. and for 69 years was the only religious society between Boston and Plymouth. Its original name for the Congregational Society of Quincy.

QUINCY-ISM

An estimated 50,000 viewed the city's Christmas parade, the largest crowd ever. It wasn't, however, the largest in the city's history. That record of 100,000 was for the Tercentenary Parade. . . Clark and Smith construction company of Quincy was the low bidder for the new YMCA, at $967,715. . . The Quincy Chamber of Commerce sought the Navy's intentions for the Squantum Naval Air Station, that is recently abandoned, with all functions transferred to South Weymouth. . . The Norfolk County GOP passed a resolution calling for the construction of the third Forrestal class carrier at Fore River. The resolution was sponsored by city committee chairman Theodore Parsons and Rep. William Jenness. . . William Farrar, city planner, told the Lions Club meeting at the Fox and Hounds about the impact on the city of the new Southeast Expressway. . . One hundred attended the meeting of St. Ann's Holy Name Society at the Wollaston School. Taylor Ahern was program chairman. . . Henry Donaher, Jr., was president of St. John's Holy Name Society. . . Mrs. Elsa Morgan, the only woman on the police force, was called for a secret meeting with D.A. Edward Dewing. . . The King Family Fund announced the distribution of $15,500 to 29 charities and 43 churches. Theophilus King established the fund on his 69th birthday with all distributions made on his birthday. . . George Yarrington, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, called the city council, a "do-nothing" group, suggesting that the council meet weekly instead of twice a month. . . City Manager William Deegan and Mayor David McIntosh attended a White House conference on Civil Defense. . . Gian Roffo of Liberty St. was engaged to John Nicastro of Penn St. . . Joan Kenney was engaged to Peter Chrisom. . . Topping the civil service list for captain in the police department were John Wueth, Joseph Fitzgerald, Anthony Caperci, Charles Ferrazzi, William Devine and Frank Vallier. . . James Kelley of Farrington St. was elected state president of the engineers' association. . . A four-bedroom house on Furnace Brook Parkway was offered for $11,700.

Thinks USS Salem Should Join USS Massachusetts

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I have visited the USS Salem on three occasions. As someone who is interested in Naval history I enjoyed the USS Salem. I do not, however, think it should be the permanent centerpiece at Marina Bay's Squantum Point Park.

Our city makes lasting decisions everyday. One needs to look no further than the city buildings that dominate our landscape today: the modern glass-paneled City Hall addition next to the original granite federalist-style City Hall, an unsupported facade of the new police station creating an archway as architectural accent. Whether one likes these aesthetic choices, they are ours for a lifetime. The USS Salem, as fine a ship as she is, does not belong as a permanent backdrop to Marina Bay's Squantum Point Park.

An appropriate home for the Salem is where she can tell her story to the greatest number of potential admirers of Naval history. That home is Fall River's Heritage Park, formerly Battleship Cove. Heritage Park has an impressive and consistent Naval theme. As a site with several Naval attractions, the battleship Massachusetts as a centerpiece, Heritage Park is uniquely suited to provide the foot traffic critical to the long-term financial support and upkeep of the USS Salem. Let's encourage the best permanent location for this important part of our Naval heritage.

KeySpan Energy Deliver announces it is upgrading its gas distribution system on Sycamore Rd. (from #5-56), Quincy.

The work, which began Dec. 4, will continue for five weeks. The crew will work Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. The work will be performed by KeySpan Energy Delivery crews and/or a qualified contractor.

The road will be open to the public and parking may be limited. A construction foreman will be on site to address parking needs throughout the duration of the construction.

KeySpan will provide a police detail if necessary.

There may be a lag between temporary and permanent restoration of the street and sidewalk, depending on the weather and ground conditions. This work may require some excavation in the area of the foundation of your home and/or business. The construction foreman on site will notify customers of interruption of gas service and make proper arrangements.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rita's Potato, Spinach Tort

Here is the best tasting tort I have ever had and it was invented by our daughter Rita. After I tasted it, I just had to make it myself and then write it for all of you.

Rita's Potato Spinach Tort either home made Pie crust or prepared (do not crimp the edges.)

1/2 bag fresh spinach or frozen equivalent about 5 ounces)
3 cups mashed potatoes (either leftover or newly cooked)
1 egg
1 teaspoon basil
1 tablespoon olive oil
3/4 cup romano or parmesan cheese
4 tablespoons butter
1 medium onion (chopped)
salt and pepper to taste
another egg with some grated cheese for brushing

First, boil and mash the potatoes. Set aside.

In four tablespoons butter, sauté the onion until translucent. Set aside.

Steam the spinach or microwave. Squeeze all the water out.

In a bowl, place all the ingredients except the one egg and mix well. At this point taste and correct seasonings. Then add the egg and blend.

Place the crust on a pie plate. Place the mixture on the crust. Instead of the usual crimping of the crust turn the crust toward the center of the tort. Brush the whole top including the crust and the mixture with the egg and cheese.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. The next day, I put a slice in the microwave and it was super!

Morrissey Receives NEPPA Special Recognition Award

State Senator Michael Morrissey received a Special Recognition Award at Northeast Public Power Association's (NEPPA) Annual Conference held recently in Hyannis.

Morrissey, chairman of the Joint Committee on Government Regulation, was recognized for his support of municipal electric utilities and the principle of local control.

Commissioner Darrin McAuliffe of the Braintree Electric Light Department, an active utility member of NEPPA, presented the award.

"Massachusetts municipal electric systems are fortunate to have you in the State Senate," said McAuliffe. "Throughout all of the legislative deliberations leading to electric restructuring, you have been an avid supporter of public power and the rights of local communities to make their own decisions about this vital service."

"You have made sure that public power had a seat at the table when state legislation was being written."

The Northeast Public Power Association is a private, non-profit association founded in 1965 to represent and serve the consumer-owned utilities of New England. There are 78 public power utilities in the region including Braintree Electric Light Department.

Quincy Food Programs Receive $3,000 In Grants

Four emergency food programs in Quincy have received nearly $3,000 in grants from Project Bread for the purchase of equipment that is critical to feeding the hungry.

The Quincy Crisis Center at the Esther R. Sanger

Center for Compassion received $1,000, the Pantry Shelf of Interfaith Social Services $700, Quincy Community Action Programs $700, and Seaside Advocacy Group $550.

"Most of the emergency food programs we deal with have very limited resources," said Ellen Parker, executive director of Project Bread. "This equipment grant will enable them to purchase things like refrigerators and freezers so they can provide hungry families with more nutritious perishable foods."

Accent On Variety At Phase II Jewelry And Gifts

By CRAIG SALTERS

As Phase II Jewelry and Gifts enters its 25th holiday season in Quincy Square, owner Deanna Gazarian says variety is one reason so many of her customers become repeat customers.

"It's from dolls to diamonds," Gazarian says of Phase II's inventory, which includes 14 karat gold, engagement rings, custom-made jewelry, and sterling silver as well as many giftware and commemorative items. "We like to have items that no one else carries and that makes us unique."

"We've also tried to keep our prices fair — well below mall prices — and to respect each customer. They tell us that's why they come back."

One item people keep coming back for is the Quincy Afghan, the first Quincy commemorative of its kind which has since spawned a line of similar items including pottery and clocks.

Gazarian has always donated a portion of the proceeds from every afghan sold to local organizations, resulting in thousands of dollars contributed over the years to organizations such as St. John's Church, Quincy High School, and the Quincy Historical Society.

Currently, proceeds go to the Thomas Crane Library unless the buyer specifically requests another cause.

In fact, Gazarian says, the Quincy items have become so successful that the store has expanded into commemorative gifts for South Shore towns and Boston neighborhoods, helping to bring buyers into the downtown, which Gazarian says is important.

"Our goal is to bring more people into Quincy and show that there is a reason to shop here," says Gazarian, an active member of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association

PHASE II JEWELRY and Gifts owner Deanna Gazarian (left), daughter Jessica Seymourian and sister Karney Eldridge offer friendly customer service at their unique Quincy Center store which specializes in 'dolls to diamonds.'

(QCBPA) who has served as a QCBPA officer the last eight years and is the organization's immediate past president.

Married and the mother of three daughters, Gazarian has also been a longtime supporter of The Woodward School which her children attended.

One key to a successful small business, says Gazarian, is to always stay "one step ahead," which is why Phase II continues to bring new product lines into its store such as Boyd's Bears, Annalee Dolls, and Lizzie High Dolls.

Another key, she says, is to keep a "small town atmosphere" in the store, with many family and friends as co-workers. "They've really helped me through some rough times," says Gazarian, making special note of the fire which swept through the building after Thanksgiving last year.

Gazarian says she has no major plans for the next 25 years other than to keep changing with the times to offer lines and products her customers want.

And the next 25 years, she hopes, might be a little bit easier given that, this time, her family is already grown. "Looking back, I'd say raising a family and running a business at the same time, that was my biggest challenge," says Gazarian.

Phase II Jewelry and Gifts is located at 1359 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

McCauley Book Signing At His Home Saturday

Councillor Francis McCauley will hold a book-signing of his book Quincy, Massachusetts, A Political History 1889-2000 Saturday, Dec. 16 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at his home, 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck.

McCauley, a former Quincy mayor and present councillor at large, was asked to write the political history for the millennium by present Mayor James Sheets.

McCauley did not receive any recompense for writing the book. The publication and printing were underwritten by the city of Quincy. The price of the book is $21 (sales tax included). Checks should be made out to the City of Quincy.

Previous booksignings were held at the Quincy Historical Society, the Adams Mansion, and Abigail's Crossing. McCauley decided to have the signing at his home because of the many requests he has received from people who were unable to attend the other signings.

'Enchanted Ship' Christmas Program Aboard USS Salem Dec. 15-17

The USS Salem will hold the first annual "Enchanted Ship" aboard the historic vessel next weekend, Dec. 15 through 17, with Santa Claus, Mrs. Claus and their Elves on hand to visit with youngsters and listen to their Christmas wishes.

The hours are Friday from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 12 noon to 4 p.m.

The children will have an opportunity to have their pictures taken with Santa, tour the "Enchanted USS Salem," enjoy refreshments and participate in other activities.

Admission will be half price, $3 for adults and $2 for children, if the visitors bring a "Toy for a Tot," (sponsored by the U. S. Marine Corps.) and/or a canned good for a needy family.

The canned goods will be donated to the Quincy Community Action Organization and the toys will be distributed by the Marines after the event.

Toys For Tots City Hall Drop-off Open Through Friday

Time is running out to donate to the Toys For Tots drop-off in the lobby of the new City Hall.

The drop-off will remain open through tomorrow (Friday) from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The toys will then be readied for distribution to

Quincy Historical Society Cookbook Features Local Recipes

The Quincy Historical Society has published a souvenir cookbook of local recipes, Old and New Favorites, in time for the holiday season.

The recipes range from favorites of John and John Quincy Adams, and many New England classics through Depression-era "stretchers" that have become standards, to contemporary dishes.

The recipes come from Quincy Historical Society members. They include

Quincy First Ladies Joann Sheets, Patricia Hannon, Sandra McCauley and Sheila McIntyre. Among the specialty recipes are a chocolate sauce in the style of Bailey's Ice Cream Parlors and Historical Society punch

Old and New Favorites retails for $7.95. Proceeds will benefit the Quincy Historical Society. It is available at the Society's Museum Shop in the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 16, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

There will be a 10 percent discount on all items on Dec. 16.

Also at the Adams Academy is the Society's display, "A Victorian Christmas," a recreation of the 19th century customs that defined the holiday celebration, through contemporary prints and costumes. "A Victorian Christmas" will be on display through New Year's Eve.

SQUANTUM SCHOOL fourth graders from Nancy Gillooly's class received a Quincy history lesson from Council President Paul Harold, who instructed the class as a representative of the Quincy Historical Society. The society developed a special curriculum for the fourth grade level and all fourth graders in the city take part. The program consists of lectures and visits to the society's museum at the Adams Academy and the Adams Birthplaces, with a wrap-up lecture back in the school classroom. The program was developed with the school department to teach local history and to highlight the key personalities and events that make Quincy such an historical community. (Quincy Sun photos)

PRIME TRAVELER
by George P. Murphy

As heard on WJDA Radio, 1300 AM every Thursday at 11:00am!

Buenos Aires

For a travel experience that is more about delighting in a new culture than touring a multitude of sights, try Buenos Aires. This vibrant Argentine city stretches along the Rio de la Plata and is often compared to Paris. With its exquisite architecture, wide boulevards, terrace cafes and dancing nightlife, Buenos Aires offers much to savor. In the city center, Avenida Corrientes and the Florida and La Valle pedestrian avenues are always bustling. La Boca, south of downtown, is an impoverished city district, but its colorful, pressed tin houses and waterfront full of restaurants and bars, pushcart vendors, and street performances are enjoyable. San Telmo's tango bars and weekly flea market and Palermo's quiet parks add to Buenos Aires' culture.

You'll certainly be traveling in style if you choose to cruise on your next vacation. You're sure to find all the romance and the adventure you've been searching for through careful planning by PRIME TRAVEL. We do it all for you here at 500 Victory Road, Marina Bay, from helping you decide on a cruise, to sharing our experiences of places we've been, to making all the arrangements. Start your travel adventures off with a call to 617-472-3697. Still holiday shopping? Why not give the gift of travel?

P.S. Playa del Mayo is the site of many of Argentina's political uprisings, protests and vigils.

Will Become Part Of Industry Museum Last Derrick Saved For Quincy's Granite History

By TOM GALVIN

Other than Quincy's granite itself, nothing was more crucial to our quarrying heritage than the derricks used to lift the stone from the quarries and manipulate it in the stone yards where it was worked into useful pieces.

Some granite pieces weighed over 200 tons, but at 170 pounds per cubic foot even smaller pieces required mechanical lifting power. Hundreds of derricks rose over the hills of West Quincy and lined the neighborhood stone yards there and in South Quincy.

Invented by Alomoran Holmes of Boston in the early 19th century, "Holmes's hoisting apparatus" was introduced to quarrying by Solomon Willard. Willard is recognized as the father of the granite industry in Quincy. He first used the derrick in 1826 to extract granite from a West Quincy quarry and lift the dressed blocks to build the Bunker Hill Monument.

Over the years the Quincy granite industry evolved from producing stone blocks to producing carved and polished stone monuments.

Throughout the 19th and early 20 centuries thousands of immigrants from Western Europe came to Quincy to provide manual labor in the quarries and artistic skills in the stone yards.

One of those immigrants was Emanuel Settimelli, a native of Florence, Italy, where Michelangelo, Ghiberti and many other great artists lived and worked. It was in Florence that Settimelli served his apprenticeship as a granite cutter. He came to the United States in 1892, following his trade to the granite industry in Quincy. Eleven years later he founded the monument company known as E. Settimelli & Sons, Inc.

Before his death in 1919, his two sons Augustus and Joseph had joined the company. They continued the it on the Joseph's son Peter. All the while the Settimellis retained the artistic standards and business ethics established by Emanuel, and held a position of leadership in the Quincy granite district.

Outside of the quarry areas, the Quincy granite district extended all along Willard and Copeland Sts. in West Quincy, and along Centre, Liberty and Penn Sts. in South Quincy. It also included most of the side streets off of these.

At the beginning of World War II there were still almost 100 granite and monument companies still in business here. But after the war the industry's decline came quickly and today there are fewer than half a dozen companies left. And since 1963 when the last quarry closed there has been no new Quincy granite available for monument work.

Quincy's Duane Wrecking Company was the last major source as they tore down Boston's granite buildings during the urban renewal years.

As we entered the 21st century, 175 years after Willard first used "Holmes's Hoisting Apparatus" at the Bunker Hill quarry, there was only one derrick left in Quincy. It sat in the stone yard on Totman St. owned by Peter Settimelli, third generation of the family-run business founded in 1903. He had no sons to pass the business to when he decided to retire.

This past fall he sold the property with its derrick and stone sheds to the Galvin Construction Company of Quincy. With plans to develop the area into a residential subdivision and a small office building, the Galvin family, with their roots in West Quincy, also recognized the opportunity to save some of the last artifacts of Quincy's important granite heritage.

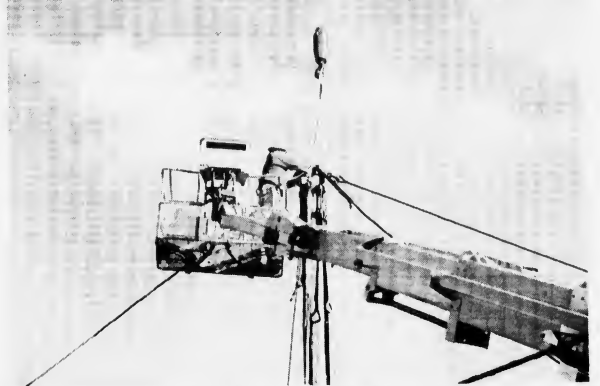

With the cooperation of city officials under the direction of Mayor James Sheets, much of the operating equipment and primarily the derrick used in the stone yard have been carefully dismantled and temporarily stored away. Along with other granite industry artifacts they will become part of a new museum and park planned by the mayor on the site of the filled in Granite Rail Quarry.

The museum and park will be paid for from tipping fees gained by allowing MARK ALLISON of Shaughnessy & Ahearn, in boom lift, burns guy wires from top of the mast on derrick at E. Settimelli & Sons granite monument company preparatory to dismantling it for removal to a granite industry museum.

'HOLMES'S HOISTING apparatus' equipment designed to rotate derrick, first used in Quincy to lift granite blocks for the Bunker Hill Monument in 1826, lies unused and rusting at the E. Settimelli & Sons stone yard in West Quincy.

Boston's Big Dig fill to be dumped in the quarry.

One of the shortcomings of the derricks was that the iron pulleys at the top would rust and then squeak to the annoyance of the neighbors surrounding the granite district. Over the years many young boys from South and West Quincy were dispatched up the masts with buckets of grease to stop the noise.

Some of the derrick masts were originally masts from sailing ships. When ships came to be retrofitted or scrapped at places like Nut Island in Houghs Neck, the masts were sold to granite companies for a second life in derricks.

Hopefully the Settimelli derrick will soon appear on the West Quincy horizon. At 65 feet it is smaller than some of the huge derricks that once surrounded the quarry holes there, but it is the same design as the original "Holmes hoisting apparatus."

Neighborhood Housing Services First-Time Homebuyers Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved first Time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA certified First Time Homebuyer's Workshop in collaboration with Continental Funding Corporation Saturday, Jan. 13 and Saturday, Jan. 20.

The workshops will be held at The Whitman Council on Aging, 16 Hayden St., Whitman, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate, which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, down payment and closing costs grants and other special first time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on the many changing aspects of home buying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is essential and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

Contact Debbie Kidd at (617) 770-2387 for more information and to register for this workshop.

Air Circulation Helps Lower Energy Costs

The most fundamental means of reducing heat loss is one that is most commonly overlooked -- circulating the air. Caulking windows, closing the fireplace flue, better insulation, alternate fuel sources are some of the most common suggestions for easing the effects of skyrocketing oil costs on your monthly budget.

Yet, reclaiming the glut of heated air hovering at the ceiling -- which in and of itself can reduce your energy bill -- goes largely unpunished. And it's as easy as moving room air around.

However, hauling out that oscillating fan won't do the trick. Standard fans blow a wide air pattern and for only a short distance, having little or no effect on the total air characteristics of the room. The two most effective means of improving circulation are turning on your ceiling fan (it needs to be reversible, or make certain you reverse the blade rotation) to force stationary air trapped at the ceiling down into the room, or by using a portable air "circulator."

A circulator, like a fan, has a blade or propeller to move air. But the similarity ends there. A true circulator, unlike a conventional fan, is designed to generate a focused "beam" of air. By directing the "beam" toward the ceiling, the layer of trapped, wasted heat will be reclaimed by circulating it into the room. At the same time, a low-pressure zone created around the path of the beam draws the surrounding air. The result is a more uniform ambient room temperature and lower heating bills.

How much lower? Using a circulator, you may be able to drop your thermostat four degrees, which can reduce energy consumption by 5 percent to 10 percent. In addition to the monetary benefits, improved circulation will make the air in your home feel more "lively" and lessen the effects of winter stagnation.

Air circulation also can be used to level off the temperature between rooms should you have a warm room next to a cool room. So, if you can get beyond the oddity of using a "fan" in the winter, you can improve comfort while lowering energy costs this heating season.

As you might have guessed, circulators are just as valuable throughout the rest of the year. During summer months they can be used with or without air conditioning to achieve a cooler, more uniform room temperature while stimulating air movement throughout the entire room.

Nominations Coming In For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are coming in for The Quincy Sun's 16th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Quincy school teacher Ronald G. Adams was honored for giving freely of his time to guide and inspire his Broad Meadows Middle School students in highly acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs and oversights, both local and world-wide.

Adams was selected from among 35 nominees submitted by Sun readers. A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final selection.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below on this page.

After nominations close Saturday, Dec. 30, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn. Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 30.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Saturday, Dec. 30.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch,

Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Robert Derbes for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community during a "life-long love affair" with his native Quincy, 1997.

Robert Curry for his long-time volunteer work in worthy civic and charitable causes as a member of many local organizations, including the Quincy Partnership, Quincy Commission on the Family and the Marie A. Curry Foundation which provides free mammograms for individuals not covered by health insurance.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Saturday, Dec. 30.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Winter Registration For Adult, Continuing Education

Winter Registration for Quincy Public Schools Adult and Continuing Education Program will take place Wednesday, Jan. 17 through Friday, January 19 from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 20 from 9 a.m. to noon at their offices at 107 Woodward Ave.

Classes begin Jan. 28. Quincy Adult and Continuing Education offers over 150 courses this semester, including over 30 new courses and five levels of ESL classes (1 Beginners through 5 Advanced).

Central PTO To Meet Dec. 21

The Central Middle School PTO will meet Thursday, Dec. 21, at 7:30 p.m. for a "Candy House Night" that is open to the public.

Prior to Candy House Night, the School Improvement Council's Selection of a course catalog, call Director Keith Segalla at (617) 984-8888.

2001 Goals will be taken up at 6:45 p.m. and the reports of the Executive Board will be heard at 7 p.m.

In future meetings, Technology Night will be held Jan. 18 and Central's diversity will be celebrated Feb. 15.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

'Identity Theft' Part 3

Identity theft or identity fraud is the taking of a victim's identity to obtain credit, credit cards from banks and retailers, steal money from a victim's existing accounts, apply for loans, establish accounts with utility companies, rent an apartment, file bankruptcy, or obtain a job using the victim's name. Thousands of dollars can be stolen without the victim knowing about it for months or even years.

More tips on how to prevent this from happening to you:

- When you order new credit cards in the mail or previous ones have expired, watch the calendar to make sure you get the card within the appropriate time. If the card is not received within a reasonable time period, call the credit card grantor immediately to find out if the card has been sent. If you don't receive the card, check to make sure a change of address was not filed.

- Do not put your credit card number on the Internet unless it is encrypted on a secured site.

- Pay attention to your billing cycles. Follow up with creditors if bills don't arrive on time. A missing credit card could mean an identity theft has taken over your credit card and changed your billing address.

- Cancel all credit cards that you have not used in the last six months. Open credit is a prime target.

- Order your credit report at least twice a year. Reports should be obtained from all three major sources: Equifax at 800-685-1111; Experian at 888-397-3742; or TransUnion at 800-680-7293.

- Correct all mistakes on your credit report in writing. Send the letter return receipt requested. Identify the problems by item and send with a copy of the credit report back to the credit reporting agency. You should hear from the agency within 30 days.

- Write to Direct Marketing Association, Mail Preference Service, P.O. Box 9008, Farmingdale, NY 11735 to get your name off direct mail lists.

- From: National Crime Prevention Council

Oldest School Partnership Renewed At North Quincy

Quincy's oldest school-community partnership was renewed for an 11th straight year at a recent partnership signing breakfast at North Quincy High School.

The partnership agreement was signed by George A. Bowman Jr. of State Street Bank, Michael Lawlor of Boston Financial Data Services, School Superintendent Eugene Creedon and North Quincy Principal Louis Ioanilli.

Mayor James Sheets praised the success of the partnership. He noted that his four children had attended North Quincy and that their educational activities had been enriched by the contributions of the school's business partners.

Bowman said that the partnership had become a national model. He reported that some of the programs developed through the partnership, such as Great Ideas and Best Practices, were being emulated in cities like Chicago and San Francisco.

Bowman cited Barbara Clarke of State Street Bank and Mary Beth Curran of North Quincy High School for their special roles in developing and expanding the partnership.

Lawlor recalled growing up in Neponset and playing Pop Warner football in Quincy's Veterans' Memorial Stadium. "BFDS will support the partnership as long as we're around," he said, "and we expected to be around forever."

Creedon expressed his gratitude for the continuing contributions of the partnership and similar partnerships that involve every school in the city. Ioanilli emphasized the key role that the school's business partners have played in enabling North Quincy High School to keep abreast of evolving technologies.

Neponset Nursing Center Seeks Volunteers

Neponset Circle Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Center of Dorchester, which is relocating to Marina Bay this fall, is creating an active volunteer program.

Volunteers are needed to assist with activity programs; transport residents to various functions within the facility; visit with residents on a one-to-one basis; sort and deliver resident mail; and fill college internships.

The center is a 167-bed skilled nursing facility presently located in a residential neighborhood in Dorchester.

To volunteer, call Michael Roumbakis at (617) 282-3600 during regular business hours.

Good News:

Stop & Shop Not Moving

Contrary to circulating reports, the Stop & Shop Supermarket Company is not moving its headquarters from Quincy to New Jersey. In fact, Stop & Shop representatives say, the supermarket giant is not going anywhere.

"There are no plans for Stop & Shop to move its headquarters from Quincy," said company spokeswoman Cheryl Coveney, who said her office has fielded several calls since an Internet newsource reported the supermarket chain's relocation to the garden state.

What is happening, Coveney said, is that Netherlands-based parent company Royal Ahold NV is converting their Edwards chain of supermarkets to Stop & Shop stores.

As part of that conversion process, former Edwards offices in Old Bridge, NJ, were relocated to Edison, NJ.

A press release by the New Jersey landlord involved, she said, caused confusion and led to reports of a Stop & Shop headquarters relocation. "It was a misinterpretation," Coveney said.

The mayor's office also fielded calls from business leaders worried what effect the move of Stop & Shop, which has occupied its Hancock St. office building since 1982 and employs over 900 at the site, would have on the downtown and the city in general.

"We received a number of calls," Mayor James Sheets said, "because Stop & Shop occupies such a central place in the downtown area."

The mayor's office, Sheets said, spoke to Stop & Shop's Elizabeth Chase-Marino, who handles public relations for government affairs, and was assured that regional movement and regional movement alone was taking place. "It's simply not true," Sheets said of the relocation story.

Houghs Neck HOPE Seeks Playset For LaBrecque Field

Houghs Neck residents have recently formed Houghs Neck HOPE (Help Our Playground Evolve) for the purpose of raising funds and support for a children's play structure at LaBrecque Field, Sea St.

Their goal: to raise as much of the estimated $28,000 to $40,000 needed for such a structure themselves and then, having demonstrated their commitment to the project, ask the city for assistance.

The group, run by co-chairwomen Tricia Fox and Cris Batson, held its first meeting in November attended by Ward 1 Councilor Gregory Hanley and Thomas Koch, executive director of The Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments.

Houghs Neck HOPE is busy forming subcommittees and planning fundraisers -- such as the "HN" circular airport bumper stickers currently available at $3 apiece at Bibb's Service Station,

Louis' Crossing Cafe, and other locations -- and hopes to have the playset installed by next summer.

"Right now we have a dilapidated baseball field, a good softball field, and two basketball courts," said Wayne Batson, a spokesman for group, who added that LaBrecque Field did have a swingset and slide which "were there when I was a kid and I'm turning 40."

The time is right, said Batson, for a playset at LaBrecque, given the good economic times and the mini baby-boom sweeping the nation. In fact, Batson said, many growing Houghs Neck families, including his own, travel to other neighborhoods for the new and renovated playgrounds which dot the city.

"You look around Quincy and see such beautiful areas, but LaBrecque Field has kind of been put on the back burner," said Batson. "This is a chance for the community to do something to really better the neighborhood."

According to Batson, the Park Department had already committed to improvements at LaBrecque Field, such as the replacement of the swing and slide, before the formation of Houghs Neck HOPE but emphasized that the debate as to whether or not to remove the baseball field was irrelevant to building a playground. "It's fine if it stays and it's fine if it goes," said Batson, who said the Park Department is expected to present a master plan for the site sometime in late January.

Batson thanked Hanley and Koch for their guidance on the project and said the committee was hopeful of city assistance given Mayor James Sheets "strong track record" of supporting neighborhood projects.

Volunteers and both individual and corporate sponsors are needed for the project.

CBS Interviews Shea On Florida Ballot Battle

Beach.

Shea told CBS's Pinkston that the optical scan machines were "noticeably more expensive" than the punch card machines but paid for themselves with decreased personnel and policing costs and "a lot less gray hair."

"In the long run, you will gain the money back but the first priority is always a clean election and it's hard to put a price on that," Shea told Pinkston.

"Unfortunately, future elections will be forced into a new system because of this negative experience (of Florida) but I think it would be a good move nationally." Massachusetts, Shea said, made punch card ballots illegal shortly after the 1996 controversy.

Shea and Voter Registrar William Draicchio brought the CBS reporting team and camera crew into the basement of City Hall and provided the cameras with a demonstration of both voting systems, explaining the advantages and disadvantages of each.

After finishing their interview, several of the camera crew expressed disappointment that the state's Church of the Presidents across the street was not a courthouse, since they were looking for the proper setting to discuss the Delahunt

Johnston, Gore-Bush election controversies.

The church, of course, contains the crypts of both John Adams, the first U.S. president to hand over the reins of power peacefully to a rival party, and John Quincy Adams, the last president elected by a vote of the House of Representatives.

John Quincy Adams also held the distinction of being the last Quincy resident to serve in Congress until the 1996 election of William Delahunt.

First Parish To Auction Colonial Silver To Preserve Church

wine cups by Hull and Sanderson, the earliest New England makers, made circa 1660 and estimated at $200,000 to $300,000 each. Only fifty pieces of Hull and Sanderson silver are known to exist.

They are joined by a two-handled cup made by Sanderson in partnership with his son, dated around 1685 and valued at $250,000 to $300,000.

The eight other pieces, with values between $10,000 and $120,000, include examples by colonial master silversmiths Jeremiah Drummer, Thomas Savage, John Edwards, Jacob Hurd, Daniel Henchman, and Samuel Minott with William Simpkins.

The entire collection of 11 lots carries an estimated value of $900,000 to $1,300,000.

"And it could go higher," said Rev. Bennett, who

Rev. SHELDON BENNETT
"The church building was in danger of imminent structural collapse."

added that the reserve price for all 11 items was $900,000, below which price the church would not sell.

Proceeds from the auction will benefit restoration efforts which include the roof, roof structure, and the ceiling as well as work to windows and painting of the sanctuary.

Rev. Bennett said initial work to repair the slate roof three years ago uncovered serious cracks in the eight massive timber trusses which support the roof. "A heavy snowstorm would have resulted in a collapse," Rev. Bennett said. "In fact, it would have happened eventually."

State and private grants as well as community contributions helped, Rev. Bennett said, but in the end weren't enough to cover the loans necessary for the repair. "The interest (on certain loans) was $3,000 a month," Rev. Bennett said. "It really forced the issue."

The 11 silver pieces, the rarest and most expensive of a larger collection, have been stored in a bank vault for some time, having become so valuable that the church could neither afford to use them regularly in their services nor to insure them.

Second President John Adams and sixth President John Quincy Adams and their wives are entombed in the crypt located in the basement of the church.

Cedrone Names New QHS Site Commission

Sterling and Lincoln-Hancock Schools, saying that all neighborhoods and schools affected should have a say in the process.

Although no date has been set, Cedrone said she expects the commission to hold a preliminary meeting either after Christmas or after Jan. 1 to review goals, guidelines, and commission timetables.

Cedrone, who said she hoped to present the full list of commission members at Wednesday night's meeting of the School Committee, said she was confident a site could be found well in advance of the May 2 deadline outlined in Bragg's School Committee resolve which created the commission. Another goal of the commission, she said, was unity, given the controversy which surrounded the recently rejected Quincy Ave. site, which would have built the new high school on the grounds of a remediated landfill.

"I think we can work together," said Cedrone, who served two years on the previous School Building Needs Task Force. "What we need to do now is put the past behind us and move forward to do what's right for the children of Quincy."

Cedrone added that she and her commission would explore "every possible parcel of land that the city owns" in an attempt to locate the right site. "We have to remain open-minded and just find the right site," she said.

Cedrone also promised to keep both School Committee members and residents informed "every step of the way" with updates and regularly scheduled informational meetings.

"As an alumni of Quincy High School, I consider this a great honor," Cedrone said of her appointment. "It will be wonderful to chair a commission which will have a say in the future of the new high school."

Bragg, who was directed by Mayor James Sheets to form the commission after the Quincy Ave. site was removed from consideration Nov. 28, pointed to Cedrone's experience as a great plus for the commission. "She knows the issues and she knows the proper procedures," Bragg said of Cedrone. "She's a proven hard worker who can inspire others and get the job done."

The new Quincy High School is slated to open in September of 2004 and is expected to receive 90 percent reimbursement from the state. The project is part of a more than $100 million school renovation plan which also includes improvements to Sterling Middle School and a new Central Middle School.

Winter Safety Tips For Exercising Asthmatics

For many people, exercising during the cold, short days of winter can be challenging enough. But individuals with asthma face more than seasonal difficulties, as jogging, skiing, or skating when the mercury drops can trigger attacks that can send them racing for the hospital.

"People who have their disease under control can do just about anything," says Armand Riendeau, RN, RRT, director of respiratory therapy at Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital. "Using your inhaler before heading out can relax the muscles in the airways. Attacks occur when these muscles spasm and constrict, restricting air from filling the lungs." Similarly, cold dry air can trigger bronchial spasms. For this reason, doctors often recommend swimming as winter exercise for patients with asthma.

Riendeau recommends that people drink plenty of water and dress in layers when heading outside. Wearing a windproof and waterproof shell can help the body stay warm, he said, and keeping a scarf wrapped around the mouth and nose can help warm the air before inhaling. "Things can get worse if you go into cold, dry areas," Riendeau says. "Don't go outside if your asthma has been acting up."

Finally, asthmatics who want to begin an exercise program should check with their doctor before exercising outside. And if it is simply too cold, heading to the local mall or elsewhere for a walking workout is probably not a bad idea.

Respiratory therapists at Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital are an important part of the care team. They administer medication, teach patients exercises to increase lung function, and demonstrate the use of breathing support equipment. They work with the pulmonary rehabilitation team to provide coverage throughout the hospital for emergency patient care.

Free Smoking Cessation Program At Quincy Medical Center

Bay State Community Services is offering a free six-week smoking cessation program at Quincy Medical Center.

Charlene McDonald, smoking cessation counselor, will lead the group through a series of six smoking cessation counseling sessions that provide education on methods for ceasing tobacco use, supportive counseling during the early quitting period, information and advice on nicotine replacement therapy, and referral to individual smoking cessation counseling.

The next session, held on Tuesday evenings at 6 p.m. at the hospital, will begin on Jan. 2 and run through Feb. 6. Nicotine patches are available as part of this program at a small co-payment along with the counseling.

Call Charlene McDonald at (617) 472-6027, ext. 140 to register or for more information.

Harvard Vanguard Smoking Cessation Program

Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates, 1250 Hancock St., will offer a seven-week, smoking cessation program starting Jan. 3. The program, to be held each Wednesday night from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m., will run through Feb. 21. It offers an individualized behavioral approach to help participants quit smoking. Nutrition and weight control information and stress management and relaxation techniques are included along with three weeks of hypnotherapy.

The program is free, unless participants wish to try nicotine replacement therapy, in which case the cost will range from $5 to $25, depending upon the choice of replacement.

To register, call toll-free at 1 (877) 439-5465.

North Goal: Tourney Success

By CHRIS POISSON

One team stumbled out of the gates last season, losing six of its first eight games with an offense that had about as much spark as a rainy Fourth of July night.

Another team caught fire down the stretch, winning six of eight to complete an improbable run into the playoffs.

Can you guess which teams they were? Well, it was actually one team — the North Quincy High School hockey club. After a lifeless start, the Red Raiders somehow came together late in the year to rescue a lost season, even though they went on to lose in the first round of the tourney.

That was fine and dandy. But head coach Bob Doyle wants no part of Jekyll and Hyde this season. With 14 returnees, Doyle will not settle for "just making" the tournament; he wants to create some madness in March.

High School Hockey

"Getting to the Big Dance is nice for the kids, but we've [coaches] been there enough times," Doyle said. "We want to move on and do something in the tournament. We got beat by a better team last year and hopefully we've learned from our mistakes."

He'll find out soon enough. The Red Raiders opened their season yesterday (Wednesday) at Revere and Saturday it takes on Weymouth at 7 p.m. in the home opener at Quincy Youth Arena.

"I think we have a pretty decent hockey club," Doyle said. "The work ethic has been the best in the 10 years I have been here."

North Quincy will play an aggressive, up-tempo style of hockey in an effort to keep the blood pumping in an offense that scored 44 goals in the final 11 games last year, compared to 23 through the first 11.

"I'm expecting much more from our offense," Doyle said. "We have a lot of depth. I'm a big advocate of a three-line system. I want to wear teams down. Our condition is going to be one of our strengths as the season goes on."

The top line will feature juniors Scott MacDonald and Charlie Sorrento with sophomore Matt Grazioso. MacDonald, a tri-captain, is the offensive stud who is expected to power the attack. Last season, he led the team in scoring with 14 goals and 11 assists for 25 points. He'll be expected to produce more this year with the graduation of Ross O'Driscoll (15-9-24).

"He's our go-to guy," Doyle said. "I expect him to have a great year. He's motivated. He's a great skater with a hard shot. Sky is the limit for him."

The second line is up in the air right now as two of the three projected starters suffered injuries in the pre-season. Senior center Paul Zenga, who played well during training camp, broke his collar bone in the jamboree last Saturday and will be out 4-6 weeks. Junior right wing Joe Fitzpatrick broke a bone in his right thumb in a scrimmage last Thursday and was questionable for the season opener yesterday.

"Those are two substantial injuries," Doyle said. "The second line is decimated right now."

Senior tri-captain Joe Cronin is the lone survivor, so Doyle will have to change

BILL MILLER of Quincy was a member of the Suffolk University soccer team this fall, playing defense as a freshman. A political law and court major, Miller is a graduate of North Quincy High School. He is the son of Stephen and Jane Miller.

Goaltending Tenuous For Young Presidents

Entering his 35th year of coaching, Bob Sylvia has seen just about everything there is to see at the high school hockey level.

This season, though, he has been blindsided with a problem he has never faced with the Quincy hockey program. Take "goal" out of "goaltender" and the remaining six letters describe the situation the best — Quincy's goaltending is as tender as a piece of Purdue chicken.

The loss of starting netminder Ryan Kruegar to graduation has left the Presidents with two goalies in the entire program, and one of them is injured.

"This is my 35th year and I've never had a goaltending situation like we're confronted with," Sylvia said. "We don't have any real legitimate goaltenders below the two juniors and that's a very serious situation — for any hockey program. So if there are any goalies in the city of Quincy, we need them."

Tom Shruhan strained his right knee in the Thanksgiving Day football game and there is no timetable for his return, leaving Shaun Flaherty as the No. 1 goalie — the only goalie — on the team. And if he should happen to get banged up, it will be a very long, cold winter on Coddington St.

"Tommy is hurt," Sylvia said. "Right now there is no serious damage, but if he were to come back before he is ready...then we're up the creek. We're in a position where if our No. 1 goalie goes down, we have to forfeit. That could have some serious consequences."

Sylvia is toying with the idea of converting a couple of kids that have expressed a "passing interest" into masked men, but the team is banking on Shruhan making a healthy recovery. If he can, Quincy will have two goalies that will push each other to make each other better.

If the goalie situation can work itself out, Quincy should be in for an interesting season, which began yesterday (Wednesday) when it took on Weymouth at Quincy Youth Arena at 7 p.m. Coming off a 10-7-2 campaign, in which they were bounced out of the tournament when they had the misfortune of drawing powerhouse Archbishop Williams in the first round, the Presidents will be gunning for another return to the postseason.

"I think initially our goals are to get back into the state tournament and to finish as high up in the league as we can," Sylvia said. "Last year's tournament was a case of an unlucky draw. Archies was as good as teams in the Super 8 and they felt they should have been in the Super 8. We just ran into the best team in the tournament in the first round."

Quincy has some veterans returning this year, but another playoff appearance will depend on the younger players. Guys like freshmen Andrew Patten, Matt Germain, Josh Giordani and sophomores Matt LaCorte, Brendan Conley, Ryan Conley and Tom Walsh need to develop quickly for the Presidents to achieve success this season.

"Basically, we're a young club," Sylvia said. "The question will be how long is it going to take for these younger players to legitimately compete in the OCL. I think they're capable of moving fast. We have some quality kids who I think are going to progress fairly rapidly."

Offensively, Quincy might not be the juggernaut it was last season but it should be explosive. The Presidents boast one of the league's most

Quincy High Retires Coach Bill Sullivan's No. 15

BILL SULLIVAN, retired legendary Quincy High School football coach, was honored recently with the retirement of the No. 15 he wore as an all-scholastic tackle and fullback for QHS in 1928-29-30. Here with him at the dinner ceremony at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, from the left, his sister, Geraldine Hayes, his wife, Linda, and nieces Marilyn and Mary Hoyle.

QUINCY COACHES PRESENT and past were on hand to help honor Bill Sullivan as his high school playing No. 15 was recently retired. From the left are present QHS Coach Bob Noble, former coaches Peter Chella, Jack Raymer, Sullivan, Hank Conroy, Bob Basiliere, assistant football and baseball coach, and Marty Finnegan, former assistant football coach, basketball coach and former director of athletics.

is lines around and will call up some JV players to try to fill some spots. Seniors Pat Lahar and Andrew Mahoney and juniors Chris Maticunas and Frank Guest will be juggled around. One player who should benefit from all this is senior Jon Paquette.

"I expect Jon Paquette to log more ice time," Doyle said. "This is going to be a spark for him, an opportunity to elevate his game. He has great hands and has a chance to score some goals for us. I'm confident he can handle any role I give him."

Defensively, North Quincy has shown some weakness in its zone coverages and will rely on senior Matt Holt to anchor the blue-liners. Holt, a returning captain, is a big, strong defenseman who also has the ability to put the puck in the net, tallying 7 goals and 9 assists a year ago.

"He's a physical defenseman," Doyle said. "His size and strength stick out the most. He's intimidating in front of our cage, and that helps our goalies. He handles the puck well and he possesses a very hard, accurate shot. He's going to be the backbone of the defensive core. Hopefully his presence on the ice will filter down to the younger players."

Sophomore Tim Duggan, who joined the team late last season, returns as the team's second best defenseman and should only get better with Holt in the lineup. He scored the goal in North Quincy's 1-1 tie against Braintree in Monday's scrimmage. Senior Rob Rice has moved from forward to the blue line and will be joined by seniors Domenic Papile and Matt Glynn, junior Dan Sheehan and freshman Steve Kelley.

Backstopping the defense is a three-man crew — seniors Matt Gregory, Pat O'Donnell and Matt Delorey. Gregory, based on his performance last season with a 2.85 goals-against average, got the start in the season opener, but all three will compete for time between the pipes.

"All three worked hard in tryouts," Doyle said. "They kept the lines of communication open and pushed one another. Gregory feels the pressure of the other guys breathing down his neck. It's excellent pressure."

O'Donnell and Delorey turned in solid performances in the scrimmage Saturday," he added. "They're more relaxed and it has elevated their game."

With its deep bench and the injuries, North Quincy will be shuffling its lineups more than a card dealer to try to find the right combinations that will propel the team back into the tournament. If the Red Raiders should get off to another slow start, there could be some surprising moves.

"I told them at the faceoff dinner that there will definitely be movement this year," Doyle said. "I won't hesitate to make moves because the strength of this team is our depth. We're going to experiment and I told the kids to be patient."

Goaltending Tenuous For Young Presidents

prolific scorers in junior Bill McKeon, who tallied 42 points (19 goals, 23 assists) a year ago.

"Billy is the kid we'll be looking at to get the team started," Sylvia said. "He's a young kid. Not great size, but a lot of skill. He knows what to do with the puck, and we're going to lean on him heavily at the beginning of the year."

Joining him on the first line will be senior Chris Lumaghini and junior David Germain, and the second line will be Matt Germain, LaCorte and junior Brian Scott. As of right now, the third line is senior Brian Neenan and juniors Andrew Ross and Brian Keefe.

"On offense we feel we have two lines, at least one and two-thirds of another, that we feel can compete with anybody," Sylvia said. "We have a third line that we don't even know if that is the group we're going to end up with. Now the question is what does everybody else have."

The blue line will be the Achilles' heel again, but there is reason for optimism this season. Junior Kevin Patten, who played for the Quincy Junior Rangers last year, is back with the Presidents and should rank as one of the top defensemen in the league.

"Defense, we're porous," Sylvia said. "We have some holes on defense that ultimately we're hoping experience is going to shore up.

Kevin Patten is as good as any defenseman in the league, bar none. So hopefully he's going to bolster our defense, and he's going to be capable of playing a lot of hockey. We're going to be leaning heavily on him."

Sylvia believes the road to the OCL championship goes through Falmouth with Barnstable near the top as well. As for the other teams, "toss a coin," he said.

"Depending how fast these younger kids can come along will go a long way towards dictating how well we do," he added. "At the very least, it's going to be a very fun season because I'm dealing with a great group of kids."

Recreation, Elks Co-Sponsoring 'Hoop Shoot' Free Throw Contest

The Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Lodge of Elks will once again co-sponsor the Elk's National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw contest, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The first round of the contest will begin Saturday at 10 a.m. at the following gymnasiums: Atherton Hough, Atlantic Middle, Bernazzani, Beechwood Knoll, Merrymount, Montclair, Clifford Marshall, Point Webster, Snug Harbor, Squantum and Wollaston.

The first round will also be conducted at the Park School gym Wednesday, Dec. 20 at 3 p.m. and at the Lincoln Hancock Community School gym Thursday, Dec. 21 at 3 p.m.

"We are pleased that the Quincy Lodge of Elks has once again provided this program for the benefit of our participants," Welch said. "The Elks devote a great deal of attention to youth programs. Their commitment to our children helps make Quincy a better place to live."

The Quincy competition is the first step in a national contest for boys and girls ages 8-13. The participant's age is determined by April 1, 2001. Age groups are 8-9, 10-11 and 12-13. The program is free and contestants may participate even if they're not previously enrolled in the recreation program. They may choose any of the various times or sites, and may only compete in the Quincy qualifier.

Each participant is awarded points for successful free throws. The boys and girls in the age 8-9 group will shoot from four feet in front of the regulation foul line.

"Many Quincy residents in the past have enjoyed the benefits of this activity at the local, regional and state level as well as the national championship," Welch said.

The Quincy Lodge of Elks "Hoop Shoot" chairman is Ed Miller, the Quincy High School athletic director.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

After School, Evening Gym Programs

The Quincy Recreation Department after school and evening gym programs are underway in neighborhood gyms throughout the city.

The free programs are conducted for boys and girls age 8 through high school at 13 locations, according to Recreation Director Barry Welch. They are supervised by members of the department staff who oversee a variety of activities, games and sports appropriate to the age group.

Quincy residents are eligible to register at the location of their choice and attend different locations if they desire. The programs are open to private, parochial and public school students. Equipment is supplied by the recreation department, and participants are requested to wear sneakers.

The schedule is as follows:

Atherton Hough — Monday: middle school grades 6-8, 5-7 p.m.; high school grades 9-12, 7-9 p.m.; Tuesday: ages 8 through grade 5, 3-5 p.m.; middle school, 5-7 p.m.; high school,

North Quincy Girls Track May Be Strongest Team In Years

Geoff Hennessy enters his 13th season as the North Quincy girls' track coach with 41 girls and no assistant coach.

Two seasons ago, long-time assistant Maureen Fallon left for maternity, and last year's assistant, Chris Morton, has gone into private business. Linda Kennedy, who was ready to take over, had her hours changed at her job so Hennessy is waiting for a new assistant to be named.

"I can't run it by myself," Hennessy said. "Luckily we have some seniors and captains who know the system."

Despite the personnel problems, the team may be the strongest in years. With an all-star in nearly every event, North Quincy should be the team to beat come championship time.

Senior Sherie DeMonte (shot-put), sophomores Katy Mercurio and Krystle Neves (high jump), Makini Thompson (hurdles) and junior April Rodgers (dash) all garnered OCL All-Star honors last spring.

Senior Linda Nguyen and junior Natalie Caron (distances) made this fall's OCL cross country squad, and senior Kelly Rose O'Brien (600 meters) was an all-star in 1999, but missed all of last winter with illness.

Now add middle school city champs Sarah Gregory (100 meters) and Brenna O'Brien (400 meters) and you can see the potential.

Others who should score big include seniors Colleen Lahar (300 meters and long jump) and Jackie Murphy (shot-put), juniors Laura Wells (hurdles) and Katelyn McDonald (300 meters), sophomore Courtney Breslin (1,000 meters) and freshman Maria McGuinness (high jump).

The Red Raiders' middle distance hopes were dashed when it was discovered that Beth Houghton required knee surgery and would be out for the season.

Senior Melissa McKenna, junior Katie McKenna and sophomore Rachel Enos (300 meters), sophomores Lauren Ready (1,000 meters) and Lisa Rubino (mile), and freshmen Alicia Cronin (50 meters) and Jessica Jacques (600 meters and long jump) are ready to step in and help.

The relay teams haven't been named yet but Hennessy said, "Our 4x200 should be very fast. We have something we haven't had in years — sprint, hurdle and jump depth."

Hennessy feels the Big Three of Silver Lake, Bridgewater-Raynham and Falmouth will duke it out for the dual meet title. North Quincy met Falmouth Monday and will take on Silver Lake tomorrow (Friday) in the first week at the Reggie Lewis Center.

"Hopefully we're ready and right in the thick of it come OCL's," Hennessy said.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't be sheepish about asking more questions before making a major decision at your workplace. Your personal relationships continue to improve.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You might be rushed into renewing an old, cold relationship. But do you really want a reheated romance when there's a chance to warm up with someone new?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Someone tells you something that could lead you to rethink your plans for the holidays. But get the full story before you make a decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A financial matter that has you in a dither is finally being sorted out as more facts become available. A perplexing personal matter also clears up.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You face a slew of new tasks at home and at work. So, as much as you love being a social Lion, be careful not to overdo it at those pre-holiday parties.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Unexpected news could cause some minor adjustments in your holiday planning. Defer a decision about a financial matter until you have more facts.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A project might not be showing the results you'd hoped it would by now. But stay with it—things will soon begin to turn around.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That budding personal relationship continues to develop. Things also improve in your career, although some problems still need close attention.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Jupiter, your ruling planet, takes a strong romantic turn at this time, happily affecting relationships for both single and spliced Archers.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Allowing a misunderstanding to go unchallenged could jeopardize plans you've made for the upcoming holidays. Clear the air now.

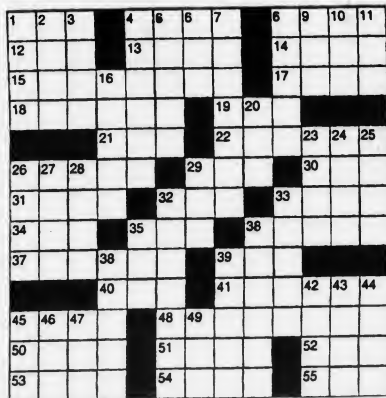

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) While you should be open to suggestions on how to plan for the holidays, you should also be firm in saying "no" to anything with which you disagree.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Get out from under all those holiday preparations and immerse yourself in a world of music. You'll soon feel refreshed, revived—maybe even reborn.

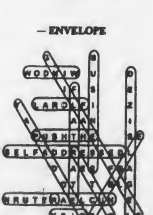

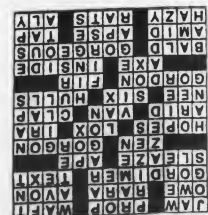

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You believe in the truth, and you have little patience with those who try to hide it. You would make an excellent judge.

Mary Rock, 87

Retired Public Relations Director
For Boston's Museum Of Science

A funeral Mass for Mary (Desmond) Rock, 87, of Milton, formerly of Wollaston, a retired public relations director for the Museum of Science in Boston, will be celebrated tomorrow (Friday) at 10 a.m. at St. Elizabeth Church in Milton.

She died Monday at the Kathryn Barton Nursing Home in Wayland after a period of failing health.

Mrs. Rock worked at the Museum of Science for over 30 years, retiring in 1983.

She was also a staff writer for The Boston Globe in the 1940s and 1950s. She later worked in public relations for Lever Brothers.

She was a member of the Milton Art Association and was a volunteer for Meals on Wheels and Rosie's Place.

Born in Boston, she was raised in Jamaica Plain and Whitman and graduated from Dorchester Girls High School. She had lived in Wollaston for many years before moving to Milton.

Wife of the late John J. Rock, she is survived by two nephews, Gregory R. Brown and Allan J. Brown, both of Dover, N.H., and a niece, Elaine K. Worsfield of Natick. She was the sister of the late Katharine Brown.

Burial was in New Calvary Cemetery.

David F. Burke, Jr., 72

Retired Teacher And Football Coach
At Quincy Schools

A funeral Mass for David F. Burke, Jr., 72, of Milton, a retired teacher and football coach for the city of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Elizabeth's Church in Milton.

He died unexpectedly Dec. 9 at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston.

Mr. Burke retired three years ago after teaching and coaching in Quincy for 25 years. He also taught and coached at Buckingham, Brown and Nichols School for many years.

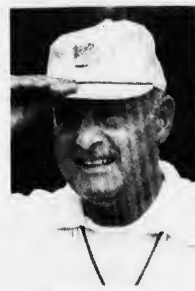

"He certainly was a great teacher as well as a distinguished coach at both North Quincy High School and Quincy High School," said Quincy School Superintendent Eugene Creedon. "He was the personification of a true gentleman. He was that way with his student-athletes as well as his students in his math classes."

Mr. Burke was the head coach of the North Quincy High School football team for seven years, compiling a 40-27-1 record. In his first year at the helm he guided the Red Raiders to the Division 1 Super Bowl, which they lost.

He resigned as head coach in 1982 and his defensive coordinator, Ken McPhee, succeeded him.

"If you ask anyone about David Burke, the first thing they'll tell you is that he was just a great guy," said McPhee, who stepped down from his coaching position before the 1999 season to become the Social Health Coordinator of Quincy Public Schools.

Quincy High School athletic director Ed Miller, who coached the North Quincy basketball team while Burke was the football coach, said he was stunned to learn of Burke's death.

"I was shocked to hear about it," Miller said. "Dave and I were fellow coaches. He was a low-key type of coach and was very successful. He was also a great teacher. He was great with the kids. He was just a tremendous person."

Before North Quincy, Mr. Burke coached junior varsity football at Quincy High School. He also coached baseball at Quincy Junior College for 17 years.

Born and raised in Quincy, he was a three-sport captain in football, basketball and baseball at North Quincy, where he graduated from in 1946.

He graduated from Bowdoin College in 1950, where he was the captain of the football team. He joined the Army during the Korean War and was discharged in 1952. He then graduated from Georgetown University School of Foreign Service and also received his master's degree in education from Northeastern University.

He was a member of the Milton-Hoosic Club, the Neighborhood Club of Quincy and the Bowdoin Club of Boston.

He is survived by his wife, Carolyn C. (Chute) Burke; three sons, David F. Burke III of Santa Monica, Calif., Gregory C. Burke of Milton and Kenneth E. Burke of New York, N.Y.; his mother, Margaret (Zoia) Burke of Newton; and a sister, Nancy M. Griffin of Canton.

Burial was in Milton Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by Dolan Funeral Homes, Milton.

Donations may be made to Bowdoin College Alumni Fund, Class of 1950, 4101 College Station, Brunswick, Maine 04011.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Contentment seems to be a scarce commodity these days. Society seems discontented with many aspects of today's ways and manner of living. Faults in people and systems are seen... sometimes magnified... in the endless search for changes and improvements. The "green pastures" yearned for seem far away, inaccessible.

Much of this discontent is understandable and in some cases justified. Justified or not, a sad truth is evident.

The reassuring words - "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want; He makes me lie down in green pastures" seem to be too often ignored. Too often forgotten in the chase of imagined rainbows. Actually the most beautiful green pastures can be close by. They can be felt and seen when man finds contentment in an enjoyable relationship with God; the Maker of ALL green pastures.

Quincy Crisis Center

Christmas Delivery Saturday

The Quincy Crisis Center has scheduled food deliveries Saturday to needy families for Christmas.

Volunteers are needed to help with delivery preparations (9 to 10 a.m.) and to make deliveries to those in need throughout the South Shore from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Call (617) 847-6967 to schedule a time. Drivers will also be needed to help during the week of Dec. 18.

The Crisis Center has a wonderful day on Nov. 18 making deliveries for Thanksgiving.

More than 50 volunteers helped deliver food to families throughout the South Shore in Quincy, Weymouth, Milton, Braintree, Holbrook and Randolph.

Because of the high volunteer turnout, a delivery record was set -- most of the over 100 pre-scheduled deliveries were done in two hours.

In addition to making deliveries, volunteers also helped sort food for the "Food for Families" pantry and helped unload a truck of donated food items. Volunteers also came in throughout the week to deliver to the new requests that came in from those needing Thanksgiving help.

Impact Quincy Editorial

'Impact Quincy' editorial is a series of high-impact public service announcements published once a month in The Quincy Sun. The editorials, written by local officials and public health advocates, address critical substance abuse issues such as underage drinking in the City of Quincy.

Environmental Strategies Aim To Reduce Underage Drinking

By JOHN FRANCESCHINI
Quincy Public Schools

Systemwide Department Head
Physical Education & Health

Quincy Public Schools and IMPACT QUINCY, a community-based coalition, have worked diligently over the past decade to provide quality health education programs for the youth of Quincy.

Their latest, of many successful initiatives, is the development of environmental strategies in order to reduce underage drinking among teenagers in Quincy.

The main focus of this initiative is on changing community norms, behaviors and perceptions in relation to underage drinking in the City of Quincy. The initiative is called "Media Sharp," a new and proven tool used by the Center for Disease Control in order to help young people make healthy, life-affirming choices about tobacco and alcohol. The main objective of this program will be to make students critical consumers, relative to understanding how media advertising messages can be distorted and manipulated to the viewer.

Through the Quincy Public Schools' Department of Physical Education and Health, all middle school and high school students will view IMPACT QUINCY video spots prior to their physical education classes for the remainder of the 2000-2001 school year. This "News in Education" program, coordinated by Suzanne Okerfelt, IMPACT QUINCY and the Quincy Public Schools, is aimed at bringing an educational study of visual media to our schools. Achieving media literacy is a complex undertaking devoted to insuring the ability of our students to make sound choices in today's marketplace of products that affect their health. Introduction of a wide variety of these "Media Sharp" spots on a consistent basis before each physical education class will help students better understand the true intent of these advertising campaigns.

Community involvement, like that of IMPACT QUINCY, continues to be a tremendous asset to the Quincy Public School's K-12 Comprehensive Health Education curriculum offered to all students in Quincy. It is collaborative efforts like this one that place Quincy Public Schools at the head of the class in their presentation of wellness initiatives for all students. The City of Quincy is fortunate to have a community that truly cares about the education of their children in learning to live their lives in a positive healthy way.

In this role, Rizzo led a team of 75-80 full time staff and more than 20 consultants responsible for the planning, development, implementation and support of business-driven technology solutions.

Ronald Goodman Honored For Volunteerism

Quincy resident Ronald Goodman was recently recognized by the Boston Unit of Recording for the Blind & Dyslexic (RFB&D) at a Volunteer Appreciation Party at the Royal Sonesta Hotel.

RFB&D is the nation's educational library for students of all ages with print disabilities such as visual impairment, a learning disability or another physical disability.

Goodman was honored for devoting more than 1,000 hours to the preparation of recorded textbooks for students who cannot read effectively because of a disability.

Bank Of Canton Holiday Cash Give-Away

The Bank of Canton announces Robert Goodnow of Quincy is the winner of a $100 cash prize in the bank's annual Holiday Presents drawing.

During the four-week Holiday Presents campaign, the Bank will give away a total of $3,400 among its four branches.

"It's one of the ways the banks says, 'thank you' to the local community," said Bank President James Egan. "Among the four branches, we've literally had thousands of entrants," Egan added.

The annual Holiday Presents contest is open to everyone, bank and non-bank customers alike. No purchase or transaction is necessary.

Entry forms are available at the Quincy branch, both Canton branches and the Randolph branch.

Who's Who is the largest recognition program and publication in the nation honoring high achieving high school students. Students are nominated by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups, churches, and educational organizations based upon students' academic achievement and involvement in extracurricular activities.

Traditionally, 99 percent of Who's Who students have a grade point average of "B" or better and 97 percent are college bound.

Who's Who students also compete for $200,000 in scholarship awards and participate in the publication's Annual Survey of High Achievers, an annual opinion poll of teen attitudes.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving Unwanted Cars Fundraiser

Before winter gets serious, Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) reminds people with unwanted cars that now is the time to donate to a program designed to raise funds for MADD which is being conducted throughout Massachusetts.

Cars will be towed free of charge. Anyone interested in donating a car should call 1-800-720-6233. Pick-up of the vehicle usually takes a few days. There are restrictions. To start the process, donors may call at any time.

Not only does MADD benefit from the sale of each vehicle, the person donating it gets rid of an unwanted vehicle and may also be able to claim a tax deduction for making a charitable contribution.

The environment also benefits because areas are rid of unsightly and polluting cars.

$500 In Prizes At Wollaston Holiday Promotion

More than $500 in prizes will be awarded at the 15th annual Afternoon in Wollaston holiday promotion on Saturday.

A total of 17 Wollaston Business Association members have included coupons below on this page which can be filled out and dropped off at the appropriate business Saturday. A drawing for the winner will be held at each store at the end of the event.

Afternoon in Wollaston will feature special offers from Wollaston businesses designed to help shoppers save a few dollars for the holidays.

Wollaston Business Association President Lynne Houghton of the Jack Conway Company said participating merchants will begin their special offers as soon as they open in the morning.

"Everyone is welcome to take a stroll through and peek at some of the new restaurants and stores we have in the area," she said. "They'll also enjoy all of the decorations."

Afternoon in Wollaston will end at 6 p.m. when participating businesses draw the prizes from the coupons.

Participating merchants and their prizes are:

Beale Street Fish Market, 35 Beale St., $15 gift certificate.

Blackwood Pharmacy, 663 Hancock St., $25 gift certificate for Rx drugs or hospital supplies.

Barry's Deli, 21 Beale St., free lunch for a week.

Hanley Eyes P.U.D. Permits Council Seeks To Create Affordable Housing

By CRAIG SALTERS

Working closely with the city's Planning Department, the Housing Committee of the City Council is taking preliminary steps to create more affordable housing in Quincy.

Housing Committee Chairman Gregory Hanley presented fellow council members with a draft on an Inclusionary Zoning Resolution Monday night and plans to conduct public hearings on the matter to gather public input and gain public support.

Calling the draft "very much a working document," Hanley said the measure, if approved, would mandate that developers seeking Planned Unit Development permits—necessary only on projects 100,000 square feet or more—make 10 percent of their inventory affordable housing or donate an equivalent dollar amount into an Affordable Housing Trust to be overseen by the Planning Department.

"No such formal mechanism currently exists," said

Hanley, warning that the city's lack of affordable housing—currently under the state's Chapter 40B "anti-snob" minimum of 10 percent—makes it vulnerable to Comprehensive Permits issued by the state, such as the one filed during legal battles over the HighPoint Development in West Quincy.

"The 10 percent (figure) would only allow us to keep pace with current development," Hanley said. "If development grows and an affordable housing component doesn't grow with it, we'll never meet the Chapter 40B threshold."

'No Public Need' Board Shoots Down Liquor License Transfer Request

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

With petitions signed by more than 2,000 persons, the License Board Tuesday rejected the transfer of an all alcoholic license held by Dollar Saver of Quincy, 321 Quincy Shore Drive, to Plainville Liquors on Southern Artery (formerly New York Carpet.)

Before voting unanimously against the request, Police Chief Thomas Frane said although appreciating what proponents and opponents said there simply was "no public need" for another liquor license in the Quincy Point area.

It was seconded by Director of Building Services Walter White.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said in the last 10 years of sitting on the license board he has had to make some "hard decisions", but added that the license at Dollar Savers has been idle for almost two years, and that it has been that long looking for a buyer. He said it was apparent that there was "no great need."

Health Inspector Jane Gallahue concurred with the other board members as did Chairman Joseph Shea who said the applicant, the Raziela, Inc. is a "good one" who are "excellent people" and called the vote a "tough decision."

Shea, who commented that the store was actually in Ward 1, whose councillor

Food, Clothing, Toys For Several Thousand They're Putting Merry In Christmas For Needy

By CRAIG SALTERS

In the true spirit of the season, Quincy organizations are reaching out to make sure that no family goes without for the holidays.

The Salvation Army, the Quincy Lodge of Elks, the Koch Club, Father Bill's Place, The Quincy Crisis Center, The Pantry Shelf, and the American Red Cross are just some of the organizations providing food, clothing, gifts, and necessities to Quincy families in need.

Father Bill's Place, said Executive Director John Yazwinski, will deliver meals to anyone who needs one Christmas Day, with the shelter expecting over 100 deliveries, roughly the same amount delivered at Thanksgiving. Anyone in need of a holiday meal, Yazwinski said, should contact Paul Anderson at (617) 770-3314.

Father Bill's Place will also provide a Christmas meal in the shelter cafeteria and will provide each guest with a present of a backpack filled with necessities such as gloves, scarves, and hats.

Yazwinski, who noted the shelter is still running at over-capacity with some of the roughly 110 guests sleeping in emergency cots, thanked the various faith

THE DEWARE FUNERAL Home's seventh annual Holiday Memorial Tree will be in place until Friday at its 576 Hancock St. location. For each ribbon placed on the tree in memory of a loved one, the Deware Funeral Home will make a donation to the Esther Sanger Center for Compassion (formerly the Quincy Crisis Center). groups and the community for the Christmas presents and year-long support.

Continuing a nearly 100-year old program, the Quincy Lodge of Elks recently delivered 160 bushel baskets containing 14-pound turkeys along with apples, potatoes, loaves of bread, and fruit to Quincy families referred to the Elks by agencies, members, and city councillors. In addition, the Elks also provided a total of eight fruit baskets to ailing members. Exalted Ruler Terry Cullen served as chairman for the donation efforts, which were roughly 20 more than last year's total. Dave Bartick, bulletin editor for the Quincy Elks, attributed the program's success to increased membership in the Quincy Elks as well as the strong participation of volunteers, who numbered about 40 strong.

Still caught up in the holiday spirit, Bartick reported that the Quincy Elks have also donated over 650 toys to Toys for Tots.

Another longtime Quincy organization making the season brighter is the Koch Club, which delivered food baskets containing both a turkey and a ham, as well as fresh fruits and vegetables, to 50 Quincy families.

The club also gave new toys and other presents to those families who needed them, said Thomas Koch, whose father Richard Koch originated the charity program in 1952.

Koch thanked Committee Members Joseph Koch, Steven Mancuso, Robert Woods, John Colligan, and Atty. David Mahoney for making the food basket program a success and singled out the Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy and the South Shore YMCA for their support.

Koch also expressed thanks to the many people who donated funds in memory of Anne Moody, a longtime member of the Koch Club.

Major Ed Forster, who along with his wife Major Flo Foster commands the Quincy Temple Corps of the Salvation Army, said the organization will serve several hundred residents with toy and food vouchers as well as clothing assistance.

Already, Major Forster said, 200 winter coats have been distributed to individuals in need.

Major Forster noted that, even with the booming economy, many Quincy neighbors are dealing with the effects of underemployment -- with husbands and wives working two or more jobs without benefits such as health insurance -- and spiraling energy costs. "These people are having a hard time just scraping by," Major Forster said.

The Salvation Army kettles, he said, have collected over $100,000 and are $6,000 ahead of last year's pace. However, Major Forster cautioned that the kettles will need a strong final week similar to last year if they are to meet or exceed last year's total of $148,000. "But we still have that one big week ahead of us," said Major Forster.

The Quincy Crisis Center, run by Program Director Rev. David Wooster, delivered turkey or ham dinners to over 120 families last Saturday and expects the total to approach 150 families by holiday's end. The center also provided items such as toys, clothing, books, hats, and gloves to families who requested them.

Kathi Garrison, a volunteer and office coordinator for the center, reminded residents that the annual Christmas Dinner will take place today (Thursday) at 1 p.m. at United First Parish Church in Quincy Center.

The Quincy Crisis Center also offers daily lunches Monday through Friday year round, said Garrison.

Pantry Shelf Coordinator Bettyanne Muir Lang said that over 80 families in Quincy and the South Shore received holiday turkeys and children's gifts through the organization's "Adopt A Family" program. As of Monday, Muir Lang said, only six families had not been adopted and, given the strong support of the community and recent donations from local business, Muir Lang said that "there will be no trouble making sure that they have a Merry Christmas."

Being overly generous surely a good problem to have, is also the case at the American Red Cross, which is helping over 1,000 children across the South Shore -- including roughly 600 in Quincy -- with their Holiday Stocking Program, which has been existence for the last 15 years.

The stockings, some of them handmade, are filled with small gift items for the children.

"We just received three great big bags of toys, big and small packages," said Area Director Jackie Gardner. "This program is volunteer-driven, with all toys and stockings donated by community minded residents and businesses."

Program Manager Helen Crowley agreed. "The donors get carried away and we have scooters, cameras, sleeping bags, and even a telescope," Crowley said. "But we make use of all of it."

Will Provide 104 Affordable Senior Housing Units Navy Conveys 27-Acre Squantum Gardens For $1

Over four years of hard work paid off for the city Friday as the United States Navy, through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), conveyed ownership of the 27-acre Squantum Gardens to the private non-profit Elder Housing Corporation for the sum of $1.

The deal, a first-of-its-kind "special conveyance," had been delayed several years as new regulations were written and support garnered at various levels including city, state, federal, and military agencies.

The conveyance makes possible a two-phase rehabilitation project will result in a total of 152 units of affordable senior housing at Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace, managed by Elder Housing Corporation and monitored by the city and HUD.

"This is an historic occasion," said Mayor James Sheets, longtime advocate of the plan. "We are creating a state-of-the-art continuum of care for our seniors which will include both a senior center and senior housing."

Sheets was joined in the Friday ceremonies, held in a packed tent at the site, by representatives of the Navy, HUD, and the Elder Housing Corporation as well as Thomas Clasby, director of Quincy Elder Services. Several elected officials were also in attendance.

Senator John Kerry was unable to attend, having been unexpectedly called back to Washington, D.C., but made remarks via cell phone, thanking the various agencies for their cooperation and congratulating the city on its achievement.

"This is a discount purchase of the best order," Kerry said. "The city of Quincy, under James Sheets, is always ahead of the curve."

Sheets himself made note

THOMAS CLASBY, director of Elder Services for the city, lends a hand -- and a cell phone -- to allow Senator John Kerry to make remarks at the Squantum Gardens transfer ceremony. Sen. Kerry, who was mid-flight on a trip to Washington for a special session of the Senate, said the conveyance helps ease a housing crunch which he called "one of the most important needs in the nation."

DONALD McCUSKER, who along with wife Sally was one of the first residents three years ago of the 48-unit Naval Terrace, said he was glad other seniors would soon have the same opportunity as Squantum Gardens is developed over the next two years. "The location, obviously, is outstanding, and my wife and I love to walk along Quincy Shore Drive in the morning," McCusker said.

of the future significance of the conveyance. "We are the first in the country to have land conveyed for $1" Sheets told the audience, many of them seniors. "This marks a first in the United States and, through this project, HUD has written regulations which will allow cities and towns across the nation to do the same."

The project will now be run by a 13-member board of directors which was formed two years ago in anticipation of the conveyance.

Squantum Gardens, which served as Naval housing in conjunction with the now closed South Weymouth Naval Air Station, is located near the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St.

SQUANTUM GARDENS SIGNING: Ceremonies were held Friday to mark the "special conveyance" of the 27-acre Squantum Gardens from the United States Navy to the private non-profit Elder Housing Corporation for $1 through the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The transfer, the first of its kind in the country, will allow for the construction of 104 new units of affordable senior housing in the city. Dear Santa

Dear Santa:

It's me again. Late again. As usual, again.

I know I keep promising to write sooner and I don't. Something always keeps coming up. But Quincy has really been a busy place this year, Santa. All kinds of news stories. And trying to keep up with them all hasn't been that easy.

So, I guess that's my excuse for this year. But I'll do better next year. I promise.

I know it's pretty late and you probably have your Christmas Eve schedule already worked out. But if you and Rudolph and the other reindeer could do a little zig-zag or two to deliver the gifts I'm asking for, I really would appreciate it.

As in the past, Santa, some of these gifts are in a humorous vein and, of course, some in a serious.

So, Santa, please drop off the following to the following:

Mayor JAMES SHEETS, the private telephone number of ANDY CARD, President-Elect GEORGE BUSH'S Chief of Staff, so he can reach him quickly if the new administration is giving any federal goodies out to the cities. Come to think of it, though, Sheets and Card have been good friends since they served together as state representatives back in the 1970s. His Honor may already have that telephone number. But just to be sure... School Committeeman WILLIAM PHELAN, a "Citation of Courage" for standing up against the toxic Quincy Ave. site for the new Quincy High School when other officials were pushing for it... School Committeewoman CHRISTINE CEDRONE and her new commission, final success in finding the right site for the new school... Councillor and former Mayor FRANK McCAULEY, a top spot on the best seller's list for his book, Quincy, Massachusetts: A Political History 1889-2000. (You might like a copy yourself, Santa)... Councillor GREG HANLEY, a new fire ladder truck for Ward 1... Councillor MIKE DELAHUNT, a convincing argument to get his Capitol Hill colleagues to take a good look at the Electoral College and decide if we still really need it... City Clerk JOSEPH SHEA, an all expenses paid trip to Florida to straighten out the election mess down there... Councillors TIM CAHILL and DAN RAYMONDI, at least two more years of patience waiting for JIM SHEETS to say, "Okay, boys, I'm leaving."... School Supt. GENE CREEDON, high flying MCAS scores... Fire Chief TOM GORMAN, a year without fatal fires and false alarms... Police Chief TOM FRANE, a year without fatal accidents and major crimes... Quincy College President SEAN BARRY, a continuous booming enrollment... ANN McLAUGHLIN, executive director Thomas Crane Public Library, a shipment of new books to fill the shelves in the new addition... JOSEPH MANNARINO, executive director Quincy 2000, a real biggie for downtown Quincy... City Council President PAUL HAROLD, the five votes he needs to keep the gavel for a second term and good luck in his new job as Norfolk County Register of Deeds... Quincy's Beacon Hill delegation, Senator MICHAEL MORRISSEY and state Reps. BRUCE AYERS, RON MARIANO and STEVE TOBIN, the political clout to assure Quincy of its fair share of any financial and other goodies coming out of the State House... Sheriff MIKE BELLOTTI, a peaceful year with contented inmates at the Norfolk County House of Correction... Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate ARTHUR TOBIN, a deserving "thank you" for all the nice things he does -- and quietly -- for so many people throughout the year... Ditto for Emergency Management Deputy Director TONY SICILIANO who is always there when you need him... MARALIN MAN-NING, executive director, and secretary MARIE WATTS, the "Dynamic Duo" of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, a "Well-Done" citation for all their above-and-beyond-the-call-of-duty work they do... Colonial Federal's JERRY DACEY, a reunion with his long-time missing hat... DAN DEWEY, a round of applause for being the only Quincy Republican to take on a Democrat in the November state election... City Councillor PAT McDERMOTT and Asst. Dist. Atty. TRACY WILSON, a beautiful day next May 20th. That's the date they have set for their wedding at St. Ann's. (The reception will be at the Blue Hill Country Club where Pat's parents, CHARLES and PATRICIA McDERMOTT held their wedding reception... DEANNA GAZARIAN and her colleagues at Phase II Jewelry and Gifts, 25 more good business years and then some more... ED and FLO FORSTER, commanding officers of the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps, kettles filled to the brim... Fr. WILLIAM MCCARTHY and JOHN YAZWINSKI, executive director, the day soon when Father Bill's Place and other shelters for the homeless are empty and no longer needed because of sufficient affordable housing... SHAWN SHEEHAN, executive director of the Faxon House Detox Center, the new location he is seeking... JACKIE GARDNER, director South Area American Red Cross; Rev. DAVID WOOSTER, executive director Quincy Crisis Center; Sister JOANNE WESTWATER, executive director Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services; PATRICIA THORLEY, director Atlantic Neighborhood Association; BETTYANNE MUIR LANG, director of The Pantry Shelf; ANNE MARIE HANLEY, president Germantown Neighborhood Council and all the other agencies and associations helping those in need, the necessary funds to continue their good work... Public Works Commissioner DAVE COLTON, a magic wand to make the snow disappear when it starts getting too deep... To the WJDA gang, JAY ASHER, JOHN NICOLSON, JOE CATALANO, DEBBIE and MIKE LOGAN, JIM FELCI, TERRY FANCHER, CHARLIE ROSS, TOM WILLIAMS, happy broadcasting... And, for old friend ROY LIND, pleasant dreams now that he can sleep in... SAL GIARRATANI, a book entitled, How To Keep Those Letters Nice and Short... Friend DAVE BECKER, a much better 2001... And Santa, this is just between the two of us: If CHARLIE SWEENEY, former school committeeman and miracle grower of artificial roses, has asked you for a carton of cigarettes, could you work in a few stale packs? Betty and his Plaza walking friends are still trying to get him off the butts. Enough state ones might do the trick... SHARON BEALS, the energetic executive director of the Beechwood Community Life Center, a pair of roller skates to help cover all the ground she does.

And, by the way, Santa, she passes along this little item sent to her by her daughter-in-law in Atlanta entitled "Thought For Christmas," it goes like this:

"Do you know what would have happened if it had been Three Wise Women instead of three Wise Men? They would have asked directions, arrived on time, helped deliver the baby, cleaned the stable and made a casserole, brought practical gifts and there would be Peace on Earth."

And to DOROTHY, GAIL, LINDA, DONNA (D.J.), DOLLY, BOB, FRED, JIM, AMY, MICHELLE, KIM, BRIAN, KELLIE, LINDSAY and JAY, all my love.

Santa, I know I've forgotten some people including good friends. I always do that. But as I've said before, you start getting a little forgetful after you reach 39. And I've reached it a few times.

But to all of them and all of you, a very Merry Christmas, a Happy Hanukkah, a happy healthy New Year -- and exciting new millennium.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States.
85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

THIS NOSTALGIC early 1930s postcard from the collection of Tom Galvin is one of the favorites of Quincy Sun readers who look forward to seeing it at Christmas. This is the fifth year it has appeared at popular request. It is a view of what was claimed to be the largest Christmas tree in the United States erected in front of what was then the Granite Trust building now the Fleet Bank. At that time this intersection in Quincy was known as Granite Five Corners. On the left was Howard Johnson's restaurant and at the entrance to the Granite Trust Company bank lobby was Flagg's cigar shop and Beech's newsstand. On the right was Homer's Jewelry now the site of Rogers Jewelry Store. The Merchants Division of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce contributed their 85 foot tall Christmas Tree.

Crane Library Awarded $20,000 Grant

The Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy has been awarded a $20,000 grant by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners and the State Advisory Council on Libraries.

The Business -- Career Services Mini-Grant is designed to assist the Crane Library in providing enhanced service to their patrons by being better positioned and able to address the business and career needs of the local community. The library will use its grant to develop collections, conduct training, and implement programming around business and career information.

The Crane Library is among 15 public libraries to receive the grant under the Federal Library Services and Technology Act.

Santa Lands At Dennison Airport

By PAUL HAROLD

Santa Claus made an early visit to the city, arriving by plane at the Dennison Airport in Squantum. He was greeted there by 100 youngsters and adults.

He was enroute to the White Brothers' Milk Company's annual children's Christmas party at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus.

Leo Volpe and Tom Artesani were co-chairmen for the party.

VANDALS HIT SKATING AREAS

William Spargo, manager of the city's parks and playgrounds, asked for the public's help in protecting the skating areas from nuisance vandalism. He said the rocks and sticks thrown onto the surface of areas flooded for skating had ruined the surfaces at the Foster Playground in Montclair and the Moses Playground in Squantum.

Spargo had the Foster Playground drained and re-flooded, but was unable to drain the Moses Playground because of the weather.

BASS WILL BENEFIT FIRST CHURCH

The will of the late Lewis Bass, made public this week, conditionally provided for a gift of a fifth of a million dollars to the First Parish Church. The conditions required for the care of his brother, Alva, for his lifetime and required that a plaque be installed in the church, honoring his late father, also named Lewis Bass. If the conditions were not met, the bequest would then go to the All Souls' Church in Braintree.

The Bass family was one of the oldest families in the city. Lewis Bass and nine generations of his family worshipped at the First Parish Church. He was descended from Samuel Bass, born in 1600, who was a great grandfather of John Adams.

Bass died at age 69. He practiced law in the city and served on the city council for a number of years. His 22-page will was handwritten in the old style.

QUINCY-ISMS

An earthquake was reported in Quincy, South Shore area, the most violent in memory. There was no serious damage, but there were reports of cracked interior walls in Merrymount and Norfolk Downs. . . Mayor Thomas Burgin announced that he would replace Mrs. Newall Lane, the mother of City Council President and newly elected State Representative Myron Lane, on the hospital board with prominent clubwoman Mrs. William Robb. . . The newly completed Presidents' Arms, opposite the Adams Mansion, was ready for occupancy. . . Two of the city's draft boards, Local 125, serving Wards 1 and 2, and Local 127, serving Wards 4 and 5, were notified to send 10 men each by Jan. 7. The boards reported that all those on the list to be called were volunteers. . . George Bonsall was honored at the Neighborhood Club where he served as treasurer for many years. Mayor Burgin presented him with a fishing rod and reel on behalf of the club. . . Robinson's on Hancock St. reduced Victor records from 75 to 50 cents on records by Tommy Dorsey, Artie Shaw and Kate Smith. . . Fire Chief William Sand warned of the hazards during the holiday season, noting the particular danger of Christmas trees with lighted candles. . . Isabelle Giovannagnoli was the first female employee of the Police Department. She was appointed as a stenographer, having received a 96 on the civil service exam. . . A 46-foot patrol boat was launched at Quincy Adams Yacht yard. The boat was for use at the Quabbin Reservoir. . . The Anchor-In on Wollaston Blvd. offered lobster dinners for 75 cents. . . Free turkeys were given out at the Lincoln Theatre where Brian Aherm and Rita Hayworth were featured in "The Lady in Question." . . By executive order Governor Leverett Saltonstall's re-organization of the state's military forces would establish at least one unit in Quincy. . . Campaign reports filed with the city clerk showed that the majority of money to the anti-Plan E campaign came from employees at city hall. . . Two former QHS football players were on the Boston College football team enroute to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl: Johnny Joyce and Eddie Twiss. . . John Mullarkey was the basketball coach at NQHS. . . The crowning glory of the downtown decorations were the more than 1,000 candles in the windows of the Granite Trust Tower. . . Rev. Arthur Wright was the pastor at the Hall Place Methodist Church. . . Nathan Nickerson, chairman of the city's board of assessors, was elected president of the Norfolk-Suffolk County Assessors Association.

Janine Ronayne Cast As 'Bonbon' In Boston Ballet Holiday Classic

Quincy Ninth Grader Introduces Sweet 'Nutcracker' Role

By CARLA DeFORD

In her pink tutu trimmed with strawberries, and whipped cream hat with a cherry on top, 14-year-old Quincy resident Janine Ronayne will surely look good enough to eat as she premieres the role of a strawberry-shortcake bonbon in the 36th annual Boston Ballet production of 'The Nutcracker.'

Janine, a ninth grader at Thayer Academy in Braintree, is a 'Nutcracker' veteran, having danced the role of Clara, the leading children's part, in 1998 and 1999. This year as a bonbon she is performing a role newly created by choreographer Daniel Pelzig.

In recognition of both her achievements and potential, Janine was recently given a full scholarship to Boston Ballet School, where she has been a student since she was four years old.

Janine's schedule is incredibly hectic during Nutcracker season, with ballet classes almost every day and performances several times a week, including two shows a day on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Despite all her extracurricular commitments, she is an excellent student, though balancing the demands of her academic and artistic life can't be easy at this time of year.

Of her role as a bonbon, Janine says, "I love it. It is so fun. It's difficult too, challenging."

Janine is one of eight bonbons, each of whom has a partner. In addition to the shortcakes, there are lollipops, chocolate-covered strawberries, and petits fours. They dance in Act II when the scene is set in the Land of the Sweets, which is ruled by the Sugarplum Fairy. As Janine describes them, the bonbons are the Sugarplum Fairy's attendants: "We're playful teenagers before the Sugarplum Fairy comes on, then we become proper young ladies."

Looking back, Janine remembers how much she enjoyed dancing the role of Clara.

JANINE RONAYNE

joyed dancing the role of Clara.

"I was able to change the role around to make it me," she says. "I controlled the part, had fun with it, and did whatever felt comfortable to make it more realistic." Her interpretation was so successful that a Boston Globe reviewer described Janine as "one of the best Claras in memory, a vivacious young dancer-actress who made the childlike solo that precedes the grand pas de deux into a poignant preface to womanhood." Instructors at the Boston Ballet acknowledged the quality of Janine's performances by using videotapes of them to teach the role of Clara to this year's dancers. As a result, says Janine, "I wasn't just Clara for two years, I'll be Clara this year too!"

Janine's mother, Janice Ronayne, a Quincy native and fifth-grade teacher at the Montclair School, remembers one afternoon in 1998 when Janine's class went to see Janine perform as Clara.

"We had fantastic seating, and Janine rode home on the bus with us," says her mother, noting that Janine returned to Boston later that day for an evening performance. In 1999 children and parents from Janine's Central Middle School class went to "The Nutcracker" to offer Janine some hometown encouragement. "We filled two buses that night," Janice recalls.

"Quincy supports the arts," says Janice, whose older daughter, Francie, went through the Quincy school system, was in "The Nutcracker" for many years, and is now a freshman at New York University. Janice and her husband, Bob Ronayne (owner of Fairway Lumber in Quincy) have shown unwavering commitment to their daughters' artistic endeavors over the years, and Janice, in addition, coordinates a dance ensemble at her school. Known as the "Montclair Dance Troupe 2000," they perform at such venues as Work Inc., a sheltered workshop, and at the North Quincy Stop and Shop. Janice says her goal in doing this is to "give the kids a chance to develop an appreciation of the arts and help them make the arts a part of their lives."

In speaking of her daughter's development as a dancer, Janice says that this year Janine has "crossed a threshold," by going from Clara, a little girl's part, to bonbon, a more sophisticated one. "The Boston Ballet wants kids who have stage presence," Janice asserts, "real actresses who play to the audience. Not too many can do both the dancing and the acting really well. Janine works the audience," says her mother with justifiable pride.

"She has a striking presence. She lights up the stage."

Katharine Cantelli Receives Bay State Scholarship

Katharine Cantelli, daughter of Stephen and Julie Cantelli of Quincy, has been awarded a Bay State Scholarship from Saint Michael's College for the 2000-01 academic year.

Cantelli is a first year exploratory junior at the college, located in the Burlington area of Vermont. She is a graduate of Quincy High School.

The State Scholarship program, developed by Saint Michael's, awards scholarships to outstanding students from each of the New England states. Students are nominated for the award by high school principals, in consultation with guidance counselors. The scholarship may be renewed each year if the student maintains a 3.0 GPA at Saint Michael's.

To be selected for the scholarship, Cantelli finished in the top 10 per cent of her graduating class, had combined SAT scores of 1200 or better and achieved at least a B+ average in a college preparatory program. She also demonstrated leadership qualities, community service, and the potential to contribute to the Saint Michael's community.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Easy Mushroom Stuffing

Recently, my "shopper" husband got carried away at the supermarket and bought two cartons of large mushrooms (you got one free with one). A bargain he can't resist

These were the kind you could stuff, but that particular day, I was pressed for time so I made a stuffing mixture, which I have since used for chicken stuffing. It's very simple and so moist and tasty, one would think it took much longer than it did.

Mushroom Stuffing

- 1 or 2 cartons mushrooms
- 1 cup or so of seasoned bread crumbs.
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice or 2 teaspoons bottled lemon juice.
- water if needed
- salt and pepper to taste
- 2 or 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 3 tablespoons olive oil and smidgen of butter or margarine

These are the ingredients I used, but taste it as you go along to see if it suits your taste. For instance, you could use more soy sauce or lemon juice if you want.

Wash and cut the mushrooms in halves or quarters depending on the size. In hot oil and butter or margarine, sauté the garlic and mushrooms. Add the soy sauce and a smidgen of water and continue to sauté until mushrooms are tender. Add the breadcrumbs, salt and pepper and a bit more water if needed. Turn off the heat and blend until mixture resembles stuffing.

Place in a slightly greased baking pan and bake covered in a 300 degree oven until done. (takes only about 25-20 minutes because most of the cooking is already done.) If you are using it for a chicken or other meats, you naturally do not have to bake it.

I served it in clam shells. Just before serving, I placed all the filled shells on a cookie sheet and keep it warm until served. Serve with lemon slices if desired.

John Adams Institute Highlights Holland's Role In American History

By PAUL HAROLD

When I first heard of the John Adams Institute I assumed it was at Harvard, or in Washington at the Smithsonian or at the U. S. State Department.

One of the last places I expected to find it was in Holland where I did on a recent vacation trip.

Holland, however, is an appropriate place, considering that Adams lived there from 1781-1782, first seeking recognition for the new nation and later securing loans from Holland and other European powers. At the time, Amsterdam was the banking and trading capital of Europe. In 1782 Adams secured a loan of five million guilders from the tight-fisted Dutch bankers, the first loan to the new nation. These funds give Holland the distinction as the United States' oldest ally of all the nations of the world.

In letters to his wife, Abigail, during this time Adams writes of his admiration for the Dutch virtues of frugality, industry and cleanliness, saying that they "deserved the imitation of my countrymen." He later noted that, they (the Dutch) are very sociable... in their own peculiar fashion."

Appropriately, the institute is housed in a building in the same Amsterdam neighborhood where Adams lived along with his sons John Quincy and Charles Francis. The quiet, tree-lined residential neighborhood is along a canal with three and four-story stone houses facing a park. It retains the same grandeur and scale as when Adams lived there.

The headquarters for the institute consists of only one room, but it is housed in a 17th century mansion house that dominates the neighborhood. Dominating the entrance lobby is a six-foot portrait of Adams, showing him in his role as peace-maker as one of the negotiators of the Treaty of Paris that ended our war for independence from Britain. The portrait is recognizable and it turns out to be a copy of the famous Copley portrait at Harvard's Fogg Museum. It was painted by the brother of the institute's director Anne Wertheim.

The mansion house is also of great significance for the history it represents in the early founding of our country for it was here that the Dutch West India Company, established in 1625, was headquartered. It was the Dutch West India Company that established the colony of New York, originally called New Amster-business interests in colonial Boston. Some of the tea destroyed in the Boston Tea Party was a shipment from the Dutch West India Company.

Similar to British companies given authority to colonize America, the Dutch companies were required to hold their boards of directors meetings in the city of their charter, in this case Amsterdam. Thus all decisions regarding the development of the colony of New York were made in this house. Surprisingly, there is little attention given to the importance the house played in the history of New York and America. In fact, the house is not a museum, but is used as a combined office building and catering hall.

The institute was established in 1987 by a group of Dutch citizens and continues to be supported by private donations, mostly from companies doing business in the U. S.

Although it has a limited program, it plays an important role in the cultural life of Amsterdam. It has been called Europe's leading U. S. lecture forum. Its programs consist mainly of lectures by American prominent writers, thinkers, artists and poets. The posters of past speakers that decorate the institute's office show the range of opinions and interests that the institute offers its participants; from the economist John Kenneth Galbraith, to writers Saul Bellow and Gore Vidal to Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Founding director Anne Wertheim has announced her intention of stepping down, to be replaced by the institute's assistant director Monique Knapen. Knapen said that one of her goals as the new director is to visit the land of the Adamses -- Quincy, which she hopes to do in February of next year.

Ringing The Bell For The Salvation Army

TWO MAYORS, Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley and present Mayor James Sheets, got things rolling for the Salvation Army on the first shift Thursday at the kettle.

MICHAEL MCFARLAND, city auditor and member of the School Committee, and Sean Barry, president of Quincy College.

A PATRIOTIC TOUCH was added by Uncle Sam Rounseville and his wife, Jean Kenney Rounseville, vice president Eastern Bank and past president Quincy Lions Club.

JO-ANN BRAGG, vice chairman of the School Committee and state Rep. Bruce Ayers.

ARTHUR TOBIN, Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate and former mayor, and Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond.

NORFOLK COUNTY Sheriff Michael Bellotti and state Rep. Ronald Mariano.

FIFTY-ONE community leaders manned the Salvation Army Celebrity Kettle in downtown Quincy, Dec. 8, 14 and 15. Together they raised over $2,600 to help the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps help the needy this Christmas. Those who staffed the kettle Dec. 14-15 are shown below. Photos of those who manned the kettle Dec. 8 appeared in last week's Quincy Sun. The kettle was set up in front of Ryder's Home Decor and More Store, 1489 Hancock St.

CITY COUNCIL President and Norfolk County Register of Deeds-elect Paul Harold and John O'Connor, president and CEO of the South Coastal Bank.

CITY CLERK Joseph Shea and John Gillis, Norfolk County Commissioner and former city clerk.

ISOBEL BERTMAN of Rogers Jewelry and a member of the South Shore YMCA Board of Directors and Daniel Flynn, past president of Quincy Rotary Club and president of Daniel Flynn & Co.

JOHN YAZWINSKI, executive director of the Father Bill's Place shelter for the homeless and Fr. William McCarthy of St. John's Church after whom the shelter is named.

EUGENE CREEDON, Superintendent of Quincy public schools and Charles Sweeny, former school committee member and member Quincy Board of Voters Registrars.

PATRICK MCDERMOTT, Ward 3 city councillor, manned the kettle alone while his partner, Ward 6 councillor Joseph Newton, was fighting traffic to get there. He finally made it.

JACKIE GARDNER, South Area Director American Red Cross and Tim Cahill, city councillor and Norfolk County Treasurer.

MARALIN MANNING, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and a member of the Quincy Kiwanis Club board and John Boucher, president and chief operating officer of South Shore Savings Bank, got things off to a good start Friday.

JOYCE BAKER, president of the Quincy Historical Society and associated with City View Real Estate, and Richard Gormley, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and vice president Sovereign Bank.

STATE SENATOR Michael Morrissey and Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating.

Morrissey Holiday Party Benefits Needy Families

Sen. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) announces the success of his annual holiday party which was used as a vehicle to collect donations for needy families during the holiday season.

Donations collected by Morrissey's holiday party, held recently at the Sons of Italy in Quincy, included many bags of non-perishable foods, dozens of toys and $3,000 in financial contributions for local charities.

"I want to extend my deep gratitude to my supporters and to the Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy for their terrific generosity," Morrissey said.

This year Morrissey plans to direct the charitable gifts collected at his holiday party to the Rockland Food Pantry, the Rockland Toy Drive, the Quincy Commission on Families and the Braintree Special Needs Program.

"In previous years our donations allowed the Holbrook Food Pantry, Quincy Community Action Food Pantry, Atlantic Neighborhood Center in North Quincy and the Toy Drive of the Norwell Police Department to serve a greater number of families," Morrissey said. "I am so pleased that we will again provide needed contributions to local food banks and toy drives."

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS, Sgt. Major James Cavanaugh of Toys for Tots, and Steve Towle, president and COO of Boston Financial Data Services, recently participated in the recent BFDS Toys for Tots campaign. The toys were presented at the company's 2000 Quincy Community Giving Day Dec. 14. Representatives from Father Bill's Place, Dove, Inc., Quincy Community Action Programs, and Big Brother/Big Sister were also present to receive cash donations. BFDS contributed a total of $10,000 to the charities, which serve a variety of residents in Quincy. (V2 Visuals photo)

Matthew Joyce Receives Service Academy Nomination

Matthew Joyce of Quincy has been nominated by Congressman William Delahunt for admission to the United States Service Academies for the 2001-2002 school year.

Joyce was one of 26 students from the South Shore and the Cape and Islands to receive a nomination.

"It is a privilege to nominate these accomplished candidates for such a first-rate education," Delahunt said. "These young people, their families, and teachers can take great pride in this opportunity."

Dozens of prospective nominees were reviewed by Delahunt's eight-member Congressional Service Academy Selection Committee which included Hanover's Barbara DiNatale, detective prosecutor with the Quincy Police Department; and Quincy's Rosemary Wahlberg, retired director of Quincy Community Action.

For more information on the nomination process, call Congressman Delahunt's office toll-free at 1-800-794-9911.

Two Restaurants Donating To Quincy Crisis Center

Two Quincy restaurants, Alfredo's and Amelia's are participating in the Quincy Crisis Center first Holiday 2000 Giving Program by donating $1 for every gift certificate they sell during December.

The Crisis Center operates a foot pantry on wheels for emergency food deliveries to people who are homebound throughout the South Shore and provides hot meals to the homeless and needy on weekdays at the United First Parish Church in Quincy.

Rev. David B. Wooster, executive director of the Quincy Crisis Center said, "We're very grateful to Alfredo's and Amelia's for signing up for the program." "We served over 11,000 meals last year, and the funds raised with this program are very important despite the healthy economy, hunger has not gone away in our community."

By agreeing to donate to the Center, Alfredo's at 75 Franklin St., and Amelia's at 305 Victory Rd., Marina Bay, are joining with the Center in a win/win effort, Wooster said.

Other restaurants that want more information, may call Rev. Wooster at 617-847-6967. Donations to the Center may be sent to PO Box 31, Quincy, MA 02170-001.

Noonan Keynote Speaker At Awesome Aging Health Festival

John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council On Aging, was the keynote speaker at the annual Awesome Aging Health Festival held recently at the Kit Clark Senior Services Center in Dorchester.

Noonan discussed some of the positive aspects of the aging process based on his years of experience and involvement in programs for the elderly as a member of the Quincy Council on Aging.

Noonan stressed the importance of Meals on Wheels, elder van transportation systems, block grants, fitness, health education, preventive medicine, and information and referral services.

He pointed out that, under the leadership of Mayor James Sheets, the conveyance of the 26-acre Squantum Gardens to the city of Quincy is a major step in providing moderate income housing for Quincy seniors.

He said the plans envisioned by Sheets for the former U.S. Naval property will be a model for what can be accomplished when former military facilities are converted to civilian usage. The Squantum Gardens will become an ideal setting for Quincy seniors in their golden years, Noonan said.

Squantum Gardens will include moderate income housing, a medical clinic, fitness facilities, day care and Alzheimer's Care, and a multi-purpose senior center.

Karen Patel Participates In BU CityLab Camp

Quincy resident Karen Patel was one of 28 area high school students to attend Boston University School of Medicine's CityLab Camp.

The one-week biotechnology camp allowed participants to learn and apply the basic concepts and laboratory skills associated with biotechnology. The camp took on the role of a biotechnology company in which teams of students worked together to design and carry out an investigation to solve a problem. In particular, they focused on techniques in recombinant

DNA, cell extraction and protein purification.

Patel and fellow campers visited the Genzyme Allston Landing Manufacturing facility, where they observed firsthand the workings of a biotechnology company. At the end of the week, students presented their work during a poster session to friends, family and scientists. Each student earned a certificate of completion.

Woodward School Names New Board Of Trustees Members

The Board of Trustees of the Woodward School for Girls announces the new members of its 2000-2001 board.

They are: Lynne Anderson of Braintree, serving as treasurer; Dena Blathras of Braintree; Lorraine Bottelli of Randolph; Patricia DiGiusto of Braintree; Jane Ford of Quincy; Neil M. Kerstein of Quincy; Edward McDermott of Hingham; Marie McLaughlin of Hingham; Robert Raimondi of Quincy; Holly Smith of Canton; and Diane Snyder of Hingham.

They join veteran members: Richard C. Pierce of Canton, chairman; Herbert F. Voigt of Milton, vice chairman; Jane L. Griffin of Quincy, clerk; Patrick T. Hayes of Quincy, Edward T. Martin of Quincy, Eileen Shaw of Marshfield; Stephen Custeau of Quincy; Roberta Fitzgerald of Randolph; and Mayor James Sheets.

The Woodward School, established in 1894, provides a solid college preparatory education to young women in grades 6-12. The Woodward School is accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, and is a member of the Association of Independent Schools in New England.

The following members' biographies are below:

Pierce is general counsel for Marina Bay Management. He also serves as chairman of the board at South Shore Mental Health Services and as a board member with Randolph Savings Bank. He is a parent of two current Woodward students.

McDermott, co-owner of McDermott-Cleary Insurance in Quincy, is a 1958 graduate of Boston College. He holds directorships with the Massachusetts Insurance Agents Association, Quincy Business Council, Neighborhood Club of Quincy and Stonehill College Retreat Center, and acts as president of the South Shore Agents Association.

McDermott is also an active member with the Boston College Irish Studies Program, Irish Cultural Center, Irish Chamber of Commerce, Eire Society of Boston, Beacon Society of Boston, South Shore Country Club, Glastonbury Abbey, and is past director of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus.

Ford works as a non-profit management consultant. She is a member of the National Society of Fund Raising Executives, a director of the Chronic Syndrome Support Association, and sits on the Advisory Board of the South Shore Registered Nurses Association.

Ford has more than 25 years of experience working and volunteering with local and national nonprofit organizations and is a Certified Fund Raising Executive.

Griffin is retired from Massachusetts General Hospital where she worked as a staff nurse and earned the MGH School of Nursing "Outstanding Educator" award in 1981. She is also a director with the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing Board.

Bottelli is employed by Boston Financial Data Services as a manager of Quality Control Group Mutual Funds. She graduated from the Woodward School in 1967 and holds memberships in both national and international groups.

Blathras is a financial planner with Prudential Financial Planning Services.

She is a member of the Wellesley College Club of Boston. She is a former student of the Woodward School and has her master's degree in education from Harvard University.

Snyder is a preschool teacher at the Striar Jewish Community Center. She is a 1969 graduate from Tufts University and has served on boards for the Congregational Sha'aray Shalom in Hingham and Polymer Design Company. She is a parent of a recent graduate of the Woodward School.

Martin is a senior vice president of R.M. Bradley in charge of human resources and public relations. A longtime newspaper reporter, Martin worked in daily newspapers in West Virginia and Rhode Island before joining the former Boston Post. When the Post stopped publishing, he joined the Boston Herald Traveler where he advanced as city editor.

He covered every major New England story from the Brinks trial to the inauguration of John F. Kennedy. He was the only reporter in New England to witness an early atomic detonation. Shortly after President Kennedy's inauguration, Martin was asked to handle press relations for Edward M. Kennedy in his first bid for the U.S. Senate. He was been an advisor in every subsequent campaign and was the Senator's administrative assistant in Washington for seven years.

Martin served the federal government for 20 years beginning as public affairs and educational officer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Later he was given a presidential appointment as New England Regional administrator for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. For several years he was the director of space management for the General Services Administration.

Martin was a student at Boston University when he enlisted in the Marine Corps shortly after Pearl Harbor.

D'Amico Meeting Jan. 9 On Common St. Traffic

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico has scheduled a neighborhood meeting Tuesday, Jan. 9 at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., to discuss traffic safety along Common St. and adjacent roadways.

Representatives of the newly-formed West Quincy Traffic Alliance, the Quincy

Police Department, the Department of Public Works, and the Traffic Engineer have been invited to discuss the following: status of a "No Truck" ordinance on Common St.; manual street count for neighborhood plans for a comprehensive traffic study; and road improvement.

D'Amico said that initial plans and a schedule for the planned reconstruction of Common St. will be submitted at the meeting.

The goal of the West Quincy Traffic Alliance, D'Amico said, is to install traffic measures to benefit all streets and have the support of all neighbors before the HighPoint development becomes a reality.

Clifford Marshall Elementary students got a long weekend as an early Monday morning power outage closed school for the day.

According to MassElectric, the outage, which lasted 3 hours and 47 minutes, was caused by downed wires which had been damaged by the extremely windy weather.

Superintendent Eugene Creedon said he called off school after receiving reports that the school was without power.

Tuesday, Creedon said, was business-as-usual for Marshall, which has approximately 600 students.

The power outage lasted from 6:30 a.m. until 10:18 a.m.

Quincy Access TV Moving Studios To Library

Quincy Access Television, has temporarily closed its Merrymount Parkway studios while making the move to the expanded facility in the new addition of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Executive Director Bette Campbell said that the high-quality of programming will continue through the stations'; remote hookup.

"We will continue to cover all the events in Quincy through our remote facilities," she said. "that includes the festivities centered around Quincy's First Night celebration.

Quincy Access Television's studios will reopen in February at the new facility at the library at 88 Washington St. The new 6,000-square foot facility will include two studios with state-of-the-art digital equipment, non-linear editing suite, two traditional editing studios, and computer classrooms.

For more information on Quincy Access Television, or how you can become involved in community television, call Campbell at 376-1440.

3-Alarm Fire Causes $100,000 Estimated Damage To Condo

Quincy firefighters responded to a three-alarm fire Sunday at 67 Bay State Rd. which destroyed a condominium unit and caused an estimated $100,000 to $150,000 in damage.

Two firefighters were treated for back strain at Quincy Medical Center after the blaze, which was possibly started by an overheated clothes dryer.

Firefighters were able to rescue a puppy from the condo, which is owned by Roland and Vivian Marcial.

The Marcial family was not home during the fire.

Don't Let The Grinch Steal Your Christmas

Because of the time of the year, with all the hustle and bustle going on, many of us are good candidates for a Grinch to ruin our holiday season. Here are some simple things that you can do to prevent becoming the victim of a crime:

- When shopping, never take more money or credit cards with you than you will need.
- If you carry a purse, put the strap over your neck and hold the purse close to your body at all times.
- Always pay attention to who is around you and what is happening around you. Never give a thief the chance to take you by surprise.
- Always store your packages in the trunk of your car. Out of sight, out of mind.
- When you get home, remove the packages from the trunk.
- When you leave your home to go shopping, leave a light and a radio or TV on. This will give a potential thief the impression that someone may be home.

• Plan your shopping. Make sure that you leave the store well before closing time. If you wait too long you may be the only one in the parking lot and could become the victim of a thief or worse.

• When you throw out those empty Christmas boxes, make sure you break them up and put them inside a trash bag. A good thief may drive around the neighborhood until he/she finds an empty TV or stereo box in the trash. This is a good sign that there is a new stereo or TV in that home.

• Don't Drink and Drive. Make sure that you have a designated driver. The life you save may be yours or a loved one.

On behalf of Chief Thomas W. Frane, and the entire Quincy Police Department, I wish you a very safe and happy holiday season.

New Boat And Canoe Access Guide Available

Rep. Bruce Ayers announces that the Public Access Board of the state Department of Fisheries, Wildlife & Environmental Law Enforcement has published a new guide to the state's boat and canoe access facilities.

The book, entitled "Public Access to the Waters of Massachusetts," is a full-color publication that includes site maps and details about more than 200 state access areas. The 150-page guide also includes information about boating and fishing programs in the Department of Fisheries, Wildlife & Law Enforcement.

"Massachusetts is blessed with a tremendous natural heritage of rivers, streams, lakes and coastal waters," said Bob Durand, Secretary of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs. "Publication of this book is a great asset to all our citizens who enjoy experiencing the outdoor treasures that Massachusetts' waterways have to offer."

"This book is a fantastic resource for people who like fishing, bating, canoeing or kayaking," Ayers said. "Access to our state's natural areas is one of my top priorities and this publication will be a great help to all people who enjoy our rivers, lakes and coastal waters."

The guide is available to the public at the Public Access Board office for $5. It can be obtained by mail for $8, which includes postage and handling. Interested persons should send a notice of return address and a check or money order payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to:

Public Access Board, Department of Fisheries, Wildlife & Environmental Law Enforcement, 1440 Soldier's Field Rd., Brighton, MA 02135.

Deadline Saturday, Dec. 30 Nominations Coming In For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are coming in for The Quincy Sun's 16th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Quincy school teacher Ronald G. Adams was honored for giving freely of his time to guide and inspire his Broad Meadows Middle School students in highly acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs and oversights, both local and worldwide.

Adams was selected from among 35 nominees submitted by Sun readers. A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final selection.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below on this page.

After nominations close Saturday, Dec. 30, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn. Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 30.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Saturday, Dec. 30.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch, Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Robert Derbes for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community during a "life-long love affair" with his native Quincy, 1997.

Robert Curry for his long-time volunteer work in worthy civic and charitable causes as a member of many local organizations, including the Quincy Partnership, Quincy Commission on the Family and the Marie A. Curry Foundation which provides free mammograms for individuals not covered by health insurance.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Saturday, Dec. 30.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Keating: 'Premature To Speculate' Police Station Death Report Not Finalized

A statement issued Tuesday by the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office said it was "premature to speculate" on the death of Charles T. Sylva, who died Sunday morning while in the custody of the Quincy Police Department.

Sylva, a 38 year-old Quincy resident, was arrested Sunday on breaking and entering charges.

Sylva was pronounced dead at Quincy Medical Center after an ambulance was called to the Sea St.

WILLIAM KEATING

police station shortly before 5 a.m. Sunday.

The Dec. 19 statement by District Attorney William Keating regarding the death of Sylva reads as follows:

"While there are no indications of foul play at this time, medical reports have not been finalized. It would be premature to speculate publicly on Mr. Sylva's death until the circumstances have been fully explored and the medical examiner's office has issued its conclusions."

Hotel/Motel Tax Petition Stuck In State Committee

The Home Rule Petition which would create the much anticipated Hotel/Motel tax for the city is currently in the Legislature's Joint Committee on Taxation and there are fears it may die there unless action is taken quickly.

Monday night councilors reviewed letters from Senator Michael Morrissey and Representative Ronald Mariano on the status of the petition, which is considered pro-forma and was expected to pass easily.

According to the updates, the petition, which was passed by the City Council in May, made it through the Senate, where it was admitted June 1, and from there went to the House, where it was admitted Dec. 11.

It was then sent to the Joint Committee on Taxation, where it currently remains, and if no action is taken before the Legislature begins its next session in January, the process will have to begin again.

Representative John Rogers of Norwood is chairman of the Joint Committee on Taxation.

Although passage is behind schedule, Councillor Patrick McDermott -- who updated fellow councilors on the situation Monday night and brought the matter to the council's attention the meeting previous -- said there was still time for the petition to pass during an informal session of the Legislature.

"As long as there's no technicality, there should be no problem with this," said McDermott, who has experience working at the State House and said local and/or non-controversial matters are normally handled in such a fashion.

Councillor Daniel Raymond, author of the Home Rule Petition, said he remained concerned about the matter, emphasizing the "critical importance" of passage before the next fiscal year, when initial funds from the occupancy tax are expected to begin.

Under the current petition, a one percent local room occupancy tax would be scheduled to go into effect in July of 2001 and increase one percent annually until it reaches its maximum four percent in 2004.

Funds generated by the tax would be used for the purchase of Open Space and the promotion of tourism in the city, with funds split 85 percent to 15 percent, respectively.

Quincy Drop-Offs For Teddy Bear Drive

To more than 5,000 Boston children, the holidays will come overstuffing and wrapped in fur.

They will be the recipients of new teddy bears collected and distributed by the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation.

In its fourth year, the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation organizes thousands of people from across the state to bring new teddy bears to 24 different locations in and around Boston between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

TBDF volunteers distribute the new bears to children at more than 29 shelters and social service organizations throughout Greater Boston.

In Quincy, people can drop off the bears at the Quincy Fire Department, Quincy Ave., and DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) in Quincy is among the 29 recipients of the bears.

The TBDF collected 500 new teddy bears in its first year and this year it's on track to collect 10 times that number.

Since its inception in 1996, the number of people affiliated with the TBDF has grown from a small family of North Shore-based volunteers to hundreds of people throughout Massachusetts. Corporations, community organizations and schools across the state are involved by hosting holiday parties and organizing small drives within their workplace.

Phelan and her daughter, Caitlin, now 12, founded the TBDF after they saw a news report five years ago about children spending Christmas Day in homeless shelters. The report motivated them to find a way to bring comfort and security to children in need, and the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation was born.

The TBDF is a non-profit organization that is funded solely by individual and corporate financial contributions. It was recently included among 50 most worthy charities listed in the Catalogue for Philanthropy.

For more information about the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation call (978) 356-2602. Financial contributions can be made payable to: Teddy Bear Drive Foundation, 6 Howard St., Ipswich 01938.

A Happy, Healthy Holiday Season For Pets

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA) has released pet care reminders to ensure a safe, happy holiday season for pets:

- Holiday decorations such as tinsel, lights and ornaments can be tempting, but dangerous playthings for pets. Keep pets away from holiday trimmings and poisonous holiday plants such as mistletoe and holly. Also, keep animals that like to chew away from light cords. And remember to secure the Christmas tree to prevent it from falling on playful pets.

- Give pets nutritious snacks. Rich holiday foods — especially chocolate — can be hazardous for pets. Give pets treats that are specially made for their sensitive stomachs.

- Select safe pet toys. Buy toys that do not have sharp edges or removable parts and can't be shredded or ingested.

- Give pets the best gift of all — your time. Set aside time everyday to play and socialize with your pet. No other gift will mean so much to your pet.

- Pets make wonderful companions, but should not be given as gifts. Give a pet adoption gift certificate to the prospective pet owner on your list. This will allow the person to choose the right type of pet at the time when he or she is ready to make the commitment.
- Think of less fortunate animals this holiday. By spaying and neutering pets, volunteering at a humane society, donating blankets and pet toys to a shelter, or reporting animal cruelty, people will be helping the less fortunate animals this holiday season.

- Make travel plans with pets ahead of time. Find accommodations that allow pets by contacting your destination city's division of tourism. If traveling by car, provide frequent rest and water stops for your pet.

- Always have current identification on your pet with an alternate phone number when you are away. If your pet is staying home, contact a reputable pet sitter or find a kennel that meets all necessary requirements for a quality establishment, such as a sanitary and safe environment and a qualified, caring staff.

- If there is no alternative to air travel, take precautions for your pet's safety. If possible, take your small pet with you on the plane in a carrier that fits under your seat. If your pet must travel in the cargo hold, select a carrier with proper ventilation on at least three sides and room to allow the animal to stand and turn around. Put a blanket in the carrier for warmth. Avoid using a muzzle during the flight. Have your pet examined by its veterinarian before the flight and get a direct flight during temperatures that are neither too cold or hot.

Hearing aid "Tips from Tobias"

"What about house calls?"

Stephen P. Tobias
Board Certified Hearing
Instrument Specialist

A "house call" reminds us of the time when the family doctor came to your home because you were too sick to go to them. Ah! the good ol' days. In today's world it is still a great service but one must be cautioned against allowing just anyone into their home. There is nothing easier than shopping from the comfort of your own living room, but be careful that the individual is qualified and that the company that they work for is reputable. Call around and ask local hearing aid specialists if they do home visits, if they are "Board Certified" and what are their service policies. They will be happy to show you their Board Certification Credentials! Anyone that fits and sells hearing aids should be a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist!

It is the highest degree available in the profession of fitting hearing aids! If at all possible stay away from home visits because the Specialist will have more "tools" to work with in his office. Good luck in your quest for better hearing and a more fulfilling life! Now you go and spread the news! Steve

Council Seeks To Create Affordable Housing

(Cont'd From Page 1)

Santos and Planner Richard Gentile on the issue, said no dates had been set as yet for the public hearings. However, Hanley emphasized the key role public input would play on the final draft, which he eventually hoped to present to the Ordinance

Committee and then the council for passage.

"Let's get it (the draft) out there so people can discuss it," Hanley said. "We need public input from religious institutions, public service providers, community leaders. We also welcome developer input. It's best, in the long run, if people take ownership and participate in the process."

Along with Hanley, Councillors Patrick McDermott and Joseph Newton comprise the council's Housing Commit-

Board Shoots Down Liquor License Transfer Request

Greg Hanley supported the transfer, while Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond bitterly opposed it.

Raymond said the transfer was not in the "public good," and said referring to the liquor stores in the area, "enough is enough."

Atty. Louis Cassis, representing the Raziela, Inc. called the area an "ideal location with plenty of safe parking," Mark Cohen, the real estate broker concurred with Cassis, but to no avail.

Opponents included Fr. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Parish; Atty. George Burke, John Comer, representing St. Joseph's Council and Jeffrey Bids, representing Old Colony Liquors.

At one point, Ed Jasmine, the manager of Old Colony Liquors, and Cassis argued about the price slashing proposed at Plainville Liquors, whereby Cassis attempted to show Jasmine a price list only to have Jasmine's attorney Bids come and virtually pull him away from the podium.

Others opposing were area residents who all urged the board to reject the transfer.

In other business, the board granted a Keno License to the Adams Heights Men's Club, 63 Bower Rd.

The next meeting of the board will be on Jan. 9, 2001.

Quincy Police Attend Domestic Violence Seminar

Quincy Police Lt. Thomas Malvesti and detectives Nancy Coletta, John Steele, Richard Gilmore, and Ted Stevenson were among the more than 60 law enforcement officials who attended the recent Domestic Violence and "Hot Topics" training seminars sponsored by District Attorney William R. Keating at Lantana's in Randolph.

"We asked local police officers which areas they believed they could benefit from specialized training," Dist. Atty. Keating said. "This event spanned five of the areas of interest to the most officers, from the latest techniques in DNA evidence collection to investigating Internet crimes against children and dealing with children who witness domestic violence."

The all-day training conference started with a presentation from Aimee Thompson from the Boston Medical Center's Child Witness to Violence Project. Thompson's presentation included research on how children of different ages perceive police intervention in their family crisis. It also offered strategies for officers to mitigate the trauma of a police visit to a child's home, or even arrest of a parent, that were tailored to the needs of children in different ages.

Other presentations at the Nov. 16 event included Randolph Police Lt. Paul Porter and Cathy Cappelli, formerly a prosecutor in Keating's Office and now with the Mass D.A.'s Assoc., giving a "Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Investigative Update," Assistant Attorney General John Grossman, chief of his office's Computer Crimes Division, and State Police Sgt. Dermott Quinn discussed techniques for investigating the growing number of Internet crimes against children.

Two chemists from the Massachusetts State Police Crime Lab, Dominique Savinelli and Debbie McKillop, gave presentations on the latest generation of substances used for drug-induced date rape and the latest techniques in DNA Evidence Collection.

Dist. Atty. Keating sponsored the event and arranged the speakers. "The more information and tools we give police for crime prevention and effective investigation, the more effective our prosecutors can be in the courtroom," Keating said.

PASTOR WILLIAM DONAHUE serves as pastor to both the Memorial Congregational Church and The Lord's Planting Church -- which together comprise Evangelical Church of Atlantic -- and has done so for the past two years. "It's a unique situation," said Rev. Donahue, "but I've grown to love both of them and I think it's made me a better pastor."

Evangelical Church Of Atlantic Two Voices, One Message

By CRAIG SALTERS

At a time when religious differences make front-page headlines, two churches in North Quincy are witnessing the benefits of focusing on the similarities.

The Evangelical Church of Atlantic -- comprised of the roughly 200-member Lord's Planting Foursquare Gospel Church and the roughly 40-member Memorial Congregational Church -- is, in the words of Evangelical member Teri Hooper, "two congregations who make up one body of believers."

Both located at the Memorial Congregational Church, which was established in the 1880's at the corner of Newbury Ave. and Sagamore St., the two separate churches with distinct styles of worship formed a loose partnership six years ago when the traditional, congregational church was in need of funds and the contemporary, charismatic church was in need of a home.

How has it worked out?

Well, what started as a loose alliance became a spiritual partnership two years ago when Memorial Congregational Church asked Lord's Planting Pastor William Donahue to serve as its pastor as well, a position Pastor Donahue accepted.

A history buff, Pastor Donahue explained that the umbrella name "Atlantic Evangelical Church" was chosen because it was the original name of Memorial Congregational Church and identifies both churches correctly.

"It's a very unique situation," admitted Pastor Donahue, who is founder of the Lord's Planting Church. "But I've grown to love both of them and I think it's made me become a better pastor."

Memorial Congregational Church holds its worship services Sundays at 9:30 a.m. complete with traditional prayers, traditional hymns, and a touch of good old New England reserve.

The Lord's Planting Church holds its worship services Sundays at 11 a.m. complete with praise and worship music, a good deal of standing and clapping, and a variety of musical instruments including a seven-piece drum set.

"There's many people who like the service more orderly -- when to stand, when to sit -- and that's just fine," Pastor Donahue said. "We understand that it is a different style and not everyone wants to attend a charismatic service."

But he adds that some prefer to worship more spontaneously, such as bringing in a particular scripture reading to read aloud, which is more allowable in the contemporary Lord's Planting. "I'm committed to this," Pastor Donahue says of the churches' relationship. "To reach out, just one isn't going to do it. We need both ... and it's working."

There have been occasions, Pastor Donahue said, when worshippers expecting the early service have attended the later and vice versa, leading to more than a few confused faces. "But we have ushers for both services who might advise, 'perhaps this isn't your cup of tea,'" said Pastor Donahue.

As for the style of sermon delivered, Pastor Donahue acknowledged that the differences were striking. "In the earlier service I'm not as loud, more to the point, understated," said the pastor.

And in the second? "I let it fly," he said.

But if the surface differences are what makes it interesting, Pastor Donahue said, the deeper similarities are what makes it work. Said the pastor:

"We understand that there are differences but there's really just one message, one mission statement: to be involved with the community and reach out with the gospel. We have the same faith that holds us together and, when we look deeply enough, the same strengths."

Pastor Donahue pointed out that both churches have a strong evangelical spirit and a history of community activism that continues today with programs for children, young adults, couples, and seniors. "We might not be the largest in the city but we're definitely known as one of the most active in terms of outreach programs," Pastor Donahue said.

Pastor Donahue is a lifelong resident of Quincy who grew up in the Houghs Neck neighborhood. He graduated from Quincy Vocational Technical School in 1974 and earned his ministerial degree from Valley Forge Christian College of Pennsylvania in 1981. He and Daisy, his wife of 25 years, have a daughter Julie, who recently graduated from Eastern Nazarene College, and a son Joseph, a North Quincy High School graduate who attends the University of New Haven.

Pastor Donahue served as youth pastor at the Glad Tidings Church for more than a decade.

UL And NFPA Tips For Holiday Season Safety

Whether you're heading over the river and through the woods to grandma's this year, or hosting friends and family at your house, Underwriters Laboratories, Inc.,

(UL) and the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) remind you that holiday festivities can pose certain safety risks.

For the fourth consecutive year, the NFPA is helping UL in working for a safer world by co-sponsoring UL's Operation Decoration holiday safety campaign. The program is aimed at helping the public prevent home fires, as well as electric shock and other injuries, which are far too common during the holiday season and winter months.

Recent NFPA statistics illustrate that more than one-third of all home fire deaths in the United States occur during the winter months. UL and the NFPA are urging consumers to protect their homes, themselves, and their loved ones from the potentially devastating effects of a home fire by heeding the following tips on heating.

According to the NFPA, a home fire occurs every 82 seconds in this country. In 1999 alone, approximately 383,000 fires occurred in residences, killing 2,895 people and injuring 16,425. While home heating is usually a necessity during the colder months, home fires should not be a consequence! The safety professionals at UL and the NFPA offer the following tips and precautions when heating your home:

- Select heating equipment that bears the UL Mark. The UL Mark on a product means that UL engineers have tested representative samples of the product for foreseeable safety hazards.
- Install and maintain heating equipment correctly and be sure it complies with local fire and building codes. Have local building or certified maintenance and repair technicians check and clean your heating system once a year.

- Keep all portable heaters and space heaters at least 36 inches (one yard) from combustible materials, including furniture, bedding, clothing, and pets.

- Turn off space heaters when you are not in the room or when you go to sleep. Supervise children at all times when space heaters are in use.

- If you have an electric space heater, check for frayed or split wires or overheating. Have all problems repaired by a professional technician before operating.

- If you have a liquid-fueled space heater, use only the fuel recommended by the manufacturer. Never use gasoline or any other substitute fuel. The wrong fuel could burn hotter than the equipment's design limits and cause a serious fire.

- When refueling, always turn off the heater and let it cool down completely before adding fuel. Wipe up any spills promptly. If you are considering buying a kerosene heater, be sure to check with your local fire department first to find out if it is legal in your community.

- Store the kerosene away from heat or open flame in a container approved by the local fire department, and be sure it is clearly marked with the correct name of the fuel (i.e.: kerosene).

- Have your chimney inspected by a professional heating technician prior to the start of every heating season and have it cleaned if necessary. Creosote, a chemical substance that forms when wood burns, builds up in chimneys and can cause a chimney fire if not removed through cleaning.

- Always protect your home and family by using a sturdy fireplace screen when using your fireplace.

- Remember to burn only wood — never burn paper or pine boughs, which can float out the chimney and ignite your roof or a neighboring home. Do not use flammable liquids in a fireplace.

- If you are purchasing a factory-built fireplace, select one that is UL Listed and have it properly installed according to local codes.

- Do not start fires in your fireplace if the area around the fireplace and mantle are decorated with stockings or other combustible decorations.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

Fifth grade students in Quincy public and parochial schools were invited again this year to submit articles for this special holiday section.

The theme is: "If I Could Have One Wish Come True This Holiday Season It Would Be . . ."

The Sun is happy to share their thoughts with you. Publishing these articles each year has become a tradition all of us at The Sun look forward to and we hope that you do, too.

We want to thank Janet DiTullio, director of Curriculum, for again coordinating the public school's participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Sister Catherine Lee, principal at St. Ann's School; Sister Anne Marie Ghiloni, principal Sacred Heart School and Miss Lisa Mirasola, principal St. Joseph's School and the teachers at those schools for their participation and cooperation.

To all who took part we extend warmest season's greetings and wishes for a happy, healthy New Year and -- New Millennium.

Thank you all, most sincerely.

It would be to go to the Dominican Republic and have Christmas there. I would want to go there because my relatives live there and are Dominican. I want to see my family because I have not seen them in a while snow because then schools would be closed. I could go skiing and tubing and I could build snow forts. I could make a huge snowball and a snowman.

Matt Johnson
Squantum

It would be a puppy dog. I've wanted a pretty Labrador Retriever for so long because they are well behaved, loving, and cute.

Erik Johnson
Squantum

It would be to visit my relatives in Vietnam because I have never been to Vietnam with my whole family.

James Dao
Squantum

It would be to have a canoe. I would want a kayak, but those look hard to jump out of. I live by the Boston Harbor and I could canoe to Boston light or Peterson's Rocks or even to my friend's house.

Miranda Bloom
Squantum

It would be to have my grandmother appear because she always did incredibly fun things with me. We used to go for walks and color. She was great at gardening.

Danielle Lisbon
Squantum

It would be to have a new computer. I could have the Internet all set up. I would have a scanner and a printer. I would have a phone line. I would have a CD player in it. I would send a photograph to my family members in California.

It would be that people treat animals better. They should not be abused or hurt for any reason. Animals have feelings just like us.

Caroline Thorpe
Squantum

It would be to make the Earth be clean. Nobody would ever litter the earth because the earth should be clean because the Earth has trash everywhere.

Alyssa Young
Squantum

It would be to let all non-wealthy people have Christmas presents and happiness. I would wish this because I look at everything I have and I think about what they don't have.

Jamie Manning
Squantum

It would be for it to rain money, but people who are rich can't get it because the people who need it should get it. The bills would be twenties, fifties, hundreds, and thousands. Homeless people wouldn't be homeless.

Elden Bollinger

Quincy Rocks Rockland, 6-2

By CHRIS POISSON

If the Quincy High School hockey team can match Monday's offensive performance throughout the season, it will not have to worry about its youth and inexperience being roadblocks to the tournament.

Coming off a tough 3-2 loss to Weymouth in the season opener last Wednesday, Quincy bounced back to bury Rockland, 6-2, Monday afternoon at Quincy Youth Arena behind junior Dave Germain's four goals.

"Obviously, it was a win we needed," said head coach Bob Sylvia. "It was the first win of the season. Coming off a tough loss I felt we had to rebound because the kids needed a lift. Rockland is team we had to beat and we did."

"David has always had the potential to score," he added. "He's a heads-up player and a smart kid. David has prepared himself, both mentally and physically, for the season. I don't think this is the last time you'll hear from him. He'll have some more multiple-goal games."

Quincy (1-1) will host Blue Hills Regional Saturday at 7:50 p.m. and then will have nine days off for school vacation week before hosting Bridgewater-Raynham

Dave Germain (4 Goals) Powers Presidents To First Win

Jan. 3, to open league play. Blue Hills is fresh off an impressive 6-3 win over the Trojans.

"What I saw Blue Hills can score goals and hold their own against physical teams, and that could be trouble for us," Sylvia said. "We're a small team. We're going to try to take another step."

Germain staked the Presidents to a 1-0 lead after the first period and hooked up with his brother, Matt, a freshman, on the first two goals of the second for the hat trick and a 3-0 advantage.

At 1:05, Matt fired a shot from the point and Dave moved in front to bang home the rebound. About four minutes later the two connected again on the power play. Matt fed Dave in the slot and he sent a blistering one-timer past the Rockland goalie.

"They asked to play together," Sylvia said. "Matt played very well and as of right now I plan on keeping them together."

Junior Andrew Ross extended the lead to 4-0 when he split a pair of Bulldog defenseman, cut across the ice from right to left and beat the netminder glove-side.

Rockland answered immediately when right wing Greg Ginnetti poked in his own rebound just 11 seconds later. The goal gave the Bulldogs some life as they orchestrated their first attack against the Presidents.

But goalie Shaun Flaherty came up with some dazzling saves to keep Rockland off the board—none bigger than when he stoned a breakaway with seven minutes left in the frame.

"Shaun played a great game," Sylvia said. "Rockland didn't have a lot of golden opportunities, but on the ones that they did he came up big."

Quincy suffered a minor breakdown when Randolph scored a short-handed goal with less than two minutes left, but Germain picked up his fourth of the night with only 50 seconds left to counteract it.

In the third, Ross muscled in his second goal with a defender draped on him to account for the final score. Junior right wing Brian McKeon tallied four assists in the game.

MARYANN THURLOW of Quincy attempted a three-point shot for $7,777 in cash in the Foxwoods Resort's "Take-A-Shot" contest at a recent Boston Celtics game against the Indiana Pacers. She is shown here with former Boston Celtic Ernie DiGregorio, who served as the honorary coach and Foxwoods celebrity host. For participating, Thurlow was presented with a complimentary stay-over at the Foxwoods Resort. (Steve Lipofsky BasketballPhoto.com Photo)

Supervised Recreation Activities During Vacation

The Quincy Recreation Department will open neighborhood school gymnasiums for over 200 additional hours of free supervised recreation activities during next week's school vacation period, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The vacation schedule will be an addition to the regular evening gym programs that will still be conducted according to their regular schedule.

A variety of games including relays, floor hockey, basketball and dodge ball will be played at each location. Activities vary depending on gym size and program enrollment and are conducted at the following locations: Atherton Hough, Atlantic, Beechwood Knoll, Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Marshall and Wollaston.

From Tuesday, Dec. 26 to Friday, Dec. 29 the schedule will be 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at all school locations. The department will operate the normal schedule of open gym at all regular Saturday gymnasiums Dec. 23 and Dec. 30.

Programs are for boys and girls age 8 through high school. The youth attend at different times according to their grade. The time schedule is as follows:

- Elementary age 8 through grade 5 from 9 to 10:15 a.m.
- Middle school grades 6-8 from 10:15 to 11:30 a.m.
- High school grades 9-12 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Variations may occur in some gymnasium locations to accommodate enrollment at individual programs.

The following gyms will be open evenings from 5-7 p.m. for middle school and 7-9 p.m. for high school participants:

- Tuesday, Dec. 26: Atherton Hough, Snug Harbor, Squantum, Atlantic.
- Wednesday, Dec. 27: Beechwood, Bernazzani, Montclair, Park and Sterling.
- Thursday, Dec. 28: Bernazzani, Merrymount, Montclair, Squantum.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Noble Named OCL Coach Of Year

Quincy High School head football coach Bob Noble was recently named Old Colony League Coach of the Year by the WATD radio station in Marshfield at its annual season-ending banquet.

"It's great," Noble said. "Being recognized by fellow coaches is flattering. But my individual honor is a reflection of the players and coaches. It's more of an indication that the football program is going in the right direction."

In addition, senior wideout Mark Robertson and junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano were also honored for their efforts and contributions in a 19-18 win at Plymouth South Oct. 27. The Presidents rallied from an 18-point deficit to post their first win of the year, which sparked them in the second half of the season.

Quincy finished with a 3-7 overall record, but three of the wins came in the final five games of the season.

North Quincy Girls' Track Splits

The North Quincy High School girls' track team split two meets last week at the Reggie Lewis Center.

Last Friday, the short-handed Red Raiders edged Taunton, 51-49, while dropping an 82-18 decision to Silver Lake. Last Monday they routed Plymouth South, 65-35, but fell to Falmouth, 68-32.

In last Friday's meet, Linda Nguyen placed second (6:01) in the mile. Lauren Ready, Courtney Breslin and Lily Luo finished 1-2-3 in the 1,000 meters.

Jessica Jacques finished third in the 600 meters and Colleen Lahar took second in the 300 meters. Sarah Gregory was third in the dash and Laura Wells finished second in the hurdles.

Natalie Caron was second in the two-mile, Maria McGinness third in the high jump, Lahar second in the long jump (PB, 14-11) and Sherie Demonte second in the shot-put. A disqualification in the 4x200 relay almost cost the Red Raiders a win due to a uniform violation.

In last Monday's meet, Nguyen placed second overall in the mile. Ready ran her personal best (3:46) in the 1,000 meters and Jacques also clocked a personal best (1:55.6), taking third in the 600 meters.

Lahar was third in the 300 meters, while Wells won the hurdles and April Rodgers won the 55-meter dash.

Krystle Neves and McGinness took 1-2 in the high jump. Lahar finished second in the long jump and Demonte and Jackie Murphy took 1-3 in the shot-put.

At a freshman meet last Wednesday at Brown University, McGinness won the high jump (4'8") with Elyse Dolbec (4'6") second. May Ho won the shot-put. Sarah Gregory, Alicia Cronin and Madeline Tarabelli placed in the dash. The 4x200 relay of Cronin, Gregory, Tarabelli and Sara Page also won.

Mite B's, Dorchester Skate To 2-2 Tie

The Quincy Mite B travel hockey team split the first two games against Dorchester this season and it recently had to settle for 2-2 tie the third time around.

In the first period, Quincy jumped out to a 1-0 lead when Mike Gates scored with an assist from James Baressi. Less than a minute later, though, Dorchester evened the score.

In the second, Mat Troy scored to give Quincy a 2-1 lead. Dorchester scored the equalizer with only 23 seconds left in the frame, and neither team could find light the lamp in the third.

In previous action,

Needham scored two goals in the first period as it shut out Quincy, 2-0. In November the two teams played to an exciting 1-1 stalemate.

Quincy traveled to Somerville for a 7 a.m. game and was snakebitten from the beginning, falling 8-1. Somerville scored eight straight goals before Brendan Glynn found the cage late in the third to avoid the shootout.

Quincy had numerous chances to score but was unable to beat the Somerville goalie.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

MERRY CHRISTMAS! Pleasant unforgettable, treasured memories, the mellowed sentiment Christmas recreates every year one of life's greatest joys. Christmas is the one time of the year that we take time to remember... and all of us have memories.

Henry Van Dyke, the late American clergyman, writer and poet whose famous "Story of the Other Wise Man" has brought joy and inspiration to thousands of people over the years. Among his writings is a piece named, "The Spirit of Christmas." We hope you all will enjoy this lovely writing...

"We are thinking of you today because it is Christmas... and tomorrow because it will be the day after, and so on through the year. We may not be able to tell you about it every day, but that makes no difference, the thought and wish will be here just the same."

And so, in this time of year when good-fellowship becomes contagious... when friendly, kind thoughts and actions are directed toward our fellow man... when voices are heard in song and prayer... We at the Deware Family Funeral Homes wish you a very Merry Christmas. May the quality of the "Merry Christmas" of Christmas Day be extended to you and yours the rest of the year...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't be sheepish about asking more questions before making a major decision at your workplace. Your personal relationships continue to improve.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You might be rushed into renewing an old, cold relationship. But do you really want a reheated romance when there's a chance to warm up with someone new?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Someone tells you something that could lead you to rethink your plans for the holidays. But get the full story before you make a decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A financial matter that had you in a dither is finally being sorted out as more facts become available. A perplexing personal matter also clears up.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You face a slew of new tasks at home and at work. So, as much as you love being a social Lion, be careful not to overdo it at those pre-holiday parties.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Unexpected news could cause some minor adjustments in your holiday planning. Defer a decision about a financial matter until you have more facts.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A project might not be showing the results you'd hoped it would by now. But stay with it — things will soon begin to turn around.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That budding personal relationship continues to develop. Things also improve in your career, although some problems still need close attention.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Jupiter, your ruling planet, takes a strong romantic turn at this time, happily affecting relationships for both single and spliced Archers.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Allowing a misunderstanding to go unchallenged could jeopardize plans you've made for the upcoming holidays. Clear the air now.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) While you should be open to suggestions on how to plan for the holidays, you should also be firm in saying "no" to anything which you disagree.

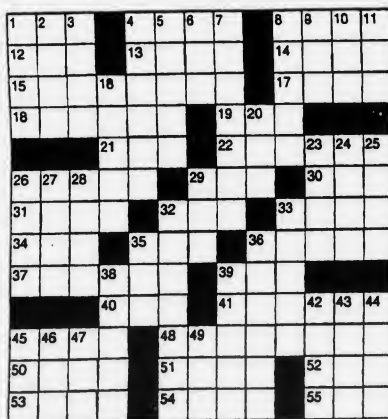

PISCES (February 19 to March 20). Get out from under all those holiday preparations and immerse yourself in a world of music. You'll soon feel refreshed, revived — maybe even reborn.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You believe in the truth, and you have little patience with those who try to hide it. You would make an excellent judge.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

It would be to find five million dollars on the street. The first thing I would do with the money is give three million dollars to the homeless. Then, I would buy my mom the car she has wanted for a long time—a newer suburban utility vehicle (SUV) and the rest of the money I would keep for my college education.

Ring In New Year, New Millennium Sunday Over 30,000 Expected At First Night

First Night Quincy will ring in the new millennium Sunday with a lineup of entertainment and activities that promise to be the best in the event's nine-year history, say organizers.

An estimated 30,000 adults and youngsters took in last year's celebration and as big a turnout — if not bigger — is expected for the family-oriented, non-alcohol event.

Highlights of this year's show include a fireworks display, laser light shows, the annual Festival of Lights Parade, and more than forty different entertainment acts at venues throughout Quincy Square.

First Night Quincy buttons are now on sale and can be purchased for $7 before Dec. 31. Buttons will cost $10 if purchased on the day of the event. A First Night button allows access to all 21 First Night venues from 2 p.m. to midnight.

The 9th annual First Night Quincy will feature a matinee entertainment schedule which begins at 2 p.m. This matinee schedule will feature activities and entertainment geared especially for younger children from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., allowing families flexibility in planning their New Year's Eve schedule.

"First Night Quincy offers a fun, safe, alcohol-free environment in a convenient location," said Rhonda Merrill, director of Events and Tourism and coordinator of First Night Quincy. "This is an extensive range of events and activities, guaranteeing a fun New Year's Eve experience for the whole family. It is the perfect way to ring in the new year."

Harold May Have Durkin As Council President Challenger

Sheets To Give Sixth Mid-Term Address Jan. 2

Mayor James Sheets will give his sixth and historic mid-term address Tuesday, Jan. 2 at 10 a.m. ceremonies in the City Council chambers at City Hall.

No other mayor has served as long as Sheets.

Paul Harold is expected to be elected to his second one-year term as council president. But he appears to have a new challenger.

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin told The Sun Tuesday that "two or three councillors want to place my name in nomination."

"I expect to be nominated," he said. "But it appears Paul Harold probably has the necessary five votes. But, you never can tell."

A few weeks ago Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley was a candidate for the presidency but withdrew and threw his support to Harold saying "I don't want to divide the council."

Hanley said he would be interested in the post in the future.

Brewers Corner Action Plan Meeting Jan. 10

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico has scheduled a meeting Wednesday, Jan. 10 at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., to discuss the ongoing Brewers Corner redevelopment plan.

Quincy 2000, the Brewers Corner Action Committee, and business owners will join concerned residents at the meeting.

D'Amico said that recent statistics have shown a reduction of crime in the neighborhood, attributing the decrease to support for Community Policing.

For more information on the meeting, or to receive a full copy of the Action Plan, contact Joanne in D'Amico's office at (617) 376-1341.

Harold To Be Sworn In Jan. 3 As Register Of Deeds

City Council President Paul Harold will be sworn in as Norfolk County Register of Deeds Wednesday, Jan. 3.

Secretary of State Thomas Galvin will administer the oath to him at an 11 a.m. ceremony in the main courtroom on the second floor at Norfolk County Superior Court, 65 High St., Dedham.

Harold was elected in November to succeed Barry Hannon of Braintree who is retiring after 30 years in the post which pays $65,000.

Following the swearing-in ceremony, a reception will follow at the Registry of Deeds office across the street from the Superior Court.

Another reception will be held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd., Wednesday night from 7 to 10 p.m. A brief program will be held at 8 p.m.

Also sworn in Wednesday will be Walter Timilty of Milton as Norfolk County Clerk of Courts and Norfolk County Commissioners John Gillis and William O'Donnell of Norwood, who were both re-elected last November.

Drop-Off Begins Dec. 26 For Quincy Evergreen Program

The Quincy Evergreen Program, now in its 11th year, will once again accept trees for mulching.

Quincy residents can drop off their old Christmas trees at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Center, 1 Merrymount Parkway. The drop-off schedule is weekdays, Dec. 26 to Jan. 12; and Saturdays, Dec. 30 to Jan. 13 from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In exchange, residents will receive a coupon entitling them to receive a 10-inch "Millennium Evergreen" Saturday, April 28 or Sunday, April 29.

Used gift wrapping paper may also be exchanged for an evergreen coupon.

The Quincy Evergreen

Program consists of Mayor James Sheets, Program Chairman Leo Kelly, and Jay Cashman, owner of Jay Cashman, Inc., who has served as the program's sponsor since its inception.

Kelly thanked Sheets and Cashman for their support and also noted the efforts of the DPW and Parks and Recreation Department as well as the work of Margaret Milne.

The trees, Kelly said, are broken down into wood chips and then swapped with a Maine company for mulch, which is then used around the city, thus saving the city money and landfill space.

"But more than that, it's just a fun program," Kelly said. "These trees are all over Quincy as wedding gifts, children's birthday gifts, memorials, and some of the older ones are 12 to 15 feet high. It's become a family tradition."

Kelly estimated that over 16,000 trees had been recycled because of the program. He also said the program expects to add 2,000 new trees to the city when the coupons are redeemed in April.

A stone recognizing the efforts of the Evergreen Program was recently rededicated at the corner of Granite St. and Parkingway.

The program is open to Quincy residents only. For more information, call 376-1251.

Free Legal Clinic At Quincy Court Jan. 3

The Norfolk County Bar Association will hold a free legal clinic Jan. 3 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy District Court.

A panel of attorneys experienced in all areas of the law will be available for a one-on-one consultation on legal questions.

No appointment is necessary.

The Norfolk County Bar Association will also hold free clinics at the Quincy court Feb. 7, April 4, May 2, July 11 and Aug. 1.

THE YEAR 2000 -- IN REVIEW

Taxes, Shipyard, New QHS Site Year's Top Stories

By TOM HENSHAW

The big stories of the year 2000 in Quincy asked three questions:

How much should business pay in taxes?

Where should we put a new Quincy High School?

What is the future of the Fore River Shipyard?

The City Council, acting in defiance of Mayor James Sheets recommendations, set the commercial tax rate at 175 percent of the residential, the maximum permitted by the state. Sheets had opted for the traditional 169 percent.

That was in December, 1999, but throughout the new year, businessmen and women groused about the high classification, even threatening to question the legality of the vote in court.

The controversy had barely died down when Mayor Sheets came up with, and the Council adopted, an amended $183 million municipal budget for Fiscal 2001, a 6 percent increase over the previous year.

The mayor again recommended a 169 percent business classification and this time the Council went along with his recommendation.

The year started with the School Building Needs Task Force voting unanimously not to consider any site other than one on Quincy Avenue in South Quincy for the new $564 million Quincy High School.

But the parcel was also the site of a dump where the Fore River Shipyard got rid of its waste, some of it toxic, in the 1940s and '50s, which raised a red flag of warning for most residents.

The protests were so loud that they reached the office of Mayor Sheets, who changed his mind and ruled the dump site out as the location of the new high school, although he still thought it would be safe if cleaned and capped.

Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), which had hopes of reopening the Yard for shipbuilding, all but gave up the ghost after laying off its entire workforce while awaiting a $15 million "bridge loan" from an unidentified New York financier.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Maritime Administration paid off MHI's $55 million loan and took over the Yard and the City Council called on City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to place a lien on the $2.1 million home Emmanouil, the owner of MHI.

The company filed for bankruptcy but officials insisted they still intended to build ship in Quincy.

A lot of other things happened in Quincy in the Year 2000 and here are some of them:

JANUARY

The Quincy Business Council, representing 500 business firms in the city, held a rally at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce to protest the 175 percent (up from 169 percent) maximum tax classification imposed by the City Council on commercial property and promised to look into the legality of the Council's surprise vote.

The City Council, said Phyllis Godwin, owner of the Granite City Electric Supply Co., was sending "a clear message that the business community is the enemy. Quincy enters the new century strong and healthy. But its strength is in grave danger."

Quincy's finest hour in 1999 was saving the City Hospital with its 1,000 jobs and the continuation of acute care facilities by affiliation with the Boston Medical Center, declared Mayor James Sheets in his sixth inaugural address as chief executive.

The three biggest challenges of the new millennium, he continued, will be the preservation of open space, the reclaiming of Wollaston Beach for public use and the guarantee of affordable housing.

"We, in this city, in this generation," he said, "are by destiny — rather than by choice — the watchmen at the gate of this new millennium. As keepers of the gate, we must demonstrate that we are worthy of the power and the responsibility with which we have been so fully entrusted."

Councillor Paul Harold was unanimously elected City Council president and Jo Ann Bragg was unanimously elected vice chairman of the School Commit-

Students Collect Food, Gifts For Crisis Center

Quincy Public School students provided food, gifts and volunteer labor to assist the Quincy Crisis Center in helping Quincy families celebrate the holidays.

Students from North Quincy High School, Central Middle School, Beechwood Knoll, Wollaston, Marshall and Bernazzani elementary schools collected over 2,400 pounds of food — over one ton — and hundreds of gifts including books, toys, teddy bears and clothing.

North Quincy High's Honor Society and Jefferson Forum and Central Middle School's Student Senate provided over 100 hours of volunteer labor to prepare bags of food for the holiday distribution.

More than 300 families received assistance including food, turkeys and gifts through Quincy Crisis Center's "Help for the Holidays" program. QCC Program Assistant Kathi Garrison praised the students:

"Their community spirit and kindness made it possible for hundreds of other children to have a special Christmas. I believe that their generosity made the holidays more meaningful for them as well.

"The Quincy Public Schools are among the many partners that help the Quincy Crisis Center advance a culture of compassion in our community. Quincy Crisis Center says "thank you" to the students, teachers, staff and administrators who helped organize food and toy drives and donated their time and talents."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Dec. 25, ca. 5 B.C., Christ is born. Although Christians celebrate Dec. 25 as the birthday of Christ, no one in the first two Christian centuries claimed any knowledge of the exact day or year in which he was born. However, early in the fourth century, Church fathers designated Dec. 25th, the birthday of the popular pagan god Mithras, as Jesus' official birth date.

• On Dec. 29, 1170, archbishop Thomas Becket is brutally murdered in Canterbury Cathedral by four knights of King Henry II of England, apparently under orders of the king. The Christian world was shocked by Becket's death, and in 1173, he was canonized as a Catholic saint.

• On Dec. 28, 1832, John C. Calhoun, citing political differences with President Andrew Jackson and a desire to fill a vacant senate seat in South Carolina, becomes the first vice president in U.S. history to resign from his office.

• On Dec. 31, 1890, New York's Ellis Island opens its doors, and millions of immigrants will pass through its halls to find a better life in the United States.

• On Dec. 31, 1911, Marie Sklodowska Curie receives the Nobel Prize in Chemistry for her isolation of the element of metallic radium and other earlier discoveries in the field of chemistry. She is the first person to be awarded a second Nobel Prize, eight years after she became the first woman ever to be honored with a Nobel Prize.

• On Dec. 30, 1922, in post-revolutionary Russia, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (U.S.S.R.) is established, comprising a confederation of Russia, Byelorussia, the Ukraine, and the Transcaucasian Federation.

• On Dec. 27, 1932, massive crowds flocked to the woes of the Great Depression and attend the opening of Radio City Music Hall in New York City. Tourists still flock to the world's largest movie theater to see the annual Christmas spectacular and the high-kicking Rockettes.

President George W. 'Quincy' Bush

Former President George Bush reportedly has jokingly nicknamed President-elect George W. Bush "Quincy." As in John Quincy Adams.

George W., of course, is the second son of a president to follow his father into the White House. John Quincy was the first, following his father, John Adams.

George W. and John Quincy also have something else in common: becoming president despite losing the popular vote.

In the 1824 election, Adams was one of four candidates. The others: Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay and William Crawford.

Jackson won the popular vote with 155,872 to Adams's 105,521, Clay's 46,587 and Crawford's 44,282.

Jackson also had the most Electoral College votes but with four candidates in the field couldn't get the required majority.

The election was sent to the House of Representatives where Adams got the nod.

But something for Bush to think about: four years later, Jackson came back to defeat Adams in his quest for a second term.

Barbara Bush, as you know, is the only second woman to be the wife of one president and the mother of another, joining Abigail Adams in that unique distinction.

But unlike Abigail, she will have the honor of actually seeing her son become president. Abigail didn't. She died in 1818, seven years before John Quincy Adams was sworn in.

The Adams-Bush link is strong enough that maybe someday the new President might visit Quincy.

And if his mother happened to be with him, it would present a great photo op: them visiting the Adams Birthplaces, the Adams Mansion and the First Parish Church where the two Quincy-born presidents and their wives are entombed.

And then, to top it off with the president and his mother viewing the statue of Abigail Adams and John

Registry Now Issuing Under 18 ID Cards

Registra Daniel Grabauskas announces that the Registry of Motor Vehicles will now issue Under 21 Identification cards to residents as young as 16 years of age.

Until recently the ID's were only issued between the ages of 18 and 20.

"In this day and age many of our young people have after-school jobs and increasing financial responsibility," said Grabauskas. "This change will give young people the identification so often required to cash paychecks, open bank accounts and to properly identify themselves for activities such as taking the SAT's or boarding an airplane."

In order to receive an under 21 identification card an individual must provide their social security number, a parental/guardian signature and birth certificate. The cost for an ID card is $15.

For more information and a look at the new ID cards, log on to massrmv.com.

Maybe Jim Sheets could arrange a visit through his long-time friend and former State House colleague, Holbrook's Andy Card, Bush's Chief of Staff.

Worth a try.

CITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT Paul Harold, who will be sworn in as Norfolk County Register of Deeds, has tapped Councilor Patrick McDermott to be his right arm.

McDermott will be Executive Assistant to the Register, a new post upgraded from the vacant administrative head clerk position. The job pays $48,700 and was approved by both the Norfolk County Commissioners and the County Advisory Board.

McDermott has been heading up the transition of the office from Braintree's Barry Hannon to Harold. Hannon is retiring after 30 years as Register.

McDermott graduated from Suffolk Law School last June and passed the Massachusetts Bar Exam.

McDermott's appointment will not open up his Ward 3 council seat. He says he will be running for re-election to a fourth term.

FORMER COUNCILLOR Leo Kelly was among those in Quincy who received this year's and their last

White House Christmas card from President Bill Clinton and First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Kelly also got one from Al Gore who won't be sending one from the White House next year.

Kelly also has in his collection, a card from President Jimmy Carter.

BILL WEED, who ran for the Ward 1 City Council seat in 1999, received a Christmas card from the next President and First Lady.

Weed says he was a member of the Bush For President exploratory committee and an early supporter. And got to meet Bush and his wife in New Hampshire.

Incidentally, Weed says he has no plans -- at this time -- to re-enter the local political arena.

MILESTONE: Good friend and former newspaperman Ed Spargo of Wollaston recently celebrated his 93rd birthday.

Ed, "Quincy's Ambassador of Good Health," has been on a one-man, 28-year crusade spreading the word on how to stay healthy.

He obviously practices what he preaches. And has found the Fountain of Youth.

Belated happy birthday, kid.

Wollaston Beach Residential Zoning Compromise Rejected

By PAUL HAROLD

A last minute compromise in the plan to rezone the Wollaston Beach area from business to residential was rejected this week.

Don Kent, owner of Kent Rug and Frederick Cutler representing the Howard Johnson Company, sought a compromise in the plan to provide for a 200-foot business zone strip, running from the roadside restaurant to the rug company.

Kent said that the residential rezoning wouldn't put him out of business but it would reduce the value of his land.

CAR SHOW AT ARMORY

The Rotary Club's Auto Show opened this week at the armory for three days to showcase the new model cars. Some 10,000 tickets were distributed at 50 cents a piece, with all proceeds going to Rotary's charities. Gorham Nickerson was event chairman. The door prize was a four door '57 Plymouth sedan.

Two of the first purchases of new cars were made by City Councillor and former Mayor Thomas Burgin who bought a Lincoln Premier Landau, while Jacob Grossman bought a Cadillac.

SCHOOL AT SACRED HEART PLANNED

George Yarrington, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association, announced at the school committee meeting that an elementary school would open at Sacred Heart in 1962.

Yarrington said he was instrumental in getting the land for the 16-room elementary school and had the approval of the pastor Rt. Rev. Irving Gifford to make the plans public for the $800,000 building. The church recently purchased two houses along with other property it owned at Glover Ave. and Hancock St.

Yarrington noted that because the new school was for elementary students, it would not relieve the overcrowding at the junior and senior high schools in the north end of the city.

QUINCY-ISMS

A testimonial was held for Frank Avery of Upland Road, following his retirement after 33 years with the central post office in Boston. His late brother, John, was chief of police. Avery was honored last month by the St. John's Ushers' Club for his 45 years as an usher at the church. . . Raymond's advertised tires for $8.95. . . Irving Boyes announced there were 36 donors at the recent Red Cross blood drive. Volunteer nurse aides were Mrs. Harold Slate, Mrs. Homer Hill and Mrs. Charles Goring. . . Capt. Walter Kemp was in charge of the 38 police assigned to take the annual city census. He expected that despite the cold weather it would be finished in 10 days. . . A bonfire of Christmas trees, collected from across the city, was scheduled for Broad Meadows. . . Mrs. Munroe MacLean was installed as president of the Bethany Women's Club. . . Neighbors' night was held at Covenant Congregational Church as part of the church's dedication ceremonies. . . At Quincy City Hospital twin sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cardarelli of Quarterdeck Rd. . . In a building they shared on the Parkway, a frozen pipe damaged the A and P and Gilchrist's store that was celebrating its 115th anniversary. . . The city council appropriated $8,250 to purchase the Craig estate that was adjacent to the John Adams Birthplace. It deferred action on a $37,000 appropriation for a new ladder truck for the Houghs Neck fire station, pending a $50,000 equipment purchase package that was being compiled by Chief Gorman. . . Five Hungarian freedom fighters were being resettled in Quincy. . . Francis Mullen, age 24, of Robertson St., was named a temporary patrolman by City Manager Edward Lewis. Mullen replaced Octavio Tocchio who was on leave. . . The city manager reappointed Douglas Randall as city solicitor and Frederick Mooney, Jr., as treasurer-collector. . . Carlyle Powell of Safford St. had his '57 license plate stolen before he had a chance to put it on his car. . . The managers of the hospital decided to give up their ambulance service as a way to reduce their operating deficit. Ambulances were still provided by the police and private companies. . . A new gold-leaf ornamental cross, the gift of Emma Tousant, was given to the Adams Shore Community Church.

First Parish Colonial Silver: To Sell Or Not To Sell?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As I recently read through the article concerning First Parish Church selling off its Colonial Silver collection, I was torn between feeling sympathetic and frustrated.

As chairman of the Trustees for my church, I understand the burdens of maintaining a safe and enjoyable place to worship. Sometimes the daunting task of securing funds for such large projects such as the ones that First Parish has upon them can be overwhelming.

The congregation wants to know if the costs of the projects that we undertake are "justified." As any church Trustee can attest, there is always much consideration when these high budget costs arise but they always seem to be essential. I applaud the congregation at First Parish for making the tough decision they made unanimously.

What I find disturbing is the fact that First Parish Church of Quincy is in the position that it is today. People say that we have a record economy that has spilled over from the end of the 20th Century and into the 21st Century yet we are relegated to selling off our precious heirlooms and sometimes church property to pay for the upkeep of the church.

The issue is that mainline churches are in a decline. It starts slowly over a 20 to 30-year time period but eventually reaches a point where the Pastor looks into the pews and there are only handfuls of people.

People are the mainstay of any church so when the church membership declines, so do the offerings and tithes. It is a spiral effect that can become uncontrollable until the church is faced with the ultimate decision to either make drastic changes or close its doors.

If you take a drive around Quincy recently, you will see the results of the tough decisions that were made. Who would have ever thought that you would see apartments and condominiums in former churches? Then again, who expected to be living in the elementary school that you attended as a child? I would guess that the majority of churches in Quincy and around the United States have been faced with the prospect of closing their doors at one point or another in the past 20 years. This dilemma runs across all denominational lines. This is not to say that there are no exceptions to the rule.

Although our church struggles every day to keep up the good work, it is not an easy task. The decision whether to install new flooring or replace the windows weighs heavily on all of us. I try and keep an optimistic outlook when I am involved in these decisions.

My first thought is: "If someone walks into my church, do they see a church in decline or do they see a church that wants to continue and thrive well into the future?" A church used to be the center of the community. I would like to think that our church is that center of the community in North Quincy. We offer a safe place of worship and we have opened our doors to the community at large so they can see what is the real meaning of being a church.

With the median age in Quincy rising every year, the gradual shift from a Blue Collar to a White Collar city, and the increase of people of Asian descent, the churches in Quincy have to be willing to adapt to changes in demographics. This is not to say that you should change your theology, I would never say that, but we need to recognize that cultures do change. Take the time to know your neighbors and you will see that you can learn from them all.

You will also see positive changes in how your church operates and the opportunities that will arise to make you stronger. You just have to open your eyes and see what you really can offer to those around you. Maybe, just maybe, you will not have to sell off that precious heirloom that has been in your church the past 100 years or so.

the School Committee, listed among her priorities as the addition of reading specialists throughout the system, elimination of athletic and extracurricular user fees and finding ways to meet the needs of all children.

Quincy Medical Center Chief Executive Officer Jeffrey Doran, who was instrumental in saving Quincy Hospital through merger with Boston Medical Center, resigned to allow new leadership to guide the institution that had been converted from a city-owned hospital to a private medical center.

The flu season lingered in Quincy, leaving hospitals, clinics and doctors' offices overflowing with workers off the jobs and home in bed. "We're seeing more patients, but we're also seeing sicker patients," said Dr. Octavio Diaz, chief of Emergency Services at Quincy Medical Center.

Lorraine Trombetta, 43, and Martin Niven, 33, were charged with planting a bomb inside the McDonald's on Southern Artery, leading to the evacuation of the restaurant and closure of surrounding streets to traffic.

Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan resigned as president of Quincy College to accept the presidency of Raritan Valley Community College in northern New Jersey starting in March. Ryan submitted his resignation after a dispute with the board of governors over control of the school's business affairs.

The City Council Public Safety Committee agreed to look into the major needs of the Fire Department, including new fire-fighting apparatus and other equipment and modernizing fire stations. Much of the equipment, said Chief Thomas Gorman, dates back to the "horse and buggy days."

Pre-School through grade 5 classes and North Quincy High School both were shut down in separate cold weather incidents.

Pre-School classes were canceled when freezing temperatures disabled 18 of the 23 buses used for the students and North Quincy students were given a holiday when the deep freeze caused a heating coil to break in a room on the roof, flooding and water damaging 20 classrooms.

Citing a possible inability to identify ownership should a problem arise, the License Board denied the transfer of a Quincy Point liquor license from the 11th Chapter Saloon to the Usual Place, Inc., at 536 Washington St.

Isadore Zack, 87, a 1930 graduate of Quincy High School, who served four years as special agent-in-charge or the Counter-Intelligence Group at the U. S. Army's First Service Command, was named "Man of the Century" by the Military Intelligence Association of New England

Deaths in January included:

Mary F. Timcoe, 78, a World War II Marine Corps veteran and the first woman to serve as commander of veterans organization (the Norfolk County American Legion) in Quincy.

Joseph E. Dennehy, a wounded veteran of the Korean War who devoted his life to serving as a representative of the Disabled American Veterans.

Anthony "Cash" Gacicia, 86, owner of the former Antonio's Restaurant in Quincy Square.

FEBRUARY

City officials were asking the age old question: What is to become of the Fore River Shipyard? when the U. S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) took over the 135-acre site after Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI) defaulted on a loan.

MHI, owners of the shipyard, had laid off its entire workforce while it pursued legal action against fired general contractor O. Ahlberg & Sons and awaited a proposed $146 million in private financing.

MHI said it had received a commitment on a $15 million "bridge loan" from an unnamed New York financial group and would seek a further extension on loan payments originally due Dec. 1, 1999, but now due Feb. 25.

The bridge loan coupled with the release of funds now in escrow would, said MHI, "enable the shipyard project to be substantially completed by the end of this year."

Meanwhile, City Council President Paul Harold proposed that the city form an Economic Development and Industrial Corporation (EDIC) to take local control of the shipyard in the event MHI failed.

"We have to anticipate that MARAD is going to step in," said Harold. "If there are development delays, we will miss the opportunity to take advantage of the current South Shore real estate boom."

Despite procedural questions, William Arienti, president of the firefighters' union, was allowed to speak to the City Council on fire safety at the Twin Rivers Technologies fatty-acid plant in Quincy Point.

Arienti reiterated complaints from fellow firefighters, that they lacked the equipment and training needed to fight the unique problems associated with Twin Rivers where flashpoints of burning tallow can reach 500 degrees.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman disagreed, saying he had the highest respect for the complaining firefighters but "every fire is dangerous. I worry about every firefighter, whether they go to Twin Rivers, a sludge plant or a house fire."

Some councilors objected to Councillor Daniel Raymond's asking Arienti and Gorman to speak, arguing that detailed discussions of issues were traditionally held in committee hearings before reaching the floor of the Council.

A "Quincy Complete Count Committee" was established to see that every last resident of the city was counted in U. S. Census 2000, beginning March 15. The city stood to lose $1,100 in federal funds for every person not counted.

Executive Director John Yawinski said recent spell of unusually cold weather meant an average of 100 to Ronald G. Adams, the teacher who inspired the Broad Meadows Middle School students in their nationally acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs, was named The Quincy Sun's 15th annual Citizen of the Year for 1999.

His students' campaign against child labor resulted in raising $147,000 to build a school in Pakistan in memory of 12-year-old Iqbal Masih, a former child labor slave, who was assassinated in Pakistan after he spoke at Broad Meadows School in 1994.

"This is obviously a very talented group of students," said Congressman William D. Delahunt after he was asked by a member of Ann Carroll's American Government class at North Quincy High School to comment on Right Wing politics in Austria.

Five eighth grade boys a Central Middle School were suspended for 10 days and ordered to undergo counseling for writing an 18-page document containing racist and sexually suggestive language aimed at classmates.

"Bak," a 17-month-old German shepherd from Czechoslovakia was in training with his handler Officer Scott Smith, to join the Quincy Police Department, funded by the Citizen Police Academy Alumni Association.

The USS Salem returned to its dock at the United States Shipbuilding Museum at the old Fore River Shipyard after completion of extensive repairs at the dry dock at Boston Ship Repair, Inc., in South Boston.

Mayor James Sheets and a group of businessmen left for a weeklong vacation in the Galapagos Islands off the coast of South America, where Charles Darwin's studies of unique wildlife led him to his Theory of Evolution.

On his return, the mayor led a Quincy delegation to the Hope VI Conference in Atlanta, Ga., in a quest for approval of as much as $35 million in federal funds that could change the face of public housing in Germantown.

City Councillor Daniel Raymondi proposed that the city impose a 1 per cent local occupancy tax on motels and hotels be-

Edward R. Querzoli, 68, of Bridgewater, former managing editor of The Patriot Ledger of Quincy.

O. Donald Gohl, 80, of Weymouth, an "ambassador of good will" whose banking career in Quincy and the South Shore spanned 54 years.

Robert E. Dobbyn, 79, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, retired senior vice president of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company.

MARCH

Arizona Senator John McCain and Vice President Al Gore rolled to easy victories in Super Tuesday's Presidential Primaries in Quincy as only 32 per cent of the city's 51,775 registered voters went to the polls.

McCain, attracting unenrolled and Democratic voters, thumped Texas Governor George W. Bush by 3,870 to 1,756 while Gore topped former New Jersey Senator Bill Bradley, 5,925 to 3,518.

Emotions ran high at a City Council meeting as councilors debated the explosive issue of the Fore River Shipyard.

The honesty of Sotirios Emmanouil, owner of Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), was called into question for his handling of the crisis which saw the U. S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) pay off a $55 million loan and take over the Yard.

City Councillor Frank McCauley went as far as to call Emmanouil "a modern day Pontius Pilate."

c/o Citizen of the Year

1372 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169

NOMINATION DEADLINE: Saturday, Dec. 30, 2000

Saturday Last Day For Sun 'Citizen Of The Year' Nominations

Saturday is the last day to submit nominations for The Quincy Sun's 16th annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Quincy school teacher Ronald G. Adams was honored for giving freely of his time to guide and inspire his Broad Meadows Middle School students in highly acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs and oversights, both local and worldwide.

Adams was selected from among 35 nominees submitted by Sun readers. A panel of judges representing a cross-section of the community made the final selection.

Again this year, Sun readers may nominate the person they feel is the most deserving of the award.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears below on this page.

After nominations close Saturday, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from nominations submitted.

If you know someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn. Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 30.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address by Saturday.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense), 1985.

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch, Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating the drug and alcohol program Project Impact, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

The late Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Frank Kearns, for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor, 1991.

Stephen Cantelli, an innovative Quincy public school teacher and advocate of community education, 1992.

Mary Vallier, a founder of Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) and longtime aide to battered women and abused children, 1993.

Fr. William McCarthy, retired pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill," for helping the poor, hungry, homeless and all others in need for many years, 1994.

Joseph McConville, for freely giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and his city in many capacities, including as a youth skating instructor and chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, 1995.

Olin Taylor for helping others, especially veterans, ill-children and the less fortunate as his "labor of love," 1996.

Robert Derbes for his volunteer work and many contributions to the community during a "life-long love affair" with his native Quincy, 1997.

Robert Curry for his long-time volunteer work in worthy civic and charitable causes as a member of many local organizations, including the Quincy Partnership, Quincy Commission on the Family and the Marie A. Curry Foundation which provides free mammograms for individuals not covered by health insurance.

Those nominated in the past are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, each nominee has an equal chance of being selected regardless of the number of nominations received. Anyone nominated just once has the same chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Saturday.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

THE YEAR 2000 -- IN REVIEW

Cellucci Hails Concourse As 'Economic Catalyst' At Groundbreaking

And Council President Paul Harold cited six-term Mayor James Sheets for "the poorest judgment that many of us have seen in years and possibly for the years to come."

The Council passed a resolution calling on City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to place a lien on a $2.1 million property in Brookline, the local home of Emmanouil, which is owned by Marine Industrial Services, a subsidiary of MHI.

Meanwhile, MHI and another subsidiary, MHI Shipbuilding LLC filed for Chapter 11 protection in US Bankruptcy Court to prohibit creditors from liquidating company assets at the yard so that they will have a chance to reorganize.

MHI officials insisted that they still intend to build ships on the site.

A scheduled meeting of the City Council's Oversight Committee to discuss the city's purchase of land for the New Quincy High School was canceled when Donald J. MacKinnon of Atlantic Development, former owners of the property, was unable to attend.

Councillor Frank McCauley has asked the Oversight Committee to investigate how MacKinnon had been able to purchase the 21 acres of land off Quincy Avenue in December, 1997, for $1 million and sell 14 1/1 acres of it to the city for $3.5 million in 1998.

Honors for humanitarian work by students of the Broad Meadows Middle School continued to pile up as 20 current and former students were cited for raising $30,000 to combat the cycle of poverty in Haiti by donating female goats to the island's rural villages.

Heated arguments over safety at Twin Rivers Technologies, a fatty acid processor, continued with William Arienti, president of the Firefighters Union, asking the City Council's Public Safety Committee, "Give us the tools and we'll do the job."

The tools mentioned included detailed knowledge of the dangers of the plant, a master plan for dealing with incidents at the plant, a second set of gear for firefighters and adequate washers and dryers at fire stations to clean contaminated gear.

While the issue still hung fire in the Council, the plant on the Fore River was shut down temporarily by yet another fire.

"I've had all the fires that I'm going to have from Twin Rivers and that's the end of it," said Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. "Until all of us are satisfied that they have made their corrections, they are off-line."

Christine C. Schuster, president and chief executive officer of Athol Memorial Hospital, was named CEO of the Quincy Medical Center, effective May 15.

Governor A. Paul Cellucci hailed the Quincy Concourse development as an economic catalyst for downtown Quincy at groundbreaking ceremonies for Phase I of the $5.3 million project that will build a two-lane, two-way road connecting Hancock Street to Burgin Parkway over the MBTA tracks.

City Councillor Daniel Raymond ventured into the lion's den when he held his first face-to-face meeting with members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association since he led the successful move to raise the tax classification on business property to a maximum 175 per cent.

Four people were arrested, three of them wounded, after a gun battle broke out after midnight at a "sweet sixteen" party, attended by 200 to 300 people, broke up at the George Bryan VFW Post on Broad Street.

The Recycling Commission disclosed that Quincy recycled 5,243 tons of paper, plastic, glass and metal during 1999, up from 4,053 in 1998. Unrecycled trash sent to the SEMASS incinerator in Rochester, Mass., was 34,699, a reduction of 204 tons.

Spurred on by the lack of office space and $5 a square foot rentals in Boston, the Lincoln Property Company announced that it plans to build a five-story third tower in the office and retail complex in Quincy Square.

Deaths in March included:

William T. Duane, 63, of Quincy, founder, owner and president of Construction Services and Maintenance (CSM) of Quincy.

W. Henry Parker, 86, of Quincy, former owner of the Charles G. Jordan Insurance Agency in Weymouth Landing.

Winthrop Sargent IV, 65, of Plymouth, retired chief executive officer of the Bank of Braintree and onetime president of the South Shore National Bank in Quincy.

Edna M. Abbiati, 94, of Quincy, a retired teacher and principal of four schools during her long career with the Quincy public schools and a classmate of the late actress Ruth Gordon in the QHS Class of 1914.

Squantum Meeting Jan. 4 On Concerns Over Salem Move

Obtaining the necessary permits to move the USS Salem to Marina Bay is proceeding smoothly, reports its Executive Director Joanne Condon Walsh.

But there is some local opposition to the move, most notably from several Marina Bay residents and the councillor who represents them.

Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton told The Sun Tuesday that he has heard from constituents opposing plans to move the USS Salem from Quincy Point to Marina Bay.

And, unless he hears differently at a neighborhood meeting scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 4 at 7 p.m. at the cafeteria at 500 Victory Rd., that's the position he intends to take as well.

"I haven't had one person calling from my area saying that it's a good idea," Newton said. "But I've had many calls, especially from Marina Bay, saying that it just doesn't add anything to the area."

"The general consensus is that the people in my area never wanted it in Quincy in the first place, never mind in their own backyard. Unless something drastic takes place at the (Jan. 4) meeting, my constituents don't want it there."

Newton's statements and the Jan. 4 meeting are the result of last month's announcement that the USS Salem, home of the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum, seeks to move permanently from its berth at the Fore River Shipyard to the pier at Squantum Point, a three-acre site owned by the MDC.

"We have to move," said Condon Walsh at the time of the announcement. "We're in the way of the new Fore River Bridge. We're out of business if we don't move."

Condon Walsh later added that the local, state, and federal permit process was going well and that she was hopeful the $600,000 dredging project could take place before the Feb. 15 deadline -- which is spawning season for surrounding shellfish -- and that the 719-foot, 17,000 ton retired cruiser could be at its new home by summer. "We're still on target," said Condon Walsh.

Along with the estimated 10-year Fore River Bridge Project, Condon Walsh pointed to the increased visibility of the new site as well as Squantum's maritime history as reasons for the Salem's move.

But Newton cited availability of state resources, environmental concerns caused by dredging, and simple aesthetics as reasons the pier at Squantum Point was not a suitable new home for the Salem. "What we want to know is what does it cost to run, where does that money come from, and couldn't it be used in a different way, such as road and sidewalk repair?" said Newton.

Far from being opposed to the community meeting,

Condon Walsh welcomed it and even offered to hold such meetings on the ship itself. "It would be wonderful for people to visit and see what an important, positive impact we could have on Marina Bay," she said.

The proposed new site for the Salem, which was built at the Fore River Shipyard in 1949, is on the far side of the pier that was used by the MWRA to shuttle workers to the Deer Island installation.

The Salem will receive some $200,000 for engineering the new site from the Massachusetts Highway Department as mitigation for getting out of the way of the new Fore River Bridge Project.

EVELYN FOLWER of North Weymouth was the winner of a Snow Buddies seven piece Snowville promotion at Ryder's Home Decor and More Store, 1489 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Cathy Griffin Wins Holiday Drawing At Bank Of Canton

The Bank of Canton announces that Cathy Griffin of Brockton is the lucky winner of their annual Holiday Presents drawing.

The bank recently presented Griffin with her $150 prize and, during the four-week campaign, will give away a total of $3,400 between its four branches.

The annual Holiday Presents contest is open to everyone, bank and non-bank customers alike. No purchase or transaction is necessary and, once entered, contestants stay entered in the contest for all subsequent drawings unless one is lucky enough to be a winner.

Entry forms are available at the Quincy branch, both Canton branches, and the Randolph branch.

Council OKs Home-Rule Petition Calling For 4-Year Mayor, Council Terms

APRIL

The Massachusetts Ethics Commission declined to pursue a conflict of interest charge brought against City Councillor Tim Cahill by the South Shore Building & Trades Council involving the controversial Highpoint development on Quarry Street.

The union had alleged that Cahill had violated the conflict of interest law by participating in Council discussions and voting on Highpoint when members of his family own property near the site and would benefit.

"I feel vindicated," said Cahill.

City Council President

Paul Harold put mayoral ambitions on the back burner when he took out nomination papers to succeed the retiring Registrar of Deeds Barry Hannon of Braintree.

Two other city councillors, Michael D'Amico of Ward 4 and Steve Durkin of Ward 5, and Mary Ellen Cronin, vice chair of the Zoning Board of Appeals, were also circulating papers for the post.

The City Council by a 5-4 vote passed a home rule petition, filed by former mayor, now Councillor Frank McCauley to create four-year terms for the mayor and city councillors.

Voting with McCauley for the petition were Councilors Michael D'Amico, Gregory Hanley, Patrick McDermott and Joseph Newton. But D'Amico, McDermott and Newton expressed concern that election every four year would distance councilors from the people.

Two Quincy High School educators, Rita Dinsmore, a business technology teacher, and George Smith, a social studies teacher, were nominated for Massachusetts Teacher of the Year.

The City Council responded to Chief Thomas Frane's desire by approving a sixth captain on the Quincy Police Force to head the MERRYMOUNT ASSOCIATION MEMBERS Jennifer Moore, Caroline Beals and Barbara Mendez clean Wollaston Beach during the city's 11th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy project in May. Some 80 tons of debris were collected throughout the city.

Community Policing Program. William Falco and James McNeil were sworn in as captains.

Eleven North Quincy High School seniors and juniors, led by English teacher Holly Rendle, went on a 16-day journey throughout Africa, combining volunteerism, academic and tourism.

Former City Councillor Joanne Condon-Walsh was named interim director of the USS Salem and its shipbuilding museum, succeeding retired Navy Capt. Robert Duetsch, who resigned.

The Quincy Park Department launched an "Environmental; Treasures of Quincy" program to educate residents about the many sensitive and unique environmental areas within the city in conjunction with Earth Day 2000.

The City Council unanimously approved a last minute agenda item appropriating $5,000 in emergency funds for Council postage costs despite a controversial amendment that the money be divided equally among the councilors.

Impact Quincy was awarded a two-year, $250,000 grant to specifically target underage drinking in the city. Impact Quincy planned to use the funds for a media campaign using such local role models as police officers and teachers.

City Councillor Daniel Raymondi urged his colleagues to pay attention to the city's business leaders when splitting up the proceeds of the proposed hotel/motel occupancy tax. Raymondi wanted 90 per cent to go to purchase of open space, 10 per cent to tourism. Businessmen wanted 30 per cent for tourism.

Councillor Greg Hanley proposed an 80-20 split, with a tourism administrative assistant assigned to work with City Events Coordinator Rhonda Merrill. Under the plan, Merrill's budget would be scaled down from a proposed $330,000 to $205,000.

Deaths during April included:

James Mastrantonio of Quincy, a hairdresser and a native of Italy long active in the Quincy Sons of Italy.

MAY

Mayor James Sheets submitted a $183,427,366 municipal budget for Fiscal 2001, a 6.8 per cent increase from the previous year's final spending of $171,681,988, and including pay raises for the mayor, city councillors and department heads.

Under the proposal, the mayor's salary would jump from $75,000 to $95,000 and the councillor's pay would jump from $12,607 to $19,500, which drew the wrath of financial watchdog

Councillor Frank McCauley. "We have to take a hard look at them (the raises)," McCauley, who chaired the Finance Committee, told The Sun. "Right now I'm more comfortable with the mayor's raise. It seems comparable to other communities."

Mayor Sheets defended the 3.5 per cent raises for department heads, saying they have not had a raise in five years while salaries of union employees working for them have gone up 15 or 16 per cent.

McCauley's first budget hearing resulted in a $5,000 cut from the proposed appropriation for unemployment compensation.

Sen. John McCain (R-Arizona), chairman of the U. S. Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee, opened hearings in Washington on the troubled Fore River Shipyard Project.

Federal investigators were asking the question: Did Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI) deliberately mislead the federal government when it obtained $55 million in Maritime Administration (MARAD) loan guarantees?

Meanwhile, Quincy's $7.8 million commitment to the shipyard felt its first negative impact when $330,000 of its $2,441,000 federal Community Development Block Grant money was reserved to make a loan payment on the shipyard.

Raffael and Lucia Papile, immigrant parents of 16, whose seven sons served overseas in World War II, were honored with a granite stone and plaque as the symbol of Quincy's "greatest generation," at the Point-Webster Middle School.

Mayor James Sheets called the Papiles "typical of the families that made America what it is today and what this city is. They came to give, not take. They came to build, not to tear down."

Some members of the Quincy Business Council warned city councillors that they fear an economic downturn could expose city weaknesses hidden by the current boom time.

"Many people are worried about the economic future of this country and the recessions which are bound to come," said Edward Keohane, owner of Keohane Funeral Home. "The party's just about over but the mayor and the City Council don't understand that."

More than 1,100 volunteers from throughout the city cleaned 80 tons of debris from the city's beaches, parks, playgrounds, marshes and open spaces during the 11th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy Day.

Quincy's response to the April 1 mailing of forms for Census 2000 was set at an exceptionally high 70 per cent and more than 100 census takers fanned out over the city to find and count the 30 per cent who failed to return a form.

James F. Plugh, publisher of the Patriot Ledger of Quincy, claiming ill health, announced that the newspaper, as well as the Brockton Enterprise and the weekly Memorial Press Group of Plymouth, are being offered for sale.

The City Council voted unanimously to adopt a home rule petition to the legislature setting up a hotel/motel occupancy tax with 85 per cent of the revenues going to open space preservation and 15 per cent to the promotion of tourism.

Council President Paul Harold said he feels the relations between the Council and the business community, soured by the 175 per cent business tax shift, is improving after the 85/15 per cent split in hotel/motel occupancy revenues.

Coast Guard Capt. Michael Chaplain, guest speaker at the city's Memorial Day ceremonies at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, told listeners that "each flag behind me marks and memorializes a hero."

Mrs. Winifred Lancy, 101, of Plantation, Fla., formerly of Quincy, a Gold Star Mother, made her annual Memorial Day trek to her old home town to honor her son, Norman, who died in 1944 when his B-24 bomber was shot down over Germany on what was to be his 25th and last mission.

Preparation work began on the controversial Highpoint site off Quarry Street after a careful legal review by the city determined that the owners had a right to begin work. Public Works Commissioner David Colton assured all the project would be closely monitored.

The Highpoint project received further impetus when the State Land Court denied an injunction sought by the Mt. Ararat Association to halt site clearing work. Judge Leon Lombardi ruled that Mt. Ararat could not demonstrate that irreparable damage would be done to the site.

JUNE

After a week's delay while councilors debated proposed raises for their own office staff, the City Council took only 15 minutes in emergency session to adopt an amended $183,381,916 municipal budget for Fiscal 2001.

The figure represented a 6 per cent increase over fiscal 2000. The unanimous vote came only three days before the June 15 budget deadline, after which the mayor's budget would have gone into effect with the $45,900 in cuts made by the Finance Committee.

The staff raises failed after Councilor Frank McCauley suggested that the move was illegal because the council could only subtract from the mayor's budget recommendations, not add to them.

The Council then approved $3,209,138 in transfers and free cash to balance the budget for Fiscal 2000, ending June 30.

"The budget is balanced," said Mayor James Sheets. "I am very pleased with the financial condition of the city and I think the investment community is as well," referring to a recent upgrade in the city's bond rating from A3 to A2.

City Councilor Gregory Hanley introduced a resolve calling on Treasurer James Chicino to issue warrants on delinquent boaters who, he said, owe the city more than $650,000 in unpaid boat excise taxes. Such warrants, he added, have to be issued in seven years.

Mayor Sheets announced that the city will hold sign-ups to see how many residents want to view the Tall Ships Parade into Boston Harbor July 11 from a spot on Long Island.

But Sheets cautioned that the number of Quincy residents who will be permitted on the island will be up to the city of Boston, which owns the island even though it is technically part of Quincy.

Ronald Adams, a seventh grade language arts teacher at Broad Meadows Middle School, was selected for a prestigious National Education Association award for "making a significant contribution to international understanding among Americans."

City Councilor Michael D'Amico of Ward 4 championed a as resident's suggestion to change the name of the intersection of Granite, Water and Smith Sts. form Brewers Corner back to its original name of Kings Corner as part of its revitalization.

Matthew Moran, an eighth grader at the Atlantic Middle School and the state geography champion, finished eighth overall, winning $500, in the national competition at the National Geographic Society's "Geography Bee" in Washington.

Anthony Siciliano, deputy manager for Quincy Emergency Management, was selected as the Northeast States Emergency Consortium 2000's Massachusetts Emergency Manager of the Year.

More than 10,000 spectators attended the 49th annual Flag Day Parade, marshaled by Quincy native Air Force Brig. General Ronald Rand, who told the throng "There is no symbol like it anywhere else in the world... the guarantee of liberty and freedom."

Pulitzer Prize-winning author David McCullough, host of PBS' "The American Experience," made a rare speaking appearance at the Thomas Crane Public Library and raised $25,000 for its community fund-raising campaign.

A total of 588 seniors graduated from the city's two high schools, 283 from Quincy and 305 more from North Quincy, at separate ceremonies in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Christine Schuster, the new chief executive of the Quincy Medical Center, urged 290 graduates of Quincy College to "be like an ant. Have you ever tried to stop an ant? The ant will never turn around and walk away.

An exhibition of paintings by a former city councilor, the late Aldo Della Chiesa, opened at the Quincy Historical Society Museum in the Adams Academy building.

Deaths during June included:

Shirley A. Eng, 63, of Quincy, past president of Quincy Unit 95 of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Charles A. MacGillivray, 83, formerly of Quincy, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor and lost his left fighting the Germans in World War II.

Task Force Targets Quincy Ave. Site For New Quincy High School

JULY

The School Building Needs Task Force voted unanimously not to consider any other site but Quincy Avenue for the new Quincy High School.

Under the plan, the Center for Technical Education would be demolished and Woodward Avenue closed off to create a green belt for the future Central Middle School (current QHS) and resolve land and parking issues at the Quincy Avenue site.

"Now, the only real question is: What do we do with (the old) Central," said Mayor James Sheets.

City Auditor Michael McFarland submitted an updated 10-year bonding plan to the City Council calling for a proposed debt schedule totaling $104,100,000.

The plan includes $88 million in unbonded but committed obligations for a new Quincy High School ($54 million), new Central Middle School ($24 million) and a renovated Sterling Middle School ($10 million).

School projects will receive 63 percent reimbursement from the state, said McFarland, which is already reimbursing the city $930,00 for construction work at the Marshall, Bernazzani, Parker and Beechwood Knoll School.

But City Councillor Frank McCauley put the brakes on all but one bond issue, arguing that only a $300,000 bond addressing concerns at the Marshall School merited immediate consideration.

"There's no need to rush through this," said McCauley, adding that he was not opposed to any issue per se but he wanted "more time to sit down with Michael McFarland and understand these issues better."

The MDC agreed at a public meeting to discuss plans to fill in the Granite Rail Quarry and build a "safe and accessible urban park by 2001 on the site, which has been the scene of drinking, drownings and murders over the past half century.

Mayor Sheets told business leaders that he will submit a 169 percent tax classification for commercial property next year, down six points from the state maximum 175 percent currently in place.

"What I told them was that I will present the same tax classification as I presented for this year and that I would hope the City Council would pass it," said the mayor.

In December, 1999, Sheets submitted a 169 percent tax classification for commercial property for Fiscal 2001 but the Council, by a 4-3 vote, increased it to 175 percent.

A lightning bolt struck Bethany Congregational Church during a thunderstorm, sending a 600-pound chunk of concrete crashing through the roof into a Montessori School for Early Learning classroom where students had departed only a short time before.

"It's just an absolute blessing that no one was hurt," said the Rev. William Harding, pastor. "God was truly with us."

Damage was estimated at $500,000, including repairs to a 2,000 pound gargoye at the corner of the steeple that was ruled to be structurally unsound and had to be removed from its position 120 feet above the ground.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, where John Hancock wooed and won his Dorothy, was open to the public by appointment only while the Daughters of the American Revolution, which leases the houses from the MDC, revised its stewardship.

The U. S. House of Representatives approved $100,000 to complete the final stage of the Town Brook flood protection project in Quincy and Braintree, including the reconstruction of the Quincy Dam, which began in 1992.

The opening celebration at the Outback Steakhouse in Parking Way netted a badly needed $8,450 for Father Bill's Place, a shelter that was bursting at the seams with homeless men.

Constituents flooded City Council offices with complaints that the DPW's policy of one pickup a month of grass clippings and yard waste, while better than nothing, simply isn't doing the job.

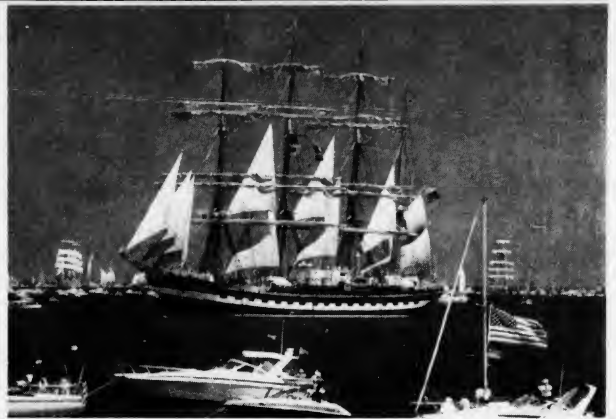

"This will probably go down as the issue of the summer," observed Councillor Patrick McDermott.

Twenty-one freshmen at North Quincy High School went to Bridgeport, Conn., for two days as Habitat for Humanity volunteers to build a 100-foot long fence for the Rivera family so that their new puppy can run safely in their backyard.

State Treasurer Shannon O'Brien dropped by City Hall to return $14,332.68 in abandoned property to the city of Quincy and to promise an additional $1.2 million in lottery funds over and above last year's figure.

union hall, a renovated yogurt factory on Washington Street, Quincy Point.

Dr. Karen Musolf resigned after 12 years of service at the Manet Community Health Center to accept a teaching position at the University of Michigan.

The Quincy Granite notched their first win in the Eastern Football League by blanking the Hyannis Hurricanes, 29-0, limiting the Cape Cod team to one first down.

Deaths in July included: Francis G. Daley, 86, of Quincy, retired Army major who had charge of all small boats in New York Harbor during as World War II strike of tug boat operators.

Elda C. Rounseville, 93, of Quincy, known as "the Music Lady, who gave free piano and banjo lessons to blind residents of the South Shore.

AUGUST

Fund-raising efforts were underway to raise $100,000 to help the Faxon House Recovery Detoxification Center move from the Quincy Medical Center and find a new home and purchase new equipment.

The medical center told the only detox and recovery center between Boston and Plymouth, it had to be out of the former Gordon House student nurse quarters by Sept. 15 to make way for additional parking space.

Clergy from across the city asked the medical center to postpone the Sept. 15 deadline while they explore two promising sites, the former Resthaven Nursing Home in East Braintree and the Robbin House Nursing Facility on McGrath Highway, Quincy.

Over 30,000 Expected At First Night

The First Night fireworks display begins at 6:15 p.m. over Faxon Field on Coddington St. The display can be easily viewed from most of Quincy Square.

Following the fireworks will be the annual Festival of Lights Parade. The parade will travel down Hancock St. by Quincy City Hall and the First Parish Church.

Once the parade is completed, the Laser Light Show will take place on the facade of President's Place and other structures in Quincy Square. People can submit their "New Year's Wishes" to be scrolled along the facade of President's Place all night long. Messages must be 25 words or less and can be submitted that evening.

The night will be capped off by a Laser Light Countdown to 2001 shortly before midnight.

First Night Quincy will feature a wide range of entertainment including Rex Trailer, Bon Voyager, Robbie O'Connell, Irish music, blues, jazz, classical, puppeteers, big band, comic/musical acts, and a range of international entertainment.

"Every member of your family, young and old, will enjoy what First Night Quincy has to offer," Merrill said. "This event offers a combination of excitement and convenience that cannot be found in other New Year's Eve events. For those who have never been to First Night Quincy, I urge you to try it once and I'm sure you'll be back."

Another highlight of this year's First Night Quincy is KIDS-FEST, which will be held at the Center for Technical Education (Vo-Tech) gym from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. The venue will feature numerous games, a moonwalk, children's entertainment, a mini-golf course, and a host of activities that will keep kids going all day long.

The First Night store and Food Emporium will be located in tents in front of Quincy College. The First Night store will allow patrons to purchase hats, noise-makers, and other New Year's Eve-related items. The Food Emporium will feature a diverse mix of food for all tastes and appetites.

There will be free parking at the Ross Parking Garage on Granite St., the Hancock Parking lot on Chestnut St., the President's Place Parking Garage, and the Stop & Shop Garage on Burgin Parkway. All parking lots are within easy walking distance to all events.

For those who wish to take public transportation, the MBTA's Quincy Center Red Line will drop patrons right in the center of the action.

For more information of First Night Quincy, call Quincy's Office of Events and Tourism at (617) 376-1296 or the First Night Quincy office at (617) 376-1071.

A schedule of activities which begin at 4 p.m. appears on the bottom of Page 19.

Festival Of Lights Parade During First Night Celebration

First Night Quincy and Lappen's Auto Supply will once again sponsor the annual Festival of Lights Parade during the First Night Quincy celebration.

The Festival of Lights Parade will begin at 6:30 p.m. on Hancock St. in Quincy Center during the First Night Quincy celebration.

Applications to enter a pickup truck or trailer in this year's Festival of Lights Parade and contest rules can be picked up at Lappen's Auto Supply, 671 Southern Artery, or at the Office of Events and Tourism, 1 Merrymount Parkway.

There will be prizes awarded to the best decorated trucks. The First Place winner will receive $1,000. There will also be $500 and $250 prizes awarded to the second and third prize winners, respectively.

Anyone who enters must fill out the application with a description of the entry. Applications must be in to Rhonda Merrill, First Night Coordinator, One Merrymount Parkway, Quincy 02170 by Dec. 29.

For more information on the Festival of Lights Parade, call Merrill at (617) 376-1296.

Quincy Police and eight arrests made on drug and gambling charges.

"We must work together and lobby the License Board to revoke this license once and for all," he said, noting that the Hat Rack had been a thorn in the side of the neighborhood for several years.

The owners of the bar, James and Donna Hatfield of Pembroke, protested that the Hat Rack was being singled out among Quincy bars and that the guilty parties, not the owners, should be held responsible for the illegal activities.

City officials admitted that there was little chance of success for the Quincy Housing Authority's federal application for $33 million in HOPE VI funds to revitalize the Germantown neighborhood since $513 million of the $515 available is already allocated.

"We have not received official notification but you don't have to go to Harvard to know how to add," said Jack Mather, executive director of the Housing Authority.

Judge Mark S. Coven of Brookline, first named to the bench by Gov. Michael Dukakis, was appointed First Justice of the Quincy District Court replacing Justice Charles E. Black, who had reached the mandatory retirement age.

"It was a unique experience for all of us," said the Rev. Robert Monagle of St.

Joseph's Church of the Saturday night vigil and Sunday mass with drew an audience of more than two million people, the largest gathering in the history of Rome.

Former City Councillor Peter Kolson was upset with the state legislature's decision to let die a home rule petition that would have allowed him to collect nearly $10,000 for three years in Council back pay.

Kolson, a superintendent on the Housing Authority, was prevented from receiving the money during his years on the Council by a state law that mandates a housing authority employee choose between a housing authority salary and a municipal salary.

Schuster announced that comprehensive and coordinated pain management services are now available, provided by physicians and anesthesiologists from the Boston Medical Center.

State and local health officials were urging calm and preventive measures to combat the West Nile Virus which was recently identified in infected crows in Jamaica Plain and Hopkinton.

As a preemptive measure against spread of the virus, five DPW workers were trained to larvicide 3,000 catch basins to kill the mosquito which breeds in stagnant water and is known to carry the potentially deadly disease

City Councillor D'Amico was in line for appointment to a part-time post in the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office as project coordinator of a $50,000 Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Grant from the federal government.

Quincy was down to receive $300,000 from the federal Project Impact to make property more "disaster resistant," especially as pertains to flooding. Most of the funds would be earmarked to "flood-proof" both residential and commercial properties.

Deaths in August included:

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, 84, of Leesburg, Fla., retired pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, who played a key role in bringing major development to Quincy as head of the Planning Board for 17 years

David Lubarsky, 90, of Quincy, a retired Grossman's advertising man and free lance sportswriter, whose knowledge of local sports earned him the title of "a walking sports encyclopedia."

William T. Hutchinson, 79, of Marston Mills, retired teacher for 34 years and hockey coach from 1949 to 1965 at Quincy High

Dr. Sylvia Koose, 85, of Osterville, formerly of Quincy, retired associate national executive director of the Camp Fire Girls.

Laura Olsen, 87, of Quincy, an active member of the Quincy Art Association who won the Best Historical Painting in 1999 for an oil painting of the Dorothy Quincy House.

Joseph DiFederico, 84, of Quincy, proprietor of JD's Pub in Randolph for the past 54 years.

New VA Outpatient Clinic Opens At Medical Center

SEPTEMBER

City Council President Paul Harold won the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County Register of Deeds, besting Mary Ellen Cronin of the Zoning Board of Appeals and County Commissioner Peter Collins in the primary.

The voter turnout in Quincy was only 14.80 percent or 7,630 of the city's 51,552 registered voters.

Harold was due to oppose the Republican candidate, Bruce Olsen of Stoughton, in the November election. Olsen was unopposed in the GOP primary, as were all the other candidates who sought their party's nominations.

The Quincy Auxiliary Police disbanded after the 26 members either fired or quit following Chief Thomas Frane's order that they not carry firearms in the performance of their duties.

"He left them defenseless," said Auxiliary Chief Anthony Siciliano, a 32-year member himself. "It's dangerous for those officers to be in police cruisers with police uniforms but have no protection."

The License Board, opening hearings into the revocation of the license of the Hat Rack bar in Brewer's Corner, heard police testimony about the Aug. 11 raid at which seven were arrested on drug charges and four accused of running an illegal dice game.

Quincy was fighting off a new attempt by Braintree to have the MBTA gate on Independence Avenue opened for pedestrian and possibly vehicular access to the Quincy Adams MBTA station.

City Councilors Daniel Raymondi and Michael D'Amico, who represent the wards most affected, teamed up to sponsor a resolve opposing the opening, which had been an off-and-on dispute between the two communities for some 20 years.

Despite a plea by State Rep. Joe Sullivan of Braintree, chairman of the House Transportation Committee, the city still said "no" to the proposal to open the gate, citing a decades-old "ironclad agreement" with the MBTA.

Raymondi and D'Amico also joined forces to oppose the relocation of the Dunkin Donuts from 95 Franklin St. to 138 Franklin St., directly across the street from the birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams.

Council President Paul Harold called upon the National Park Service to purchase the site, which used to be a Citizen's Bank branch, to block the donut shop and provide a long-needed visitors' center for the Adams National Historic Park.

In a financial report put together for his fellow councilors, City Councillor Frank McCauley concluded the city is in "fairly decent financial condition."

"But we have to be careful," said the man who is chairman of the Council's Finance Committee. "We are doing a lot of borrowing. We will still have to pay the debt service if there is a downturn in the economy."

The third annual Marie Curry Walk, named for the woman who died of the disease at the age of 52, raised more than $100,000 to help continue the fight against breast cancer at Quincy Medical Center.

Sean Barry, who started as an adjunct professor at the college and rose to interim president, was named the new permanent president of Quincy College, succeeding Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan, who resigned in January.

On the eve of its first anniversary as a private, for-profit institution, Mayor James Sheets predicted that the problem of Medicare reimbursements to Quincy Medical Center will increase as the transition continues from public to private hospital.

"Quincy Medical Center has been very busy the last eight months," he said. "They really haven't fully addressed issues like that. But I expect to be involved as talks intensify in the next few months."

The City Council voted to increase the city's parking finest from $5 to $15 in an attempt to halt MBTA commuters from parking their cars illegally all day in city neighborhoods.

The License Board frowned on a new concept of selling wine by a mail order service called The Wine Messenger, which proposed such a service at 111 Franklin St., but continued discussion of the application until Oct. 10.

But the board issued an all-alcoholic Innholder License and full entertainment license to the Marriott Hotel which was set to open in the Crown Colony development in West Quincy in the spring of 2001.

The oath of office was administered to 17 of 18 new Quincy firefighters, bringing the department up to full strength of one chief, five deputies, 14 captains, 42 lieutenants and 156 firefighters for a total complement of 218.

A new Veteran Administration Community-based Outpatient Clinic opened at Quincy Medical Center to improve veteran accessibility ity to health care by cutting the commuters to the West Roxbury and Brockton VA Hospitals.

A Japanese delegation from the town of Kawahigashi, led by Mayor Haruo Kuriki, visited Quincy to encourage ties between the communities and strengthen its ambitious interactive "English as a Second Language" program.

Quincy Medical Center and Fallon Ambulance reached an agreement which will continue the city's free Emergency 911 ambulance service for at least four years.

The original agreement had been made when the hospital was a public institution.

Roy Lind, who conducted the "Breakfast With JDA" for 23 years, announced that he was leaving the WJDA microphone and slipping into retirement, Nov. 3, two days before his 68th birthday.

The Quincy Sun and its publisher, Henry Bosworth, were honored by the Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services of Quincy for their commitment to family values and community service.

THE YEAR 2000 -- IN REVIEW

A Hot Topic: Where To Station New Fire Ladder Truck?

OCTOBER

Both Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he was in full agreement with union leaders that the city needs a fourth ladder truck but the question of where it would be stationed — in West Quincy or Houghs Neck — went unanswered.

The economic boom in West Quincy had dramatically increased the number of inflammable structures in the neighborhood and Houghs Neck was cut off from the rest of the city and held some of the city's oldest housing stock.

"We definitely need a fourth ladder truck," said Gorman. "As to where it goes, that will be decided by myself, the mayor and the results of the Fire Needs Study." The study was expected to be completed in mid-2001.

City Councillor Frank McCauley questioned whether the $75,000 study, now in the RFP (Request For Proposal) stage, was really necessary since the mayor and the council were moving ahead with a $500,000 appropriation for the fourth fire truck.

The Council's Oversight Committee held a public hearing to discuss the city's multi million dollar plan to construct a new Quincy High School and renovate facilities at Central and Sterling Middle Schools.

The project had caused concerns with respect to location of the new QHS, adequate space for parking and athletics, cleanup of hazardous materials on the site and possible landtakings.

After the hearing, the City Council postponed a vote on the $65 million bond issue until further testing can be done on the site, which used to be a dumping ground for hazardous waste from the Fore River Shipyard in the 1940s and '50s.

The License Board voted 5-0 to revoke the license of the Hat Rack, site of a number of drug and gambling arrests over the years but the decision was appealed to the state and the controversial bar in Brewer's Corner, West Quincy, remained open.

Faced with a storm of opposition, Dunkin' Donuts bowed out of the picture and the South Shore Savings Bank purchased the old building across Franklin Street from the Adams Birthplaces for use as a South Quincy branch.

City Councillor McCauley's long-awaited book, "Quincy, Massachusetts, A Political History, 12889-2000," was released, disclosing the names of the six former mayors the author thought worthy of memberships in the <Mayoral Hall of Fame.

Chronologically, they were Charles M. Bryant (1902-04), Thomas J. McGrath (1927-32), Thomas S. Burgin (1935-42; 1950-51), Amelio Della Chiesa (1954-65), James R. McIntyre (1966-71) and Walter Hannon (1972-75).

Hospital workers threw an informational picket line around Quincy Medical Center as negotiations continued between union and management to bring health care workers wages "up to area standards."

Professional and technical workers at the center, represented by the Service Employee International Union, gave notice that they would hold a one-day strike Oct. 31 if no contract agreements were reached by that time.

However, the one-day strike as postponed when a tentative agreement was reached with one union local and the second deemed that negotiations were going well.

Mayor James Sheets reaffirmed his commitment to submit a 169 percent commercial classification for 2001. He had asked for the same figure for Fiscal 2000 but the City Council had bumped the classification to 175 percent, the highest allowed.

More than 500 CNA employees, neighbors and volunteers, in one day, constructed a new, safe playground for more than 450 students from preschool through grade five at the Snug Harbor Community School in Germantown.

Quincy Medical Center granted the Faxon House detox center an indefinite reprieve to provide the 32-bed alcohol treatment center an opportunity to find a new home. The deadline had been Sept. 30.

The City Council went on record opposing Questions 4 and 6, the tax-cutting questions on the November state election ballot, with only Councillor McCauley in opposition. "Who wrote this, Al Gore?" he asked.

Lady pilots and their passengers flew around Boston Light wearing purple shirts in honor of pioneer aviatrix Harriet Quimby, who died on such a flight in 1912 during an air show at the airport in Squantum.

The South Shore YMCA in Quincy received a $650,000 challenge grant, the largest in its history, from the Kresge Foundation of Troy, Mich., to help in further renovation and expansion of the facility.

Henry Bradley, the city director of Veterans Services, was elected to a one-year term as one of five national commanders of the American Legion.

The city's committee examining the issue of "Body Art" stepped up its efforts in the wake of a Superior Court decision legalizing tattooing in Massachusetts. The committee said its goal was regulation, not prohibition.

Beechwood Community Life Center's fourth annual Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) installed 300 new smoke detectors and replaced 500 old alarm batteries for elder citizens across the city.

Architectural plans were unveiled by the Grossman Companies for an $18 to $20 million, 8-story, 111-unit luxury apartment building on a parking lot next to the Monroe Building on Hancock Street in Quincy Center.

The Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Stone, honoring John and Buell Fuller for a lifetime of service to the Boy Scouts, was moved from Upper Merrymount Park to Freedom Park to make way for construction of the Formal Garden.

Deaths in October included:

Eileen M. Comer of Quincy, who was known as the "First Lady of the American Legion" wife of Jake Comer, former national commander of the veterans group.

Daniel M. Sullivan, 79, of Quincy, state representative from Dorchester in the years 1953 to 1960.

Judith M. Savonen, 59, of Marshfield, formerly of Quincy, owner and operator of Judi's Beauty Salon in Wollaston for 20 years.

Edward L. Pettinelli, 54, of Quincy, a teacher in the Quincy public schools for more than 30 years.

Vincent Gallo, 89, of Quincy, former president of Alves Photo Service for 38 years.

THE YEAR 2000 -- IN REVIEW

Quincy Ave. Site Dropped For New Quincy High School

(Cont'd From Page 22)

NOVEMBER

The Democratic ticket of Al Gore and Joe Lieberman swept to an easy victory over the George W. Bush-Dick Cheney pairing in Quincy but confusion in the vote in Florida held up the naming of a new president of the United States.

The Gore-Lieberman margin in the city was 23,117 to 11,282.

Quincy voters also gave City Council President Paul Harold a jump start and he went on to defeat Stoughton Republican Bruce Olsen in the race to succeed Barry Hannon as Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

In other races, Bill Delahunt easily cruised to a third term in Congress, winning 83.53 percent of the vote against Republican Eric Bleiken of Yarmouth.

Some 73.6 percent of Quincy's 53,439 registered voters went to the polls and some were still waiting in line to cast their ballots at several polling places at the 8 p.m. closing time.

ting out the vote for Gore and Lieberman.

Unofficial tallies in the Kids' Voting Program, showed the Quincy students voted along with their parents, differing only on Question 2, defeating a bid to limit felons' voting right, and Question 5, extending Health Insurance and Health Care rights.

Mayor James Sheets reiterated his position that, once the site is cleaned and capped, the parcel of land off Quincy Avenue, once a dump site for the Fore River shipyard, will be a perfectly safe place to build a new Quincy High School.

Any changes in the $65 million project, said the mayor, could jeopardize the city's 90 percent reimbursement from the state.

Duane Wanty, senior project manager in the Corporate Environmental Affairs Department at Gillette told the School Committee that testing of groundwater and volatile organic compounds at the site was inadequate.

Wanty said he was speaking as a private citizen and not as a representative of Gillette.

Faced with a storm of opposition, Mayor Sheets changed his mind and announced that the Quincy Avenue site was no longer under consideration for the new high school, thus ending the debate.

Sheets said he still thought the former dump site could be remediated but the real problem was now a lack of public confidence in the project.

The question now was where to put the new high school, which was slated to open in September, 2004.

The Firefighters Association called for a city-wide moratorium on current and future construction projects at or above two and one-half stories until issue concerning a new ladder truck are resolved.

Meanwhile, City Councilor Michael D'Amico, exercising council privilege, tabled discussion of a $295,000 appropriation for department equipment, $100,000 of which would go towards a replacement for a ladder truck at the Central Fire Station.

D'Amico said the mayor had assured him that assignment of the truck would be based on the result of the Fire Needs Study, which was not ready yet.

With volunteer labor and in-kind donations, the ecumenical and non-profit South Shore Habitat for Humanity built and dedicated four new units of housing in Granite Village in South Quincy.

Bernard Cardinal Law was considering a request to merge Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish in Merrymount with St. Boniface in Germantown under the new designation St. Elizabeth Seton by Easter Sunday, 2001.

Presidents Looking For First Win

Hosts Marshfield Tonight At 7 p.m.

By CHRIS POISSON

When John Lupo painted his second straight rainbow three from the right corner, a disgruntled Robert Craig immediately signaled for a timeout as his Taunton Tigers had been tamed.

Quincy coach John Franceschini, meanwhile, basked in a Pot of Gold as his Presidents followed his blueprint to success and constructed an 18-5 lead midway through the first half.

Those first eight minutes could not have been scripted any better. Quincy's aggressive, scrappy defensive play forced turnovers that led to easy fast-break points and wide open shots.

"That was the perfect example of our defense giving us some transition baskets," Franceschini said after the game.

Unfortunately, the Presidents' offense became stale over the final 24 minutes and they fell, 65-55, at home. Tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m., Quincy (0-2) will try to pick up its first win of the year when it hosts Marshfield in a rematch from the 62-48 loss in the season opener.

"I'm still very optimistic," Franceschini said. "The main thing is trying to keep them focused on improving offensively."

Quincy's offense hit a rut when senior forward Adam Jurewicz, who scored 12 of his team's first 20 points, picked up his third foul and had to sit on the bench. Quincy no longer had an inside presence and the offense suffered a meltdown.

"Adam Jurewicz played his heart out," Franceschini said. "Fouls hurt him. He had three quick fouls and I had put him down for six minutes in the first half when we had a pretty good run."

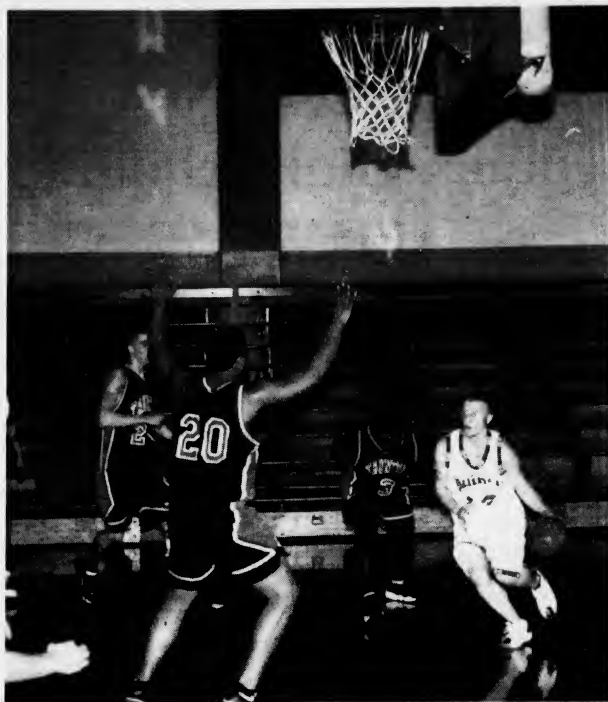

The stone-cold shooting coupled with 11 missed free throws saw Quincy's lead evaporate to 26-23 at the break.

"I thought that our defense for the majority of the game was good enough to win," Franceschini said. "What let us down was the 11 missed free throws in the first half and the three seniors shooting 22 percent from the floor."

In the second half, Taunton tied the game at 34 when Bob Simpson drilled a three-pointer and then took its first lead of the game, 36-34, when Raul Lopez came up with a steal and went in for the layup.

"They hit a three-pointer that kind of buried us," Franceschini said.

Quincy got into some foul trouble and began to deviate from its hawkish brand of basketball. Jurewicz, junior Mike Lorenzano and senior Mark Robertson all played with four fouls.

"What happens is kids normally tend to play a little careful and that takes a little bit away," Franceschini said. "I had two timeouts where that was the only thing I said. I said, 'Don't worry about fouling out. We need you to play hard.'"

Quincy pulled with three, 50-47, when senior Dave Centrella threaded a pass down low to Robertson with 5:53 left. The Presidents came up with a couple of turnovers, but they couldn't capitalize on the offensive end and Taunton closed the door on the comeback with a 15-4 run.

"When you're working so hard on defense and you're not getting anything on the other end, it starts wearing on you mentally. I think that caught up to us," Franceschini said.

"This is what we're going to go through. We're not trying to disguise anything. Our offense is going to be whom-ever seems to have the hot hand. And in the first two games we haven't had a player carry us at all. It has been very sporadic."

Women's Fitness Classes At Fore River Clubhouse

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct two women's fitness classes at the Fore River Clubhouse beginning Wednesday, Jan. 3, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Both programs will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at either 8:30 or 9:30 a.m. The instructor will be Karen Gaughan.

Each class includes exercise to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercise allows each participant to work out at their own pace.

Classes will end Feb. 16. Cost is $30 for 20 classes. Registration begins tomorrow (Friday) and is on a first-come, first-serve basis at the Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., weekdays.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Shining Moments For Youth Athletics, High Schools In 2000

By CHRIS POISSON

From the naming of two new athletic directors to realignment of the Pilgrim Conference, the local high school sports scene received a makeover in 2000.

Throughout this year of change, some teams as expected cruised to the playoffs, others played above-and-beyond all expectations, and some came up short of its goals.

When looking back on the entire sports landscape, though, it was the success of Quincy youth athletics that ruled Y2K—headlined by a group of 10-year-old boys who achieved perfection on the diamond.

Here is a look back on some memorable moments of 2000:

January

Quincy Public Schools ushers in a new era by naming the tag team of Ed Miller and Brian Buckley as the replacements for athletic director William Walker, who stepped down to become the director of the GOALS program.

Miller, former Marshfield athletic director, takes the Quincy High School post, and Buckley, former director of the Quincy Council on Aging, moves to North Quincy headquarters.

The Quincy Mite A travel hockey team defeats Dorchester, 7-3, to win the Cranberry Holiday Championship at Hobmock rink in Pembroke. Brandon Gilmore is named the tourney MVP.

February

The Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament kicks off its 27th year at Quincy Youth Arena and attracts a celebrity to the week-long event.

Barry Melrose, ESPN hockey analyst and former player and coach, coaches the Adirondack Bantams, a team from upstate New York.

Led by goalie Bruce Maggio, the Quincy Bantam A's blank Melrose's club, 2-0, to wear the annual hockey crown.

The North Quincy and Quincy hockey teams, along with the North Quincy girls' basketball team, cap off successful seasons by clinching spots in the state tournament.

March

Dan Kelly, a senior guard on the Quincy boys' basketball team, pours in 28 points in the season finale to become the school's all-time leading scorer with 1,026 points, eclipsing the 1,011 scored by Jack Uhlar (1974-77).

The Quincy JV boys' basketball team finishes the season 18-4—the best record in school history.

The Quincy Mite A travel hockey team captures the Greater Boston Youth Hockey League championship with another win over Dorchester.

April

The St. Agatha's boys' hockey team shocks the CYO league by knocking off first-place Holy Name of West Roxbury for its first ever championship.

Quincy Youth Hockey wraps up its season. Quincy Sheet Metal wins the Mite championship, Smith & Brink, PC earns the Squirt title and Local #103 IBEW grabs the Pee Wee trophy.

May

Continuing with the trend of local hockey teams, the Quincy Mite B travel team takes three of four games to win the Waterville Valley championship with a 5-1 victory over Stoneham.

The bullpen area at Adams Field is dedicated in the memory of Joseph Conti Jr., a former Quincy High School baseball player who died in a fire the previous year at Twin Rivers.

Freshman Stacey Andrew fires a no-hitter as the Quincy JV softball team routs rival North Quincy, 18-1, at Mitchell Field.

Nearly 250 medals are awarded at the 18th annual Quincy Senior Olympics.

For the third time in four years, the North Quincy baseball team locks up a spot in the state tournament with a 7-4 win over Plymouth South at home.

June

The Quincy Lions Club 5K Run/Walk for Sight, in its third year, raises $18,000 for eye research and those in need of eye care.

Quincy resident Ally Sleiman wins his third straight North Regional Greco-Roman Wrestling championship in Iowa, earning an alternate spot on the U.S. Olympic team in Sydney, Australia.

The North Quincy girls' track team rallies from its early season woes to win the Old Colony League conference championship for the first time in its history.

After one season as the interim coach, Bob Noble is named the head coach of the Quincy High School football team.

The third annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS raises approximately $30,000 for the Cecil B. Day Center for Neuromuscular Research at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

July

The Quincy Granite semi-professional football team, in its first year in the Eastern Football League, drops the season opener, 20-8, to the Boston Cowboys.

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team's season ends with a 9-4 loss at home to Westwood in Game 3 of the Zone 6 playoffs.

For the fourth straight year, Wisialko and Associates win the Mary Pratt Softball city championship at Pageant Field. Trailing 14-5 in the fifth inning, W&A rallies for a 20-15 victory over Everlasting Engraving.

August

The Quincy 10-year-old Travel "A" All-Star baseball team captures headlines when it wins the Suburban League Championship with a 10-2 triumph over Hanover to finish the season with a perfect 29-0 record.

The Quincy Senior and Junior 14 and under girls travel softball teams bring South Suburban League championships to the city. The senior girls edge three-time defending champion Randolph, 4-3, and the junior girls top a veteran Hull squad.

September

The Quincy Granite conclude a successful season in the EFL by securing a spot in the postseason with a 26-16 win over rival Randolph.

The eighth annual William F. Deegan Memorial Road Race raises $40,000 for local schools and Mayflower Pediatrics.

October

Legendary former Quincy High School football coach Bill Sullivan has his No. 15 retired at a ceremony at Quincy Sons of Italy.

The North Quincy girls' soccer team clinches its fourth straight appearance in the state tournament.

The Quincy and North Quincy football teams each pick up their first wins of the season in come-from-behind fashion. The Red Raiders rally from a 20-0 deficit to clip Falmouth, 21-20, and the Presidents overcame an 18-point margin to edge Plymouth South, 19-18, in overtime.

November

In what was supposed to be a "rebuilding" year, the young North Quincy girls' volleyball team finishes with a 22-4 record and reaches the Division I Central final.

In the 68th annual Thanksgiving Day game, Quincy rocks North Quincy, 28-13, for its second straight and 35th overall championship. Junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano tosses a TD pass and rushes for a score as well.

The Pilgrim Conference votes for realignment and Quincy moves from the OCL to the Atlantic Coast League beginning in the 2001-2002 school year.

December

David F. Burke Jr., 72, former North Quincy head football coach, passes away. Burke had a 40-27-1 record in seven years with the Red Raiders and led them to the Division I Super Bowl in his first season.

Quincy football coach Bob Noble is named OCL Coach of the Year by the WATD radio station in Marshfield.

How To Remove Holiday Food Stains

(NU) - Ask any hostess what the downside of holiday entertaining is, and she's sure to put cleanup at the top of her list.

Whether it's laundering those table linens or rescuing a party dress, holiday joy often is hampered by the laundry blues.

But don't let holiday spills dampen your festivities. Even if you can't wash the item immediately, these steps will make stain removal easier:

• Act quickly. The sooner you treat a stain, the more successful you will be.

• Back the fabric with a clean white towel or cloth - the stain must have somewhere to go. Carefully remove as much as the stain as possible, working from the outside of the stain to the center to minimize spreading and rings. Use a clean, damp cloth to blot liquid stains gently, moving the lower towel frequently so the stain doesn't come back onto the fabric.

• Never scrape the fabric with a sharp instrument, or you risk damaging the fibers. Use a spoon or butter knife to lift thick stains, like chocolate or butter, then blot gently with a damp towel.

• Never rub a stain. You will work it into the fibers rather than removing it.

• Once the worst is gone, use a stain specific remedy, like Carbona Stain Devils, to remove the remaining stain. Home remedies may seem to work but also can leave stains or damage the fabric.

• Wash the item as soon as possible. Don't let it dry in a dryer until you check to see if all the stains are gone. Dry heat may set a stain forever. If a stain remains, treat it again, then rewash the item.

• When treating a stain on a garment you are wearing, dry it with a hair dryer set on cool to avoid setting any remnants of the stain and minimize those rings.

Decorating Ideas To Spruce Up Your Home

(NU) - "Many catalogs offer fabric swatches and decorating advice to help consumers with product selection and coordination," says Amy Blankenship, director of the Shop-At-Home Information Center of the Direct Marketing Association (DMA).

"Seeing the many unique and decorative items in catalogs allows shoppers to visualize how they'll look in the home.

"Just one phone, fax, mail, or online order is all it takes to have your selections delivered to your home in as little as one or two days," Blankenship adds.

The DMA's consumer Web site, www.shophnet.org, offers tips on smart catalog and online shopping, and links to Web sites of favorite catalog and online retailers. Consumers who shop from companies listed on www.shophnet.org have the assurance that the companies adhere to the ethical guidelines of The DMA, including the posting of policies regarding the use of their personal information.

Coverlets, shams, sheets, pillowcases and other fine bed linens from Garnet Hill, www.garnet.com, are available in a variety of matching sets, from intricately-embroidered white percales to the eye-popping Caribbean colors of its Barbados stripe blanket.

Blair Shoppe, www.blair.com, takes the mystery out of home decorating. Choose from its mix-and-match bedspreads, comforters, draperies and other accessories in coordinated colors and fabrics.

Unsure who to design a garden this spring? Order one -- and entire garden -- that is -- from Jackson & Perkins, www.jacksonandperkins.com. Choose from sun and shade gardens, a perennial urn garden or a fragrant moonlight garden.

Keeping Pets Safe In Winter

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (MSPCA) offers the following tips to help keep pets safe this winter:

- During frigid weather, all pets should be taken inside. Older, very young, or ill pets, pets not acclimated to the cold, and certain short-haired breeds of dogs are especially sensitive to the cold. Trips outside should be kept brief to prevent frostbite.

- For animals who are active outdoors, extra nutritional calories in their diet will give them added energy needed in colder weather.

- If dogs spend any length of time outdoors, they should be provided with proper shelter which is dry and secure from the wind and weather. Fresh hay or cedar shavings provide dry bedding materials. The shelter should have a floor elevated from the ground.

- Shovel walking paths for pets. The deep snow makes it difficult for older and smaller pets to walk and can aggravate conditions such as arthritis in older pets.

- Keep pets' away from antifreeze, which can be deadly if ingested. Clean up spills immediately, store chemicals securely away from pets, and look for products containing propylene glycol instead of ethylene glycol.

- Thoroughly wipe off pets' foot pads and stomach fur when they come in from the outdoors. Ice, rock salt and sand can be extremely irritating to animals' skin. These and other snow-melting chemicals can be harmful to pets if swallowed while licking their pads and fur.

- Always leash and supervise pets when outside. Warmer temperatures this winter can spell trouble for pets wandering onto half-dozen lakes and ponds. When driving, watch for unleashed pets behind snowbanks. The mounds of snow make it difficult to see animals running in the street.

- Make sure your pet has a warm, draft-free place to sleep, such as a dog or cat bed or basket. Caged pets, such as birds, hamsters, and guinea pigs are especially sensitive to cold drafts. Keep cages in a warm, dry area of the house.

- Protect cats by keeping them indoors. Free-roaming cats may curl up in wheel wells or under warm hoods of cars. Before starting the engine, bang on the hood or press the car's horn to alert any sleeping animals.

For more information, contact MSPCA at (617) 522-7400.

Dr. Gabrielle Freedman Attends Postgraduate Seminar

Quincy chiropractor Dr. Gabrielle Freedman and her staff recently attended a four-day postgraduate seminar in Mexico held by the Parker Seminars of Dallas, Texas.

Dr. Freedman, along with other doctors of chiropractic, their spouses, and assistants from the United States and several other countries heard a series of lectures on the latest research and developments in chiropractic care. Additional lectures provided instruction in advanced techniques of patient care. Dr.

Freedman learned some new techniques to help with sacral and coccyx pain.

Since 1950, chiropractors have attended Parker Seminars to learn about the recent innovations in the various phases of chiropractic practice.

Dr. Gabrielle Freedman is a 1994 graduate of Logan College of Chiropractic in St. Louis, Missouri. Her office is located at 112 McGrath Highway, Quincy. To contact her, call (617) 472-4220.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

Why do my hearing aids whistle?

This is probably the most frequently asked question about hearing aids.

The most common reason is that the aid is a bit loose in your ear, allowing the sound to leak out of your ear and re-enter into its own microphone, hence the term "feedback".

Solution: If the aid is under warranty have it recased; if not have it coated with Ultra Violet plastics (preferred material) or something comparable in order to tighten the fit.

The other reasons for "feedback" are a malfunction in the aid itself or the ear may be impacted with wax. Remember this, your hearing aid should not whistle at your comfortable listening level unless you cover it, make exaggerated jaw motions or have a profound loss. Have a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist take care of it, because when it whistles you are losing out on what you want to hear!

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

My Patients Speak For Themselves...

"How do I spell relief? Acupuncture. For years I have suffered with arthritis in the feet, neck and back, not to mention the work-related injuries of carpal tunnel and tendonitis in both arms and hands. When my HMO offered Alternative Medicine, I felt I had nothing to lose but the pain, so I made my first appointment with Dan Karp. I highly recommend it." - Helen Smart, Quincy, MA

DR. DAVID SUNDELL (left) is welcomed as the interim pastor of Covenant Congregational Church by Donald White, chairman of the congregation.

Dr. David Sundell New Interim Pastor At Covenant Congregational

The Covenant Congregational Church welcomes Dr. David Sundell as its new interim pastor.

Dr. Sundell will be pastoring the church during the search for a new pastor to fill the vacancy created by the departure of former pastor LuAnn Johnson. Pastor Johnson recently answered a call to a teaching pastorate in Bloomington, Minnesota, after serving in Quincy for nearly eight years.

Dr. Sundell, who holds a doctorate of ministry from Andover Newton Theological Seminary, has served several New England Covenant churches as interim pastor, including Waltham, West Peabody and most recently, Pawtucket, R.I. He is also licensed as a pastoral psychotherapist in Maine and New Hampshire, where he resides.

The Covenant Congregational church is a member of the Evangelical Covenant Church of America, a denomination founded in Sweden, and established here by Swedish immigrants. The Quincy church was founded by immigrants who came to work in the granite industry in 1885, and moved to its present location at the corner of Granite and Whitwell Sts. in 1957.

The congregation today represents many varied backgrounds and welcomes all who may be interested in the church or its activities. Inquiries may be made to the church office at (617) 479-5728.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A NEW YEAR'S PRAYER...

Dear Precious Lord,
We pause to give you grateful thanks
At the dawn of this bright New Year,
For friends, our homes and families
And all that we hold dear.
We thank you for your bounteous love
That comes with each new day;
For health that gives us strength to help
Someone along the way.
Though doubts and fears assail us
And sometimes cloud the light;
There, high above, the sun still shines
And we know that all is right.
For the Peace that brings Contentment,
For the Hope of life above;
We thank you, Heavenly Father,
And pledge undying love... Lelah Kinney Ayers.

With it all, when the New Year comes around, we all realize time crunches on -- for all of us. It is an excellent time to pause and reflect, to plan - and pray. Whatever your custom as a personal preference may be, we hope all of you have and enjoy A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Adams Shore Bible Baptist Church Cable Program

The Adams Shore Bible Baptist Church is producing Faith of Our Fathers, a new program to be broadcast on Channel 8 of Quincy Access Television.

The program, both Biblical and historical in nature, examines the backgrounds and faith of the founding fathers of our nation.

Program host is the Rev. Michael Cox, pastor of Adams Shore Bible Baptist Church.

"The message is that the particular experience or exercise of faith which they lived is something we can live today," said Rev. Cox. "The program will appeal to history buffs, to folks who enjoy stories of lives transformed, and those who need their faith strengthened and hope to inspire them."

Rev. Cox will open Faith of our Fathers with a short introduction to the particular segment, followed by a "teaser" multiple choice question and a song sung by a group or soloist. The answer to the question will then be given and the message or story concerning the particular founding father shared.

Adams Shore Bible Baptist Church, located at 175 Albatross Rd. off Sea St., celebrated its sixth anniversary in October. Your Social Security

Employees And Their Families Can Benefit From Recent Law

By LAURIE ZASTROW

A recent law allowing workers at full retirement age to continue working while receiving the full amount of their Social Security retirement benefits no matter how much they earn is a "win-win" situation for employees and their employers.

Employers get to keep valuable, experienced workers and the workers have a dual income while they're building a higher monthly Social Security benefit for the future.

For example, a trucking company owner was about to lose the services of three drivers who would reach full retirement age (65) this year. The drivers felt a need for a change. They decided to collect their monthly Social Security benefits and work part-time at other jobs that would allow them to keep their earnings within the annual limit ($17,000 for this year). Otherwise, their Social Security benefits would have been reduced $1 for every $3 they earned.

But when the new law went into effect, the company owner offered the drivers the opportunity to train new drivers and take on some administrative duties as well. They drivers welcomed the change of pace. They reconsidered their retirement decisions and decided to continue working at the trucking company.

And the company owner was relieved. He was now able to keep three valuable employees who can share their years of experience with younger workers.

At the same time, the employees received full Social Security benefits with no reduction based on earnings. And, continuing to work could mean an increased benefit because each year their additional earnings are posted to their records and their benefits are recalculated.

An increased benefit amount can be important to the worker later in life. It also could increase the future benefits the worker's family and survivors would receive based on his or her earnings record.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

THE YEAR 2000 -- IN REVIEW

Council Returns Tax Classification To 169% For Business

but those who combat the flu virus in at-risk groups had to be postponed when a second delivery of vaccine, expected Nov. 6, was put off until December when two of the four private companies that make the vaccine had difficulty meeting FDA requirements.

After nearly a year of study, the Traffic and Parking Department presented to Mayor Sheets a plan for solving traffic and pedestrian problems associated with Sea Street, known as one of the most dangerous roads in Quincy.

The Quincy Retired Teachers Association, the oldest such organization in the state, celebrated its 50th anniversary by accepting a $1,272,000 bequest from the estate of Harry Beede, former principal of Broad Meadows School, bringing its scholarship fund to $1,860,868.

Nearly 100 units, including 23 floats, 22 bands, 23 specialty units, 17 color guards and Santa Claus, took part in the 48th annual Christmas parade, with Roy Lind, retiring WJDA personality, acting as grand marshal.

The parade had to be postponed a week because of inclement weather.

School Superintendent Eugene Creedon was honored as the 50th recipient of the "Citizen of the Year Award" from the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post. Creedon was cited as a "builder of bridges" for the city's youth.

City Councillor Greg Hanley withdrew his name from consideration as council president, virtually assuring the current president, Paul Harold, of reelection to a second one-year term in January.

Former Attorney General Frank Bellotti of Quincy, a Navy veteran of World War II, warned Quincy's Veteran Day observance that "veterans rights are gradually deteriorating as out numbers diminish."

James Mullaney, president of Mullaney & Mullaney, was elected chairman of the board of directors of Quincy 2000, succeeding Donald Uvanitte.

The Quincy High School football team redeemed a lackluster season with a 28-13 triumph over archrival North Quincy in the 68th annual renewal of their Thanksgiving Day series.

WJDA RADIO personality Roy Lind retired in November after 39 years as one of the most recognizable voices on the South Shore. During his career at WJDA, Lind hosted Party Line and served as program director. (Quincy Sun Photos)

Quincy finished the season 3-7, North 1-9.

Deaths in November included:

Judge Leo J. Lydon, juvenile justice at Quincy District Court, killed in an auto accident in Randolph.

Helen A. Shea, 83, of Quincy, a Red Cross volunteer since World War II who was named the Outstanding Neighbor of the Year in 1987.

Donald W. Frazer, 82, of Quincy, who organized and pitched for the semi-pro Squantum Racketeers for 12 years, despite a handicap from polio when he was 12.

John A. Bersani, 82, of Quincy, former owner of the Quincy Cement Block Company.

The Rev. James P. Hart, 87, of Quincy, retired pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church.

DECEMBER

Citing issues of fairness and long-term economic strategy, the City Council voted 7-2 to return the city's state-maximum 175 percent tax classification for business property to the traditional 169 percent recommended by Mayor James Sheets.

"Fairness would dictate that business pay a higher burden of taxes and fairness requires that business be given a type of predictability in terms of what their costs are going to be," said Council President Paul Harold.

The classification percentage was used to set a residential rate of $15.94 and a commercial rate of $33.56 for Fiscal 2001.

Voting against the 169 percent shift were Councilors Daniel Raymondi and Greg Hanley.

The License Board voted unanimously to transfer the all alcoholic license of the former Point Pub from Stephen Barrett to George Pepdjonovich despite the objection of the Rev. Daniel Graham of the next door St. Joseph's Church.

As long as Pepdjonovich was a "fit applicant," said City Clerk Joseph Shea, the board had no other choice.

Executive Director Joanne Condon Walsh disclosed that the USS Salem and its shipbuilding museum was moving from the Fore River shipyard to Marina Bay to get out of the way for construction of a new Fore River Bridge.

United First Parish Church voted to auction off 11 heirloom pieces of silver with an estimated value of between $900,000 and $1,300,000 in an effort to preserve the historic Church of the Presidents.

The Rev. Sheldon Bennett, the pastor, said the building was "in danger of imminent structural collapse" and the cost of restoration was estimated at $1.7 million.

Federal officials were investigating the death of Charles T. Sylva, a 38-year-old Quincy resident, who died in custody of Quincy police while being held on a breaking and entering charge.

School Committee-woman Christine Cedrone, chair of the Quincy High School Siting Commission, named a 14-member team to take up the task of finding a new site for the new Quincy High School.

Heeding Police Chief Thomas Franc's admonition that there was "no public need" for an such license, the License Board turned down a bid to transfer the all alcoholic license of the Dollar Saver on Quincy Shore Drive to Plainville Liquors on Southern Artery.

The City Council passed an Inclusionary Zoning Resolution offered by Councillor Greg Hanley to require developers seeking Planned Unit Development permits to make 10 per cent of their inventory affordable housing.

SANTA CLAUS PARACHUTED to Faxon Field the Saturday after Thanksgiving to help kick off holiday festivities in Quincy. But because of bad weather, Santa -- and thousands of spectators -- had to wait a week for the annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade. (Quincy Sun Photo)

The North Quincy branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library was closed until Jan. 8 while workmen returned books and other inventory back to the main library in Quincy Square, which was preparing for a Feb. 5 opening of its new wing.

The U. S. Navy conveyed ownership of the 270-acre

Squantum Gardens to the non-profit, privately run Elder Housing Corporation for $1 to be converted into 152 units of affordable senior housing.

Quincy High School retired football jersey No. 15 worn by Bill Sullivan as an all-scholastic tackle and full-back in 1928-30, before he became legendary coach of the Presidents.

Deaths in December included:

Dr. Charles E. Gaughan, 56, of Marshfield, formerly of Quincy, founder and president of South Shore Cardiology.

David F. Burke Jr., 72, of Milton, retired teacher and football coach at Quincy High School for 25 years.

Dr. Sumner Hirschberg, 80, of Quincy, founder and president of Dental Associates and first president of the American Academy of Group Dental Practices.

3 Residents Elected To Cancer Society South Shore Board

Three well-known Quincy residents have been elected to the American Cancer Society's South Shore Board of Directors.

They are:

Brian Buckley, Athletic Director at North Quincy High School and former executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging.

John Franceschini, Director of Physical Education for the Quincy Public School system.

Chris Bell, Deputy Sheriff and Director of the TRIAD Program at Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

Buckley is chairman of the Massachusetts Senior Games, co-director of the State Coaches For Cancer Board and serves on the Executive Board of the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association. He has been instrumental in recruiting people in volunteer efforts in Quincy and the South Shore.

Franceschini has been a coach and teacher for many years. He is involved in volunteer work for charitable organizations and causes. He is co-director of the State Coaches For Cancer Board and a member of the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association.

Bell is involved in developing and initiating enhanced law enforcement and educational programs for senior citizens through partnerships between Sheriff Michael Bellotti's office, local Police and Fire Departments, Councils on Agings and Senior Citizens groups.

He is a member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and the Massachusetts Crime Prevention Officer's Association. He has worked with Catholic Charities and has coached at Archbishop Williams High School.

All three have had cancer victims in their families.

Ann Gilboy President-Elect Of Mass. Medical Staff Associates

Quincy Medical Center Medical Staff Operations Manager Ann Gilboy, CPCS, has been inducted as president-elect of the Massachusetts Association of Medical Staff Services.

Gilboy was recently sworn in to the organization, established in 1982 by medical staff services professionals committed to promoting excellence in health care services by providing a forum for the advancement and education of medical staff services professionals.

"I am thrilled to become a leader in this organization," Gilboy said. "Our commitment to the more than 50 hospitals, health care organizations and managed care companies that are members is imperative in these challenging times."

MAMSS has many functions in its service to health care organizations, including the development, implementation and management of procedures for physician/allied health practitioner credentialing. Medical staff services professionals also ensure effective communication between medical staff members and administrative teams.

Gilboy has been with Quincy Medical Center for over three years and is a Certified Physician Credentialing Specialist. She graduated magna cum laude in 1996 from Stonehill College with a degree in health care administration and lives in Easton.

Harold Resolve Seeks Update On RCN Cable TV Delay

The Oversight Committee of the City Council will schedule a hearing with representatives of RCN Cable to find out why the company is behind schedule in delivering second vendor Cable TV services to the city.

No hearing date has been set due to schedule conflicts but Council President Paul Harold, author of last week's resolution calling for the hearing, said it would take place at the next available date.

"We want to find out what the delay is," said Harold. "All along the process RCN has been reluctant to make a public presentation to the City Council."

Harold's resolution states that RCN has "failed to fulfill the terms of the contract" it signed with the city in 1999 to become the second vendor of Cable TV in the city, thereby increasing competition and consumer choice.

Therefore, the resolution continues, RCN should "update the council on their (RCN's) revised schedule to bring Cable TV to the city and why they should not be held in violation of the terms of their contract to the city."

"We were supposed to be re-wired by now, but it hasn't even begun," said Harold, who added that the current target date for re-wiring could be as far away as two years. "They say they can't access the poles, but they should have known that two years ago."

Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton is chairman of the Oversight Committee.

Expanded Rush Hour Service For Bus 225 Begins Jan. 2

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) will expand the evening rush hour schedule of the 225 Bus Route, announces State Sen. Michael Morrissey and State Rep.

Ronald Mariano.

Route 225 begins at Quincy Center and travels down Hancock ST. and Quincy Avenue into Weymouth Landing. Residents who depend on this route on a daily basis expressed concerns about the level of service offered by the 225 Bus Route to their legislators. Morrissey and Mariano responded by asking the MBTA to reevaluate the 225 Bus Route service.

"The result of the review has resulted in an expansion of rush hour service that will extend the time of service to 7:05 p.m. beginning Jan. 2, 2001," said Mariano.

In addition, Morrissey added, the MBTA will be collecting additional data on the route to determine if a schedule revision is necessary before the spring schedule is released and will also review the customer pattern usage in Quincy Center to determine if other changes in other bus services are warranted.

Morrissey noted that people often work beyond 5 p.m. and the expansion of public transportation has made it possible for people to travel farther from home to reach a distant workplace.

"Expanded MBTA rush hour service is needed to address longer work days and travel times," said Mariano.

Morrissey agreed. "It was strange to discover that on weekdays from 4:05 p.m. to 6:35 p.m. there was a 225 bus leaving Quincy Center every 10 to 15 minutes but after 6:35 p.m. the bus service was greatly curtailed," he noted. "An increase in the service during the tail end of 'rush hour' is understandable and necessary."

In addition to changes to the 225 Bus Route, the MBTA will be conducting a reevaluation of the MBTA bus routes serviced by and through Quincy Center. The Quincy Center MBTA station serves as a key terminal for three forms of rapid transit: the Red Line, the commuter rail, and many bus routes. The MBTA changed the bus route schedules over three years ago based on the change in the volume of riders. "It appears that over the last couple of years there are more people using the Quincy Center station MBTA bus system," said Morrissey.

Added Mariano: "This reevaluation is necessary and timely to improve service at the Quincy Center MBTA station for the residents of Quincy Point, Braintree, and the Weymouth Landing area."

POOR CIRCULATION

Poor circulation, or Peripheral Vascular Disease, is a common condition seen by Podiatrists. Many people with poor circulation complain of their feet being cold all of the time and sometimes cramping in the calf when walking or exercising. Due to the decrease in circulation getting to the feet, it is important to have good foot care.

Here are a few hints: Cut the nails straight across, following the natural shape of the nail. Never cut out ingrown toenails. Never cut out your own corns or calluses and never apply strong medications to remove them. Most importantly, if you have thick nails or nails that are difficult for you to cut, especially if you have poor circulation, see a Podiatrist for evaluation and treatment.

If you have been told by your doctor that you have poor circulation or you have any other problems related to your feet, contact a qualified Podiatrist.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 617-773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.
